INCOMPLETE RETURNS SHOW REPEAL AHEAD WITH BONE DRY LAW APPARENTLY DOOMED

Security Burden Shift to Industry Sought by George

Complete Substitute for Permanent Provisions of Administration Program Introduced by Georga's Senator.

TAX IS PROPOSED ON ALL PAY ROLLS

Employers Would Be Required To Pay Into Reserve Fund Sum Equal To Profits Payments.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Submission by Senator George, democrat, Georgia, of a complete substitute for the permanent features of the administration's social security bill today threatened to slow down action on that measure.

Democratic leaders had hoped to get the security bill out of the senate finance committee tomorrow, but even should this be done some delay was in propect.

Still another factor in the same direction was seen by observers in a report of Secretary Roper's business advistory council, proposing some changes in the legislation passed by the house. The report will be made public tomorrow.

Report Submitted.

Secretary Perkins and Gerald Swope, a member of the council, presented the report today to President Roosevelt. It was described as commending the basic principles of the old age pension and unemployment insurance plan, even while suggesting changes.

Miss Perkins described the report as "constructive," saying she concurred in many of the alterations suggested.

George proposed an entirely differ-

Drowned Man's Body Found by Fishermen

The body of Alvin Clower, 26-year-old Bolton painter, who drowned Tuesday morning while attempting to swim the Chattahoochee river, was recovered last night near the Bolton bridge. Discovery of the body was made by Joe Black and Buster Wise, of Bolton, who were fishing.

He is survived by his wife; a small daughter, Patsy; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Clower; three sisters, Mrs. A. J. Collins, Mrs. Addie Mae Collins and Mrs. H. J. Cannon, and a brother, V. E. Clower, of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Barbara's Count Forgets To Pay Marriage Fee

RENO, May 15.—(AP)—There's a little matter of $2 for a marriage license still unpaid to Elwood H. Beemer, Washoe county clerk—but he isn't worrying.

He said today it was the license issued for the marriage of Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow and the former Princess Barbara Hutton Ddivani. The countess' attorney has promised to "take care" of it, Beemer confided.

HITLER MAY ISSUE DEFY TO IL DUCE BEFORE REICHSTAG

Italian Action in North Africa Likely To Be Cited as Example of Warlike Activities.

BERLIN, May 15.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, a pastmaster at turning the tables, may hurl defiance to Benito Mussolini in his reichstag speech next Tuesday, using Italian action in North Africa as an example of Europe's warlike activities which necessitate German rearmament.

Diplomats said today they anticipate Der Fuehrer will seize the opportunity in his foreign policy speech to nominate himself as a great peace lover, singling out British, French and Italian arms building as indicative that other powers are traveling opposite roads.

Diplomats admitted that in view of Italian persistance in mobilizing troops in its border dispute with Ethiopia, Der Fuehrer has an unusual opportunity to point an accusing finger at the other side.

England, in the German view, is letting Mussolini run loose in East Africa because she needs his trumps in playing her cards with Germany.

Nazi press officials were forbidden to comment on Mussolini's speech yesterday on the Ethiopian question in which he warned other powers to keep hands off, but the Nachtausgabe called it "surprising."

"England is standing by calmly watching the destruction of the East African balance of power because she needs Italy for her European plans," the paper charged.

The press also warned against speculation on contents of Hitler's May

Over $700,000 Paid For 726-Carat Diamond

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Purchase of the 726-carat Jonkher diamond, which brought sudden wealth to an impoverished South American prospector when it was found in January, 1934, was announced today by Harry Winston, Fifth avenue gem dealer.

Winston, who said he paid "in excess of $700,000" for the gem, declared it was the largest uncut diamond in the world. It is approximately the size of a hen's egg and if cut into one single stone, as Winston said he hoped it would be, it would weigh an estimated 425 carats.

HOUSE CHIEFTAINS DEMAND 2 YEARS OR DEATH FOR NRA

Business Rallies to Save Act; Committee Member Says Senate Willing to Reconsider Vote.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—House democratic spokesmen today hurled a polite but positive defy at the senate, warning that the NRA either would be extended two years or allowed to die June 16.

Representative Taylor, of Colorado, acting democratic floor leader, was asked what he thought about the senate's resolution adopted yesterday, extending the NRA only 10 months. He said:

"In my opinion, the house overwhelmingly will insist upon a two-year extension. We're not delivering an ultimatum to the senate, or anything of the sort, but I believe the house would take nothing before it would take the senate's 10-month bill."

The assertion in Palo Alto, Cal., today by Herbert Hoover, that the "one right answer" to the NRA problem was its complete abolition, meanwhile drew but a minimum of response.

Republicans for the most part were silent. A few democratic leaders made sharp statements about economic affairs during the former president's administration. Both groups gave indication that his words probably would have little effect on whatever action congress may take.

Meanwhile, Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, a foe of NRA, asserted on the floor that the attack made yesterday by Donald Richberg, NRA chief, on the senate's resolution extending NRA was "the most brazen exhibition of impudence on the part of a bureaucrat" he had ever seen.

He announced he would address the senate tomorrow on "Donald R. Richberg and his ambition to be a Mussolini in the United States."

At the same time, a new group known as the "industry and business committee for NRA extension" opened headquarters in the capital and Ward Cheney, chairman, called a meeting next Wednesday of indus-

Peace, New Air of Hope Reign in Cuba---McGill

Ralph McGill, of The Constitution, on the left, as he and A. H. Chapman, of the Bradenton (Fla.) Herald, placed a wreath on the statue to Jose Marti, Cuba's apostle of liberty. Mr. McGill was selected by the party of editors and publishers visiting the island republic to make the address of tribute to Marti.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles on the political and economic situation today in Cuba by Ralph McGill, of The Constitution. Mr. McGill was sent to Cuba by The Constitution during the Machado revolution to keep in touch with the then rapidly changing conditions and was there in intimate contact just a few days prior to Machado's downfall. In a noteworthy series of articles at that time, he described in detail the events which led to the overthrow of Machado. His trip to the island republic at this time is by invitation of the Government Travel Bureau for the purpose of making a comparison of conditions there now with the chaos which prevailed in the revolution of 1933. Reports for a year and a half that the nation has been upset by revolutions, strikes and other disorders have had an unsettling effect on Cuba and Mr. McGill in his present series will tell the people of the south just what he finds there.

By RALPH McGILL.

HAVANA, Cuba., May 15.—(By Air Mail.)—Cuba seems to have finished reaping the harvest of the whirlwind sown by Gerardo Machado.

The storm of revolution and bloodshed which wrought some of the most dramatic happenings in Latin-American history, has blown itself out. The provisional government of Carlos Mendieta with Fulgencio Batista, whom some destiny thrust on the scene to become the man of the hour, has finally achieved peace.

There will be some slight disturbances in Cuba when the elections come in December. There always are slight disturbances here, as there are in our own country, but the era of bloodshed and strife seems to be done.

Today, with other newspapermen, I saw President Mendieta and the American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery. Later I saw them again in personal interviews. Both believe that peace has come to Cuba, that the people have achieved the vision of peace, that they want to work and are seeking it and that Cuba is facing, with the United States, an era of prosperity.

Batista, Another Story.

Colonel Batista, that genius of a man who came on the scene unheralded to hold the balance of power, as he does today, is another story. How he came from a thatched hut and the ranks of the cane cutters to become the real savior of Cuba is a story which must be told in a chapter of its own.

A year and a half ago I came to Cuba to find revolution brewing. Bombs were being exploded. I saw soldiers putting down riots in the streets.

Beggars beset one on every hand.

McBrayer's District 167 to 57 for Repeal

South Bend, the home precinct of the Rev. H. E. McBrayer, militant minister who had been a leader in the repeal fight, went for repeal by nearly three to one in yesterday's voting.

Mr. McBrayer is pastor of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church. The South Bend precinct is at Lakewood avenue and Jonesboro road. It embraces the entire Lakewood Heights area.

The vote there was:

For repeal, 167; against, 57; for beer, 170; against, 52; for wine, 169; against, 48.

REPEAL IS GIVEN 2-TO-1 MAJORITY IN FULTON COUNTY

Margin Is 5,063; DeKalb County, Dry for 30 Years, Also Apparently in Wet Column.

Fulton county, backed by the support of every city precinct, yesterday voted more than two-to-one to repeal Georgia's 27-year-old state bone dry law, giving repeal a majority of 5,063 and DeKalb county, legally dry for the last 30 years, apparently had swung into the wet column.

The three-way referendum was for repeal, legalization of wine and beer, and all three were comfortably ahead in DeKalb as well as assured of the support of Fulton.

The Fulton count, as compiled unofficially by The Constitution, from 53 of the 55 boxes, was:

For repeal, 9,613; against, 4,550.

For beer, 9,956; against, 4,033.

For wine, 9,762; against, 4,095.

Returns from only 16 of the 23 DeKalb precincts were available last night because of an order issued by Ordinary V. S. Morgan that no returns should be announced before the consolidation of ballots at noon today at the DeKalb courthouse.

16 Precincts Obtained.

The 16 which were obtained, despite the order, gave the following result:

For repeal, 2,296; against, 1,451.

For beer, 1,341; against, 609 (only 13 precincts reported).

For wine, 1,314; against, 618 (only 13 precincts reported).

Every one of Atlanta's 13 wards voted for repeal, beer and wine, and only nine of the smaller out-of-town precincts voted against repeal in the three-way referendum.

Center Hill and Oak Grove, in Fulton, had not reported.

The nine Fulton precincts which voted dry are:

College Park, Goode's, Rivertown, Union, Alpharetta, Big Creek, Double Branch, Little River, Old First.

It was a neck-and-neck race in Fairburn, and the repeal vote was a tie with 72 cast for repeal and 72 against. Beer and wine, however, carried there.

Only 2 Boxes Vote Dry.

In DeKalb, only two of the 16

Wine, Beer Lead By Good Margins In Statewide Vote

Reports From All But Two Counties Give Repeal Majority of 8,164; Beer Legalization Ahead by 12,939, While Wine Has Margin of 13,127; Repeal Strength Concentrated in Larger Cities, With Chatham Majority Almost 10,000.

TOTAL VOTE NOT OVER 165,000 AS MANY STAY AWAY FROM POLLS

Leaders on Both Sides Issue Statements, With Repealists Asserting They Have "Nearly 10,000" Majority, While Dry Leaders Concede the Outcome Is "Dangerously Close"; Full Count Known Today.

Georgia yesterday apparently voted out its 27-year-old bone-dry law, legalized beer and legalized wine manufactured from Georgia products.

In a three-way referendum repealist forces piled up substantial leads in all of the "big city" counties, except Troup, overcoming the leads which the prohibition forces obtained in a great number of the rural counties.

Shortly after midnight this morning the Associated Press compilation showed:

For repeal, 72,394; against repeal, 64,230. Majority for repeal, 8,164.

Returns were complete from a number of counties and at least partial returns were received from all but two of the state's 159 counties.

Beer and wine obtained a somewhat larger vote than outright repeal and appeared safe, regardless of late returns. The vote on beer was 61,057 in favor of the beverage to 48,118 opposed. The majority was 12,939.

Wine was leading by about the same majority as beer, the actual majority being 13,127.

Leaders Make Statements.

Spence Grayson, chairman of the Georgia Association for Local Option, the repeal organization, issued a statement shortly before midnight asserting that repeal had carried "by nearly 10,000 votes." Milton L. Fleetwood, of Cartersville, director of the Georgia Temperance League, the amalgamated dry organization, in a statement said that the contest was "dangerously close." He added that he was hopeful that the late returns from the rural counties would wipe out the repeal majority.

Majority in Larger Counties.

The majority obtained by the repeal forces was concentrated in the larger counties of the state, Chatham giving liquor a majority of almost 10,000 votes, Fulton following with more than 5,000 majority. Other large counties, Troup excepted, were in the repeal column. Richmond had a 1,900 majority, Bibb a 500 majority, Muscogee a 1,400 majority, Dougherty a 600 majority, Floyd a majority of more than 1,000 and others rolled up similarly large votes.

DeKalb, the home county of a number of dry leaders, including Judge John S. Candler and William Schley Howard, apparently was in the repeal column, although official figures will not be available until today.

Hart county, where Senator James H. Shelton championed the dry cause, rolled up the largest majority for the prohibitionists, the drys getting a majority of more than 1,000 there.

Bulloch Proves Surprise.

Bulloch, however, proved a big surprise, giving the wets a majority of more than 1,000.

Should the repealists maintain the majority they obtained early last night and increased as the returns came in throughout the evening and early morning the result will mean that county elections on the issuance of permits to liquor dealers may be called by the ordinaries on petition of 15 per cent of the registered voters of the particular county. If the

BONUS MEASURE TO BE RELEASED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(UP) Senate inflationists, confident of enough votes to override a veto, plan to send the Patman soldier bonus bill to President Roosevelt this week-end.

Polls of the senate failed to justify their confidence. Most of them indicated a veto would be sustained by at least three votes.

Senators Elmer Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, and Pat McCarran, democrat, Nevada, who are directing the strategy for the Patmanites, were said tonight to feel that they would be able to muster their full strength early next week to attempt to override the certain White House veto of the measure.

An attempt will be made to jam a compromise bill through congress as an amendment to some routine appropriation measure if the senate sustains the expected veto of the inflationary Patman bill, it was learned tonight.

Thomas and McCarran declined to forecast the outcome of the forthcoming test of strength with the president. They pondered the effects on wavering colleagues of advice Vice President John N. Garner is reported to have given undecided senators to the effect that it would be "good politics" to override the veto. By such action, Garner is said to have argued, the senators would be pleasing the veterans and would not be antagonizing the White House.

Garner has refused to confirm or deny that he has passed out such suggestions. He was one of a group of congressional leaders who spent the

ATLANTAN DROWNS IN CAROLINA LAKE

Volney Harmon, 2 Others Lose Lives; Atlanta Girl Swims Ashore.

Volney C. Harmon, 34, prominent Atlanta man, and two other persons were drowned, and Miss Opal Barrow, 25, formerly of Atlanta, narrowly escaped death Tuesday night at Lake Lure, N. C., when the boat the four occupied capsized several hundred yards from the shore.

The lake was being dragged last night in an effort to recover the bodies of Mr. Harmon and Johnnie H. Jones, 35, of Charlotte, and Miss Virginia Savage, 24, also of Charlotte, who were the other members of the party.

Miss Barrow, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Barrow, of 1462 Lucile avenue, S. W., swam to shore safely after their motorboat capsized. She wandered about in the woods surrounding the lake for six hours before she was able to locate the village of Lake Lure to report the tragedy and to summon aid.

Was Truck Official.

Mr. Harmon, who resided at the 1050 Apartments on Ponce de Leon avenue, was district sales representative of the bus division of the General Motors Truck Company, with headquarters in Atlanta. His territory included, Georgia, the Carolinas, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee.

He was widely known here, and with his wife, the former Miss Glynn Rogers, of Detroit, was a conspicuous figure in Atlanta society. They had resided here nearly two years. Mrs. Harmon was visiting relatives in Detroit at the time of her husband's death.

Miss Barrow suffered from exposure and nervous exhaustion but was otherwise unharmed. She is employed by

HUNT CONTINUES FOR REV. SENTELL

Minister's Son Appeals to Authorities for Aid in Widening Search.

The Rev. William Sentell, who resigned as pastor of the First Baptist church of College Park May 5 and then disappeared, is still missing, it was revealed yesterday when members of the Sentell family appealed to local authorities to aid in the search for him.

Mr. Sentell, who is 50 years old, tendered his resignation to the board of deacons, headed by W. S. Northcutt, Sunday afternoon, May 5. He then went to his home, packed a suitcase, entered his automobile and drove away. His explanation for resigning was that he "desired to enter another field."

Since that time the College Park pastor has not communicated with his wife, or with members of his family. A son, the Rev. Howard Sentell, is patsor of the Peachtree Baptist church.

Search Spreads.

Following his disappearance, fear was expressed he had suffered a nervous breakdown, and aid of the College Park and Fulton county police and authorities in a number of cities in Tennessee and Alabama, where he formerly resided, was enlisted in the search.

Later, the Rev. Howard Sentell announced his father had been found visiting friends, and would remain in an unnamed city for a rest.

In the appeal to authorities yesterday, the son said his father had been in a communication with a woman residing in East Point and that he had talked with her over long distance telephone on several occasions. The woman, whose name was not revealed, has declined to reveal the

STABLE CURRENCY IS SEEN BY HULL

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—The door to foreign offers of international currency stabilization, thrust ajar by Secretary Morgenthau, tonight was wedged open officially and diplomatically by Secretary Hull, of the State Department.

In a formal statement, the man through whom any foreign overtures must come said Morgenthau's limited stabilization offer "pointed in the direction toward which the world can look for further general improvement of its affairs."

Speaking in the same breath of international money stability and world trade expansion—a goal he hopes to reach through reciprocal traiff agreements—Hull said:

"The fluctuations of exchanges have created a state of confusion world markets, but I believe this confusion to be only a transient condition incidental to the re-establishment of a new and better balanced stability."

The secretary gave no hint of any foreign approaches on stabilization. From abroad, where the British pound is considered the key to the international money problem, unoffi l London reports tended to discourage hopes of an early international agreement.

Before Hull spoke, President Roosevelt said at a press conferen that while diplomatic dispatches ; far had revealed no reaction to Morgenthau's statement that "Washington will not be an obstacle" to stabilization, some were expected soon.

Like Morgenthau in his address on the dollar, Hull's statement dealt chiefly with foreign trade. He attrib-

RETURNS INDICATE DRY LAW'S DOOM

repealists carry these county elections liquor will be sold in the counties where the issuance of permits is approved.

The beer and wine totals ran slightly ahead of outright repeal but the compilation by the Associated Press on these two issues was not as complete as the vote on the main question. It was generally expected that if repeal won beer and wine would have little or no trouble in gaining the needed majorities. The vote, however, differed only slightly and it was not expected to vary 5,000 on all the issues.

In his brief statement, Mr. Fleetwood said:

Fleetwood Statement.

"The contest is dangerously close. However, we do wish to say that regardless of the outcome we will accept the result gracefully and we want to take this opportunity to thank our many friends for the kind assistance they have given us. We also want to thank the newspapers for their splendid co-operation."

The Grayson statement follows:

"Repeal, legalization of beer and legalization of wine has been victorious in Georgia. There are a few scattered precincts to be heard from but they will not change the result. Georgia has gone wet by nearly 10,000 votes. We have been successful against a perfect organization because we were on the right side. We have many to thank for their assistance but we were so helpless in our organization that there are thousands upon thousands to whom we are indebted that we don't even know. So we'll just thank everybody."

Directed Repeal Fight.

Grayson, with S. Marvin Griffin, of Bainbridge, and Councilman William G. Hastings, of Atlanta, directed the repeal fight.

The fight for legalization of beer was sponsored by the Georgia Wholesale Malt Beverage Association, headed by Ralph J. Hancock, of Marietta.

There was no organized campaign for the wine bill. It was sponsored by Representative Carlisle Cobb, of Clarke county, in the general assembly.

Grayson and Griffin, with Representatives Bargeron, of Burke county; Townsend, of Dade county; Parker and Shirah, of Colquitt county, and others in the house and Senator David Atkinson, of Savannah, in the senate, sponsored the repeal bill.

The beer proposal was sponsored in the house by Representative Culpepper, of Fayette county, and by Senator Joe Johnston, of Woodstock, in the senate.

Legal on Proclamation.

The beer measure provides that the issuance of beer permits by county and municipal authorities may become legal as soon as the result of the election is proclaimed by Governor Talmadge. Such is the case with the wine plan. These proclamations will be issued next week, if the leads obtained yesterday are not wiped out in the late returns.

The liquor plan provides that the state shall exact a 10 per cent retail sales tax on all goods sold and that the local authorities may collect license fees. The funds yielded from these taxes, under the constitution, go directly to the common schools.

For Free Textbooks.

The beer tax levied by the state is to be $1.25 a barrel, which under the terms of the Culpepper act go to the common schools for free textbooks. This plan was sponsored by Speaker of the House E. D. Rivers. It is generally expected that the courts will determine on the free schoolbooks clause.

The vote yesterday was surprisingly small, Chatham county polling the largest percentage of its registered votes. Observers had expected about 250,000 votes but returns last night indicated that the total would not run more than 165,000.

Two Dry Votes and a Wet One

Three of Georgia's best-known controversialists in the prohibition issue are shown at Atlanta polling places as they voted in the state-wide repeal election. At left Bishop Warren A. Candler, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, veteran champion of prohibition, is casting his ballot. Behind him stands his brother, Judge John S. Candler, leader of Georgia drys in the campaign. Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, outspoken advocate of repeal, is shown at the right in the act of casting a wet vote. (Associated Press photos).

Roosevelt To Submit Transportation Plans

WASHINGTON May 15.—(UP)—President Roosevelt in one of his shortest presss conferences in months, revealed today that he hoped to send to congress this week a special message dealing with co-ordinated regulation of transportation.

The message already is written but Mr. Roosevelt wants to consult again with departmental officials before transmitting his message.

The president's recommendations are expected to clarify his previous proposals for bringing all forms of transportation under unified regulation, probably by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

MOTOR VEHICLE CHIEFS MEETING IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Conn., May 15.—(AP)—Motor vehicle commissioners and administrators from 22 states and Canadian provinces will attend the eastern conference of motor vehicles administrators to be held here tomorrow and Friday, it was announced today.

PROBE DEMANDED ON FARMERS' TREK

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—A republican demand for administration reports on whether or not government funds helped sponsor the farmer mass-meeting boosting the AAA today climaxed a sharp congressional flare-up over President Roosevelt's denunciation of "lies" about his agricultural adjustment program.

After expressing his resentment at Mr. Roosevelt's attack on the "high and mighty" who were "lying" about the AAA, Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, introduced a resolution calling on Secretary Wallace for all correspondence relative to the gathering of 4,000 farmers and for a report on whether or not the government furnished transportation costs.

Hastings said he assumed expenses of the farmers were being paid "directly or indirectly by the government." His assertion drew an immediate reply from Lewis, of Illinois, the democratic whip, who demanded proof of "intimations" the president was in a conspiracy to bring the farmers here.

Has No Knowledge.

"I have no knowledge," Hastings retorted, "except the general attitude of the administration upon that and like subjects. I'm satisfied the administration in the past has used money appropriated for public purposes to produce an effect on the country that the administration was doing greater things than it actually is doing."

"That confesses the resolution's weakness," Lewis said, demanding its withdrawal as "an affront" to the president and Wallace.

As this debate raged in the senate and Representatives Fish and Blanton exchange sallies in the house, the farmers who gathered on the White House lawn yesterday to hear Mr. Roosevelt endorse continuance of the AAA were, for the most part, headed homeward. Some stayed for sightseeing and were listening in the senate and house galleries.

During the morning, selected farmers from 30 states adopted a resolution condemning critics of the AAA and calling on congress for continuation of the farm program. It declared that "powerful organized groups are attempting to destroy the agricultural adjustment administration," and that the AAA has "lifted the producers from a state of bankruptcy into one of hope."

AAA Form Best.

After canvassing means of maintaining a united farm front, the farm group decided the AAA was all the organization they needed.

C. H. Day, of Plainview, Texas, unofficial chairman of the assemblage, said that "in our AAA set-up, with our little local community committees, and our state and district organizations, and our national united organization headed by our Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and our great president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, we have the finest farm organization we could desire."

In the house, Fish termed the AAA program "half-baked." Blanton retorted that "the tentative republican candidate for the presidency" was taking a "political swipe."

Speaker Byrns said he expected the AAA amendment bill, designed to clarify the original act, to be ready for house consideration next week. This measure drew the support of the farm meeting.

During the day, a bill to authorize the appropriation of millions for agricultural research, development of co-operative agricultural extension work and additional endowments for land-grant colleges was passed by the house and sent to the senate.

It would allow an initial appropriation of $1,000,000 for research and increase the amount gradually to $5,000,000 in five years. Forty per cent of the fund would be used by the agriculture department.

The remaining 60 per cent would be matched with state funds, distributed to states on a rural population basis, and used for research at agricultural experiment stations.

REPEAL IS VOTED 2 TO 1 IN FULTON

Cross Keys "B" and Evans District won that distinction.

Decatur box No. 1, where the drys pinned their hopes of overcoming the rural repeal lead, went into the repeal column by 28 votes, stacking up 695 for repeal as against 667, according to tabulations.

Clarkston "A," Decatur boxes Nos. 2, 3 and 4; Diamonds district, Doraville, Kirkwood (South), McWilliams district, Phillips district and Shallowford where the DeKalb boxes from which reports were lacking.

Fulton cast 14,163 votes in the 53 boxes which reported, while the DeKalb boxes reporting, based on the repeal compilation, showed a total of 3,747 from the 16 precincts.

Heated Battles Waged.

Wets and drys waged heated battles in both Fulton and DeKalb counties and both claimed victory until counts began to show the trend of the balloting.

Election managers will gather this morning at the offices of the DeKalb and Fulton county ordinaries, respectively, to compile the official tabulations of the balloting.

Rural DeKalb sections, which were claimed by the drys, voted wet on the face of unofficial compilations made by The Constitution.

Voters of the two counties appeared to be consistent in their balloting on the three-way referendum. There was little difference between the straight repeal totals and those for wine and beer.

The Rev. H. E. McBrayer, pastor of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church, who waged a state-wide campaign in the interest of repeal, last night issued the following statement:

"If repeal won in today's balloting, it was one of the greatest days in the history of the state. It also was one of the greatest things which could have happened for temperance. I am happy that the people of the state apparently have repealed an unenforcible law, which made criminals rich and law-breakers of our citizens."

Church Bells Ring.

Church bells rang in the two counties during the day, and when complaints began pouring into the office of Mayor Key, Atlanta, nationally known prohibition leader, that the bells were disturbing business, he asserted:

"So far as I personally am concerned, they can ring the bells until they fall from the belfries. I believe people of Georgia resent the attempted dictation of the church in this matter, and that the ringing of the church bells will do the cause good and react against an unenforcible prohibition. We cannot allow business to be disrupted, however." He called on the police to stop the tolling of the one located at the Central Baptist church, just across Mitchell street from the city hall.

There were 31,870 citizens of Fulton registered to cast ballots, and about 8,000 in DeKalb.

Despite predictions for rain during the day, skies for the most part were clear, and voting was reported as being brisk.

HAUPTMANN, WIFE ACCUSED OF FRAUD

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Income tax frauds were charged today to Bruno Richard Hauptmann and his wife, Anna, in the government's answer to the appeal of the convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby for a redetermination of tax assessments for 1932 and 1933.

Five instances in which the pair were held to have defrauded the government were cited in the answer, filed by treasury experts with the board of tax appeals.

The reply hinted at Hauptmann's connection with part of the Lindbergh ransom money found in his possession by referring to a $16,200 portion of their income as having been "derived from sources yet unidentified."

The government was assessed income tax claims, penalties and interest totalling $9,768 for the two years against the Hauptmanns. They appealed, contending the internal revenue bureau erroneously credited to Hauptmann funds received through operation of a joint brokerage account and the joint operation of a fur business with Isidor Fisch.

Hauptmann has held that he received the Lindbergh ransom from Fisch, who later died in Germany.

Referring to the $16,200, the government's answer said, $4,150 was used in the purchase of a mortgage and $12,050 for the purchase of furs. The $16,200 was part of the total income of $43,394 Hauptmann and his wife were said to have received but failed to report.

INDIANA REVERSES RULING ON BANKER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 15.—(AP)—The Indiana supreme court today held insufficient the evidence on which Melville S. Cohn, former officer of the Meyer Kiser Bank of Indianapolis, was convicted of embezzlement. The court gave no instructions as to whether he should be retired. Cohn appealed after receiving a sentence of from two to fourteen years

ROME PRESS ASKS ETHIOPIA INVASION

Government-Inspired Newspaper Takes Drastic Stand.

ROME, May 15.—(AP)—Italian newspapers openly demanded today imposition of a new "organization" on Ethiopia, which was taken by diplomatic circles to mean civil or military control by Italy.

The authoritative Giornale D'Italia, which most often is chosen to echo government plans, said Ethiopia's "incapacity to comprehend and assimilate the elementary values of civilization" makes it necessary that "there be given Ethiopian territory an organization which will deprive it of the possibility of menacing any more neighboring colonies, above all Italian interests which have been attacked."

These blasts followed the bold declaration by Benito Mussolini that other nations must keep their hands off the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

London to Continue.

Well-informed London quarters said Great Brtain, despite Il Duce's edict, would continue her negotiations to prevent war between Rome and Addis Ababa.

That it is to be Italy which imposes this organization upon Ethiopia was recognized by the Giornale D'Italia when it said: "To recognize the European value of Italy as a civilized nation and power for equilibruim, signifies to recognize also these Italian necessities in East Africa, her rights of defense and of guarantees."

"It is not to be doubted," the newspaper concluded, that "England, so abundantly furnished with rich colonial territories and precious mandates, will recognize the just basis of these Italian positions."

Italian newspapers in dispatches from Paris and London said Mussolini's speech yesterday had a definite effect of reorientating opinions of those two governments.

Il Duce told the senate that every war industry here has been working at full time for several months and that approximately 900,000 men of "superb morale" are under arms.

League Short-Circuited.

Italy's appointment of her two conciliators in the Ethiopian quarrel, a government spokesman said, will make the meeting of the League council at Geneva, beginning Monday, a mere formality so far as the Italo-Ethiopian question is concerned.

The council, he said, is scheduled to hear what progress has been achieved on its suggestion in January that the two countries proceed to settle their difficulties under direct negotiation, conciliation or arbitration, provided under a treaty of 1928 between them.

He said the council would limit itself to "taking cognizance" of the appointment of conciliators. Both countries have named two negotiators.

ENGLAND MAY CLOSE SUEZ TO ITALIAN SHIPPING

LONDON, May 15.—(AP)—Great Britain will make no move to close the Suez canal and British ports to Italian warships and transports without first consulting the League of Nations and the United States, a high authority said tonight.

Agitation for such a single-handed action by Britain is increasing among liberal and labor political circles.

Replying to Geoffrey Mander, a liberal, in parliament today Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, denied any representations had been made to Italy with reference to obligations the British would be under regarding use of the Suez canal and English ports in the event of African hostilities.

Pressed for a statement as to whether the matter would not be raised in the event of hostilities, Simon said: "I have no reason to suppose that the Italian government is not perfectly aware of the obligations of this country."

He would not be drawn out further but it was learned in government quarters Sir John referred to Britain's "obligations" under the League to assist any League member (including Ethiopia) which is a victim of aggression.

Edward Johnson Heads Metropolitan Opera

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Edward Johnson, Canadian-born tenor, was appointed general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company tonight.

Johnson, who has shared the assistant general managership with Edward Ziegler under an arrangement with the Juilliard Musical Foundation, succeeds the late Herbert Witherspoon.

Witherspoon died suddenly of heart disease last Friday after only two months in the post that was held so long by Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the retired impresario.

Johnson, a member of the Metropolitan Company for more than 10 years, telegraphed his acceptance from Detroit, where he sang last night with Lucrezia Bori.

Southern Baptists Open Convention

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 15.—(AP)—Opening the eightieth annual meeting of the Southern Baptist convention this afternoon, President M. E. Dodd, of Shreveport, La., declared the "biggest business" of Christians today "is to tell the story of God's redeeming love."

Describing "personal salvation" the "supreme need of the world," he said Baptists cannot escape "the imperative stewardship obligation to give this idea to the whole world, beginning at our Jerusalem and going through all Samaria and Judea and unto the uttermost parts of the earth, until it blazes a path through every land."

"Jesus was a propagandist," he said. "He was always sharing with others his experience and his knowledge of his heavenly father."

2 GEORGIANS SEEK CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

MIAMI, Fla., May 15.—(AP)—Custody of two small sons of Charles R. Patterson, who was found shot to death with Mrs. Junita Cox in her home here May 9, will be at issue tomorrow before Circuit Judge U. O. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer E. Quarterman, of Miami, maternal grandparents, and John M. Patterson, of Stockbridge, Ga., paternal grandparent, and Miss Mattie Patterson, of Fort McPherson, Ga., an aunt, have asked the court for legal custody of Wilmer, 6, and Jackie, 3.

The children are now in the county home. Patterson's widow, Florine, is a patient in a state hospital. Peace Justice H. L. Oppenborn said the deaths of Mrs. Cox and Patterson, partners in a small loan firm here, followed by suicide."

$200,000 Bid Is Made For Montgomery Paper

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 15.—(AP)—The high bid for 1,125 shares of capital common stock of the Montgomery Advertiser, represting 90 per cent of the entire stock, was submitted in Montgomery circuit court today by Martin Andersen, of Orlando, Fla., at $200,000. It was understood, but not publicly announced, that Anderon was bidding for Charles E. March, owner of a chain of newspapers in the southwest.

The bid was submitted at the public auction on the stock owned by the Frank P. Glass estate, and topped the final bid of $195,000 submitted by R. F. Hudson, publisher of the Advertiser.

Under a contract with the late Mr. Glass, Victor H. Hanson, of Birmingham, publisher of the Birmingham News-Age Herald, holds the right to match the $200,000 bid within 30 days and buy the stock. Mr. Hudson told Mr. Andersen at the close of the hearing, "Well, you've bought you a newspaper."

Survivor of Tragedy

Miss Opal Barrow, former Atlanta girl, who narrowly escaped death Tuesday night when her three companions drowned in Lake Lure, N. C. One of the three was Volney C. Harmon, prominent Atlanta businessman. Miss Barrow, who resides in Charlotte, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Barrow, of 1462 Lucile avenue, S. W.

McCrary, Petty Slated For Police Promotion

Election of C. E. McCrary and M. E. Petty, police officers, to two of the three lieutenancy vacancies at the regular meeting of the police committee tonight, was forecast yesterday.

The third lieutenant will come from a list of four, composed of J. A. McKibben, W. G. Scott, M. C. Williams and E. G. Stephens, the same information source said.

Among other major matters to face the committee will be ratification of an unofficial designation of Captain A. J. Holcombe to succeed Assistant Chief of Police C. P. Connally, who retires June 1 on pension, and of Lieutenant Neal Ellis as a captain to succeed Holcombe.

In addition, the committee is slated to take action to weed out other men in the department who are physically unfit for service. Several already have taken examinations, and others will be ordered to do so, if plans of a number of the committee materialize.

Chief Connally yesterday formally filed his application for a pension with city authorities and asked that it be made efective June 1.

Chief of U. C. V. Hits G. A. R. Action on Lee

PETERSBURG, Va., May 15.—(AP)—Homer Atkinson, who as a youth left home to fight with Lee, today as commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, branded "contemptible" the action of the Massachusetts auxiliary of the Grand Army of the Republic in opposing the erection of a statue of General Robert E. Lee in Arlington cemetery.

For the most part, leaders of Confederate organizations and other southern patriotic organizations in Virginia did not "deign" to comment on the action of the Massachusetts auxiliary which hurled the epithet "traitor" at the Confederate chieftain.

General Atkinson recalled that Arlington was Lee's home before it became a national cemetery and said that the Confederate leader has a host of admirers in the north as well as in the south.

Ala. Asked To Halt Municipal Power

TUSCUMBIA, Ala., May 15.—(AP)—The Alabama Power Company today applied for an injunction in Colbert circuit court to restrain the municipalities of Sheffield and Tuscumbia from constructing municipal power distributing systems.

Judge C. P. Almon set the hearing on a temporary injunction for Monday, while the city of Sheffield prepared tomorrow to open bids on the construction of the proposed municipal system.

U. S. WILL FIGHT DRY STATES' RUM

FACA Will Revoke Licenses of Manufacturers Dealing in Illicit Trade.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Plans for shutting down the business of firms selling liquor in dry states as a new and more effective enforcement step than criminal prosecution today were disclosed by Joseph H. Choate Jr.

The alcohol control administrator, in an interview, said action against liquor code violators—through which permits to do business may be suspended or evoked—was "much more speedy than criminal prosecutions and may result in consequences even more serious to the business of the offender."

The determination to proceed against permit holders, Choate explained, was prompted by reports of the treasury's alcohol tax unit that sales of ilquor from legal sources had been increasing recently in states with prohibition laws. The repeal amendment requires federal co-operation in keeping such states dry.

During the first months of repeal, Choate said, "little evidence developed of activities by distillers, rectifiers or wholesalers in introducing liquor into states whose laws forbade it."

But later, he added, "evidence of illegal sales by holders of legitimate permits has been coming in and we now have cases which seem to us well established, against a number of firms which appear to have been selling in dry states."

Choate said he could not make the names of these firms public because formal charges first must be filed and then a code hearing held by FACA. But he emphasized that "permit revocations proceedings will be started" in all these cases.

If the first actions were "successful they should effectively deter similar offenses, and should furnish an impressive demonstration of the efficiency of code control," he said.

Regarding complaints from prohibition states, Choate added, there "is no public service which the FACA is more eager to render than assistance in the protection of the laws of dry states."

MANY ATLANTANS IN DOUGLAS CONTEST

Shoes for Rest of Life and $1,000 Cash Await Essay Winner.

Hopeful of keeping themselves in shoes for the rest of their lives and winning $1000 in cash besides, a number of persons in Atlanta have entered the W. L. Douglas contest now being advertised in The Constitution.

The subject of the contest sponsored by the well-known and long established shoe manufacturer is "Why I Think Douglas All-Leather Constructiin is Best." A total of $7,000 in cash and merchandise prizes will be distributed to the 745 persons who submi the most meritorious statement. First prize is a cash award of $1000 also three pair of shoes each year for life. Second prize is a cash award of $250 also one pair of shoes each year for life. Third prize is a cash award of $150, also one pair of shoes each year for 10 years. The balance of the cash and merchandise prizes comprises $210 and 685 pairs of shoes.

Although not spectacular, the contest enjoys the character and prestige given it by a conservative manufacturer and three naitonally known judges. The latter are: F. M. Moffat, president, Tanner's Council of America; B. T. Butterworth advertising maganer New York Times; Miss Helen Koues, fashion director, Good Housekeeping magazine.

Through this contest the company hopes not only to gain ideas that may be useful in future advertising campaigns, but also to educate the public in the importance of buying shoes that have "leather in every place where leather should be."

On its contest entry blank the company makes the following suggestion to the contestants: "The use of leather in shoes is taken for granted by many people. But during the great war there was a scarcity of leather due to military requirements. Consequently the use of other materials in place of sho: leather gained in popularity. And sad to say, much of that popularity has endured until today."

There is still ample time to enter the contest, as it does not close until May 31. Entry blanks may be obtained without obligation at the local W. L. Douglas store at 83 Peachtree street.

Girl Bandit Sought In Ride-Rob Holdup

A stylishly dressed 20-year-old girl bandit who leaped to the running board of a moving car with two men companions late Tuesday night was being sought by police yesterday in connection with a ride-rob holdup of D. S. Capes, of Norcross, Ga.

The girl, who was dressed in becoming blue hat and blue dress, was described as slender and about 20 years old. She and her companions leaped on the car, Mr. Capes reported to police yesterday, as he was driving north on Spring street at Merritts avenue.

One of the men, brandishing a pistol, forced Capes to drive to Lincoln Memorial cemetery, where he was robbed and put out of his car. The bandit trio then drove off hurriedly.

TALMADGE RELEASES LAGRANGE STRIKERS

Workers Give Pledge Not To 'Create Any More Disturbance.'

Twelve LaGrange strikers who have been detained at Fort McPherson since the walkout at the Callaway Mills on April 29 were released yesterday by Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp on orders from Governor Talmadge.

The release of the men was ordered by the governor after he had received a letter signed by them in which they promised not to "interfere with anyone who wants to work" and that they "would not create any more disturbance of any kind."

The petition from the interned strikers was accompanied by a letter from Cason J. Callaway urging their release.

The men freed were Edmond Ragsdale, Burrell Yarbrough, Jesse Lynch, E. C. Willis, R. B. Brown, B. M. Niblett, Reed Woodham, Jones Dale, Alfred Wood, Curtis Crowell and Walter Cross.

In his letter to the governor, Mr. Callaway said:

"While appreciating the seriousness of the acts of those former Callaway Mills employes, which led to their arrest on April 29 by the state troops, I feel that these men were led into this situation largely by being unduly influenced by people who did not have their best interest at heart.

"I would appreciate your taking this under consideration, and if you find it consistent with the public interest to allow these people to return to their families, I personally would be happy over such a decision."

NEGRO IS ACQUITTED OF SLAYING NEPHEW

Tom Bailey, negro, was acquitted in Fulton superior court yesterday of the slaying of his 2-year-old nephew, who, according to evidence, was killed instantly when the negro fired upon his wife following an argument over a two-cent lottery ticket, when the woman tried to make peace between her husband and a writer. The negro contended he fired into the air to frighten his wife and that the bullet ricocheted.

Bailey was given two 12-months sentences on other charges involving shooting at another and carrying a pistol.

GOV. TALMADGE MAKES PAYMENT TO SCHOOLS

Governor Talmadge paid out $503,694 to the common schools yesterday and from 1935 appropriations and turned $52,000 over to the board of regents to apply on debts of the University System of Georgia.

Common schools to date have received 36 per cent of this year's appropriations, it was shown.

You remember how in Egypt, back in the days of the Pharaohs, they stored up grain during the seven good years so as to be ready for the seven lean years to come . . .

Lean years may come . . . and fat years may go . . .

That's why we have close to a hundred million dollars worth of tobacco packed away in 4½ miles of warehouses to grow mild and naturally sweet.

To make sure that Chesterfields will be uniform in taste and mildness, we have in storage mild, ripe tobaccos from the crops of four years—1931-'32-'33 and '34.

Mild Ripe Tobacco... Aged 2 years or more...

—the farmer who grows the tobacco . . .

—the warehouseman who sells it at auction to the highest bidder . . .

—every man who knows about leaf tobacco—will tell you that it takes mild, ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette; and this is the kind we buy for CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes.

All of the tobaccos used in CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes are properly aged to make them milder and sweeter.

MANUFACTURERS OPEN TEXTILE MEET TODAY

Cotton Mill Men to Study Cotton Problems at Sea Island Session.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Problems confronting the cotton textile industry will be aired in sessions of the 35th annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia, which opens here tomorrow.

George N. Peek, of Washington, D. C., special advisor to President Roosevelt on foreign trade, is on the program of the opening session for an address on "Cotton Textiles and Foreign Trade."

Barry Wright, of Rome, is also on the initial program f or a discussion of some aspects of the "New Deal" as related to industry and to employers and employes.

The visiting mill men are to be welcomed by Dr J. W. Simmons, president of the Brunswick Medical Society. The response will be by W. N. Banks, of Grantville, treasurer of the association.

Thursday afternoon will be devoted to recreation with a golf tournament scheduled for the men and a bridge party and tea for the wives.

The annual banquet will be held tomorrow night in the Cloister hotel, with W. K. Moore, of Dalton, president of the association, to preside. The entertainment program includes songs by Mrs. Julian T. Hightower, of Thomaston, and a humorous speech by Cal Tinney, of Oolagah, Okla.

The convention will close Friday following the election of new officers.

The raw cotton department of the association, composed of the cotton buyers, graders, staplers and classers of the Georgia mills, will also meet tomorrow morning. Dr. H. W. Barre, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, will be the principal speaker. Others on the program are E. C. Westbrook, of the State College of Agriculture, Athens, and C. A. McLendon, Georgia representative of the Department of Agriculture.

BODY OF YOUTH FOUND NEAR TOCCOA TRACKS

TOCCOA, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Efforts to identify the body of a young man found dead near the railroad tracks here were being made today by Sheriff Fred Stowe.

The sheriff said the body was that of a youth about 18 years old, weighing 135 pounds, five feet, seven inches tall, with brown eyes, dark complexion and "very dark, almost black, hair."

"Apparently, he was riding on a train and fell between the cars," the sheriff said. "His companions knew him as Frenchy Albright, and said they had been with him in transient camps in New Orleans and Atlanta. The Atlanta camp told me his address was in Spokane, Wash., but when I checked, I found there was no such address. The body is being held at an undertaking establishment here, while we are trying to identify it.

"Near the body we found a laundry ticket, addressed 'Albright,' and bearing the notation, '330 Transient Bureau, New Orleans.'"

The court, shown in session, found the soldiers retaliated with their fists when Stephens attacked them. Both guardsmen live in Atlanta. Associated Press photo).

South Carolina Governor Speaks At Bicentennial Fete at Augusta

AUGUSTA Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Governor Olin D. Johnston, of South Carolina, today brought the good wishes of his state to the Augusta bicentennial.

He paid tribute to the leadership of President Roosevelt for making possible an atmosphere of optimism for such an occasion.

"The leadership of the new south is constantly emerging" he declared. "Our literature and art rank with the best; our statesmen are among the strongest; our industrial system, while not perfect, ranks with the best because our employers have mingled mumanitarianism with materialism.

"Georgia and South Carolina," he said, "have advanced to become industrial and agricultural empires through a common heritage."

Governor Johnston called for a solid stand behind the leadership of president Roosevelt.

The Palmetto flag, Old Glory, and the Georgia emblem, together with the newly-adopted "Steamboat" flag of Augusta, were intermingled amid the gaily decorated poles and wires on Broad street, the city's principal thoroughfare.

Situated on the Georgia bank of the Savannah river boundary line between Georgia and South Carolina this city is celebrating its 200th anniversary with a six-day program.

Another colorful parade, including floats from South Carolina, the Parris Island marine band, the Greenville, S. C. municipal band and the Horse creek drum and bugle corps, was the opening feature on today's program.

Tonight other episodes in the pagent which drew a large crowd to the city stadium last night was given. The pagent, with a cast of 3,000 persons, was a panorama of Augusta's history and growth.

Tomorrow will be observed as Georgia day with Governor Eugene Talmadge to speak.

Theft of Directories Puzzles City Police

The Atlanta police department is confronted with two mystery thefts, and so far the most skilled members of the detective bureau have failed to solve the twin mysteries.

The thefts are those of two city directories, one taken from the office of Chief T. O. Sturdivant, and the other from the office of Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole. Cheif Poole yesterday sent a memorandum to police captains and lieutenants asking that search be made for the missing books.

ALDRICH BLASTS BANKING MEASURE

Centralization of Authority in Federal Reserve Board Flayed.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Likening the omnibus banking bill to measures utilized at the time of the destructive German and French inflations, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, predicted today that if all its powers were used the "practical value of all social security legislation" could be swept away.

In as severe a denunciation of the bill as has yet been made, Aldrich, with several aides grouped about him, told a senate banking subcommittee the bill was "potentially despotic" through its centralization of authority over credit and currency in the federal reserve board. The system, he said, would be "set up without check or balance in law and with few restraints in fact."

Reading rapidly from a lengthy prepared statement, Aldrich was interrupted only a few times, principally by Chairman Glass, democrat, Virginia, who agreed with most he said.

"This bill is a measure not of security but of insecurity," Aldrich asserted, "for the exercise of powers freely granted under it can wipe the practical value of all social security legislation off the slate, and make benefits granted to the aged or the unemployed mathematical expressions only."

He said the bill, by granting the reserve board six powers, including one to "dilute the currency" and another to "force the reserve banks to engage in whatever open market operations it may decree," did not liberalize the reserve system but made it over "into an instrument of despotic authority."

After recommending a score of changes, including one to reduce the membership of the reserve board from eight to five by removing the treasury secretary and controller of the currency as ex-officio members and one appointive member, Aldrich ripped into what he termed the "three experiments that misfired" and said they "left behind them a vast amount of explosive material which some future effort may set off."

The three administration "experiments" he listed as failures were the open market policy or purchase of government obligations by the reserve banks, the devaluation of the dollar coupled with the purchase of gold at prices above the old gold parity, and silver buying.

Alaska Bond Measure, Lost, Is Signed by F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt late today signed the "lost bill" authorizing a million dollar bond issue for Ketchikan, Alaska. The measure was duplicated by congress at his request earlier in the day after he had told it that the original bill had been lost in the interior department.

Roosevelt Thanks Fulton Grand Jury

Members of the March-April Fulton county grand jury received a letter yesterday from William H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to President Roosevelt, thanking them for the resolution adopted recently by the jurors condemning Governor Talmadge and Agriculture Commissioner Tom Linder for their attacks upon the president.

The letter, received by B. W. Torrance, foreman of the jury, reads as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Torrance:

"The president has asked me to thank you and your associates for the indorsement of the national administration adopted by the Fulton county grand jury. He is glad to have this acknowledgement of your support.

"WILLIAM H. McINTYRE,
"Assistant Secretary to the President."

MORRISON NAMED TO HEAD DENTISTS AS MEET CLOSES

The annual convention of the Georgia Dental Association came to a close yesterday at the Ansley hotel with election of officers. Dr. Thad Morrison, of Atlanta, was elected president, and Dr. Kingman White, of Savannah, president-elect.

Other officers chosen were Dr. Paul McGee, of Waycross, vice president; Dr. R. H. Murphy, of Macon, secretary; Dr. Harold Choate, of Cartersville, treasurer; Dr. A. A. Lowry, of Valdosta, delegate to the American Dental Association, to serve three years, and Dr. Semon Eisenberg, of Savannah, delegate to the executive council from the state-at-large, also to serve three years.

Fellowship degrees were awarded Dr. Claude Hughes, Dr. M. M. Forbes and Dr. J. G. Williams, of Atlanta, and Dr. J. R. Jordan, of Macon, for outstanding work. The presentations were made by Dr. H. H. Johnson, chairman of the fellowship committee.

BILLY SUNDAY BETTER AFTER HEART ATTACK

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 15. (AP)—His three-week-old revival halted, the Rev. W. A. (Billy) Sunday, of Winona Lake, Ind., was recuperating today from a heart attack—his second in recent years.

The famed evangelist was stricken heer yesterday and his meeting in the First Baptist church here last night was called off while Rev. Sunday stayed under the care of Dr. W. H. Cheney. The physician said he was resting comfortably and barring complications, would recover.

Mrs. W. A. (Ma) Sunday said late last night that her husband was "better now."

FARMER DELUDED BY AAA—PARKER

Economist Raps High U. S. Tariff Policy Before Fire Protection Body.

Cotton producers of Georgia and the south are enjoying temporary prosperity as a result of AAA cash benefits, but the price they will pay for that prosperity is economic suicide, Walter Parker, of Fenner & Beane, New Orleans, a nationally-famed economist, told the National Fire Protection Association, in convention at the Biltmore hotel, yesterday.

Attacking the high tariff policy of the United States, Mr. Parker, speaking on "The Cotton Hazard," declared that during the World War, and after, this country overloaned and oversold at high prices to the remainder of the world to such an extent as to change its economic status from that of a rapidly-expanding, surplus-producing world debtor, to that of a surplus-producing, slowed-down world creditor.

Position of Nation.

"By holding onto its high tariff policy the United States, in effect has told the debtor nations they shall not sell normally to us, but must pay us in gold for large balances due us in a commercial world which is out of balance, largely because the United States, which paid in commodities when it was a world debtor, now handicaps the debtor nations when they attempted to pay the United States in commodities, he declared.

"The world needs the surplus commodities of the United States, but since the debtor nations cannot get dollars with which to pay they are compelled to encourage other regions, which will trade on a normal basis, to develop their production so as to supply the world's needs which formerly were supplied by the United States.

"It is not high prices, but a newly-found economic opportunity which impels Brazil to destroy coffee trees to make room for more cotton. Brazilians can sell every pound of cotton they can produce, for spot cash, just as they could invariably sell coffee for spot cash before valorization caused other coffee regions to expand their production.

Production Elsewhere.

"The cotton policies of the United States are now causing other cotton-raising countries to increase their production, just as Brazil's valorization scheme caused other coffee countries to increase their coffee production.

"Meanwhile, the tragic fate of United States cotton in the world market, is now coming to be matched by the tragic fate of United States textile products in the domestic market.

"Because of increasing costs of production in the United States, resulting from codes, rising costs of living, processing taxes, above-value 12-cent loans, etc., cotton cloths produced in the United States are now so high, relatively, that Japan is able to hurdle the tariff, absorb the 40 per cent reduction in the international purchasing power of the dollar, move raw cotton 5,000 miles, and the finished product 5,000 miles, and then sell cotton cloths under the very noses of United States mills whose raw cotton supply and domestic markets are at their very doors.

"The remedy for this, it seems to me, is not a higher tariff, which inevitably would cause buyers' strikes, but greater economy, less restriction and and less restraint on business here at home.

"Our problem now is to find markets, to compete with other nations, to develop a sound international trade. To do all that, our cost level must be watched most carefully, the channels of trade must be kept clear of artifical obstructions, our goal must be practical.

Effect of Pegging.

"We have learned that the pegging of the price of raw cotton gives an enormous advantage to our competitors abroad. We are now beginning to learn that our price-raising program here at home is endangering our domestic market.

"The law of supply and requirement is an immutable law. Man may, seemingly, thwart that law for a time, but in the end that law will extract a tragic toll from all who attempt to evade it.

"Under present policies, the raw cotton enterprise of the United States is dying and dying rapidly. Momentarily, the cotton producers, as a result of cash benefits, are reflecting some prosperity. But I very much fear the price they will pay for their temporary prosperity will be economic suicide, unless the method of paying these benefits, not the amount of compensating benefits paid, be changed and changed soon.

"It is not too late to save the cotton industry of the United States, but the available time is brief."

Committee Meetings.

Parker's address was the principal speech before the convention yesterday. Following it, the delegates assembled for committee meetings. Committees meeting were those on automatic sprinklers, H. P. Smith, chairman; tanks, A. L. Brown, chairman; public water supplies, Henry E. Halpin, chairman; manufacturing hazards, Benjamin Richards, chairman; use of water to extinguish oil fires, before which A. L. Brown, of the Factory Mutual Laboratories, gave a short address; small hose couplings, R. W. Hendricks, chairman; salvaging operations, William G. Ball, chairman; farm fire protection, David J. Price, chairman; protection against lightning, Morton G. Lloyd, chairman; static electricity, E. E. Turkington, chairman, and electrical committee, A. R. Small, chairman.

Members of the association held their annual banquet last night at the Biltmore. A southern dinner was served. The evening was designated "A Night in Georgia" and featured a program by negro entertainers.

Fair, Cool Weather On City's Menu Today

Atlanta is due for 48 hours of fair, cool weather, with the mercury ranging from 58 to around 78 degrees, according to George W. Mindling, local meteorologist.

Rains which were headed toward Atlanta have been dissipated, and clear weather is in prospect. The lower temperatures will be brought by cool breezes from the Great Lakes region, Mr. Mindling said.

The temperature climbed to 85 degrees yesterday, but relatively high humidity made the day seem much warmer.

Kingsford-Smith Tells Of Near-Death in Air

SYDNEY, Australia, May 15.—(AP) Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australia's trail-blazing aviator, said "I thought we were gone" today after he and two companions won a fight for life over the storm-lashed Tasman sea in the veteran airplane, The Southern Cross.

Nervously puffing on a cigaret, the haggard and drawn Kingsford-Smith gave all the cridit for their escape from death to his navigator, Captain P. C. Taylor.

It was Taylor who coolly risked death after one of three motors dropped into the sea by climbing six times out of the plane's wings, despite howling winds, to transfer oil in the two sputtering motors. Unable to get altitude, the ship then was almost in the water.

They were 850 miles out to sea bearing a cargo of special jubilee mail to Wellington, N. Z., when a propeller and the motor tore loose and plunged into the sea, throwing an extra burden on the other two motors.

GA. TEXTILE WORKERS WILL MEET IN ATLANTA

The Georgia Federation of Textile Workers will hold its summer convention in Atlanta June 14, the conclave having been transferred here from LaGrange, where it was originally scheduled to take place July 5, according to Fred Bearce, of Atlanta, vice president of the federation.

Decision to hold the parley here was reached at a meeting of the executive committee of the federation last week in Columbus. The committee adopted a resolution urging textile workers of the nation to use all influence to have the Textile Labor Relations Board dissolved, and to have all future hearings held before the National Labor Board.

Support to LaGrange textile workers, who are out on strike, was likewise pledged by the executive board, Mr. Bearce said. All textile workers in the state were called upon to support the strikers.

L. H. PARRIS WINS HONOR ENROLLMENT IN BANKING SCHOOL

L. H. Parris, vice president and trust officer of the Citizens and Southern National bank, has just received the honor of being enrolled in the Graduate School of Banking sponsored by the American Bankers' Association, a distinction conferred upon only 200 American bankers.

Enrollment in the school is limited to 200 persons, who must be bank officers and graduates of the American Institute of Banking. The school will convene on the campus of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., for a resident session from June 17 to 29, inclusive. Following this session, the bankers will engage in extension work from August 1, 1935, to June 1, 1936, at which time the resident session will open again. A similar program will be pursued through 1936 and 1937, and upon completion of a three-year course, diplomas will be awarded.

Mr. Parris is regarded as one of the most competent trust officers in the southeast, his banking experience covering a period of 25 years.

NAVY BLIMP IS TORN AFTER TRAINING FLIGHT

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 15.—(AP) The navy training blimp "K 1" was damaged today as it landed on the naval air station field here after a training flight. A member of the ground crew was slightly injured when knocked down by the ship.

Lieutenant Commander Charles Rosendahl, commandant of the station, said the only damage to the blimp was a rip in the fabric of the bag which could easily be repaired.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 16, 1935.

THE MARKET BULLETIN

The use of the Market Bulletin, an official publication of the state government issued by the Department of Agriculture, for any other purpose than that contemplated by the general assembly in making the appropriation for its support, is a subversion of authority that should be, and is, resented by the state and especially by the farmers in whose interest it is supposed to be published.

In order that the Bulletin might not be subordinated to personal or political ends, the general assembly incorporated in the 1932-33 appropriation bill the following rigid and drastic limitations on the matter to appear in it:

Provided further that if at any time the Market Bulletin is used for printing and publishing any matter, whether editorially or otherwise, save and except strictly advertisements for sale or exchange for the farmers of the state of farm products, the governor is hereby authorized and directed to refuse to sign any warrant for the payment of publication or circulation of said Market Bulletin, and same shall thereupon and thereafter cease to be published and circulated.

In the face of this specific instruction, Commissioner Linder has turned the Bulletin into an organ for the airing of his personal views and for the spreading of propaganda against the federal government, going so far as to counsel that Georgi secede from the Union if the administration does not run things to suit him.

The state-wide resentment created by the defiance of the will of the general assembly is forcefully expressed in the following excerpt from a recent editorial in the Macon Telegraph:

Of all the asinine twaddle that has ever appeared in print, this weekly stuff from Tom Linder is about the limit.

And he has been using the Market Bulletin for this kind of tripe, in the face of the law specifying that it shall be used only for setting forth the current market prices for products of Georgia farms, and in so far as practicable furnishing data regarding the available supplies and demand therefor.

If there is any justification in that language for using the Market Bulletin to advocate secession from the Union and denouncing the Washington administration because negro farmers voted at the same place arranged for white farmers in the matter of crop control, we should like for somebody to point it out to us.

Under Commissioner Linder the Bulletin has been largely devoted to political propaganda and ill-judged denunciation of policies evidently overwhelmingly approved by the farmers of the state.

In the last analysis, the $100,000 appropriation made by the general assembly for the issuance of a publication to be devoted solely and exclusively to the interests of the farmers of Georgia is being used instead for political propaganda purposes.

No wonder the federal government has instructed the postmaster in Atlanta to deny the second-class mailing privilege to the Bulletin, if it is to be used for such purpose, for the Bulletin's second-class mailing privilege does not permit political propaganda.

It is time that a stop be put to the misuse of the Market Bulletin and that it be confined to its legitimate sphere as set forth in the plain and specific instructions of the general assembly.

NOW, STICK TO IT!

The announced intention of the police committee of council to weed out of the department members either physically or mentally unfit and to replace them with athletes fully qualified to discharge their duties wisely and efficiently promises a new deal in police affairs.

It is a wise decision, and if it is rigidly adhered to the standard of policing in Atlanta will be revolutionized.

In the very nature of things, a policeman who is old or not in proper physical condition and who is not alert mentally cannot be expected to properly discharge his duties.

The past quarter of a century has seen a radical change in the type of the average American policeman. The day of the easy-going policeman with helmet and billy has long since gone, and in the majority of American cities such types have been replaced by finely trained, physically fit and mentally alert officers.

While the helmet and billy have disappeared in Atlanta, the type of officer they represented remains. It is not surprising that visitors coming to Atlanta from cities where energetic and intelligent officers are the rule express surprise at the presence on the streets of stoop-shouldered, fat-stomached and sallow-faced policemen who are manifestly unable to protect the safety of the public when a crisis arises.

If any such men are still on the force it is largely because of the iniquitous influences of politics in the board and the department. The board has promised that this influence shall have no weight in the weeding out of the unfit members of the force and the selection of the men to take their places.

The executive heads of the department cannot be justly blamed for the continuance of crime and traffic conditions unless the force is made up of efficient men. If the personnel of the force is improved and conditions are not bettered, then it will be time for a shake-up in the commanding officers of the department.

The public will watch with keen interest the extent to which the board lives up to its promise to put on the pension list officers who have outlived their usefulness and replace them with men who can be expected to efficiently protect the lives and property of the people of the city.

ATLANTA A CRIME-WAR BASE

With the establishment here of an office of the crime detection forces of the Department of Justice, and the designation of the city as a link in the nation-wide radio system of the department, Atlanta becomes one of the chief bases from which the government will conduct its fight against organized crime.

The new office of the Department of Justice will be in charge of one of its ablest operatives and will be equipped with machine guns, high-power rifles, bullet-proof vests, and all the other accoutrement that has been called into service by the federal government to match the weapons used by modern criminals.

The federal forces will not take over any of the work of the local peace officers in this territory. Rather they will work in co-operation with local police forces, extending the facilities of the government which are not possessed by individual communities and the benefit of the experience gained by federal operatives in their successful campaign of the past two years against the gangs that had defeated the utmost efforts of police and plainclothes men even in the largest cities in the country.

In this assistance the new radio system being worked out by the federal government will be of far-reaching importance. With it the entire country will be blanketed, with the result that within a brief time of the commission of a major crime in this section, the police of every other part of the country will be on the lookout for those responsible.

The police departments of Atlanta and every other community in the southeast should take full advantage of the opportunity for expert aid offered by the opening of the Department of Justice office in Atlanta.

Bandits in Michigan took $1,000 away from the offices of an automobile time payment company without making it clear it was a carrying charge.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Place of Refuge.

A barren wilderness 10 years ago, Palestine has undergone such a profound transformation that today the ancient Holy Land represents not only the only solid hope of the hard-pressed Jewish people, but it is also the sole country in the world where Jewish immigration is possible. In spite of the frantic efforts of the League of Nations commission for refugees to secure a temporary asylum for the hunted German Jew in other countries, Palestine alone was able to take care of the first exodus from the new nazi house of bondage.

America, the great traditional "land of the free" which has provided a refuge and a home for millions of European men and women who were persecuted for freedom's or religion's sake in the past, was prevented by the economic crisis from helping to any appreciable extent this time. Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Czechoslovakia, which were nearer to the scene of trouble and therefore more profoundly impressed with the ghastliness of the situation, made a magnificent effort and each took in a number of German Jewish intellectuals, but Palestine assured an outlet for the mass emigration and was able to absorb the newcomers in productive life.

In spite of the constant influx of immigrants Palestine is still clamoring for workers. The shortage of labor is more acute today than it was a year ago. Employers are actually meeting incoming ships at the ports of Haifa and Jaffa to offer jobs to arriving immigrants. That such a situation should have arisen in poor, despised, barren Palestine, a land of prayers and pious memories, was unthinkable even three years ago.

German Jews.

It is one of the most amazing freaks of history, too, that the German Jews, who, on the whole, were the most determined opponents of the Zionist movement and of the plan for the redemption of the Land of Israel, are the first Jewish community to whom the regenerated new Palestine appears today as a godsend. The land they despised, at the mention of which they shrugged their shoulders so contemptously but a few years ago, and German Jews in America still do this frequently, presents the only hope of survival for these people.

A freak of fate? Perhaps it isn't. Perhaps this is something else. "The stone which was rejected by the builders, lo, it has become the keystone in the arch," writes the Hebrew psalmist of old. The keystone in the arch of Jewish life all over the world is Eretz Israel, Palestine today, nothing less.

Significance to Non-Jews.

There is in Palestine today the beginning of a Hebraic renaissance. There is today a gathering in Palestine of Jews from every part of the world and not only Jews who have come on a pious or sentimental pilgrimage, but Jews who have come to live here, build homes, raise children and integrate themselves into the national life. I spoke to Jews from South Africa, from Poland, from China, Germany, Singapore, Brazil, Sweden, Russia, Abyssinia, England, the United States, Yemen, Morocco, France and Holland and I don't know what other country. Palestine was their new home. They had not merely come to die within the consoling nearness of the ancient holy places, they had come to live. There they were.

Is this not a fulfilment of prophecy? Is this not an event in world history worth watching by believing Christians? To the orthodox Christian who knows his Bible the return of the Jew to Palestine is an event definitely linked by prophecy with apocalyptic happenings. It is nothing less than the condition for the beginning of a messianic era. It is difficult to see how the meaning of the miraculous rebirth of Palestine has so long escaped the attention of our Christian leaders, generally speaking.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

HOW MANY LUMPS, TUBBY?

A teaspoonful of ordinary lump (cube) of sugar yields 30 calories. Few persons consume less than four or five spoonfuls or lumps a day. In fact, according to federal statistics the per capita consumption of sugar is now 112 pounds a year, and from here it looks as though not all the sugar ingested yields muscular energy. Unquestionably a considerable portion of it is converted into superfluous fat. Even so, it is incredible that every man, woman and child in the country, in the average eats sugar in excess of 5,000 calories a day. The government figures apply to the sugar sold, not to the sugar actually consumed by human beings. A fair day's ration for an adult doing light work would be 2,800 to 3,300 calories—counting every bit of any kind of food taken.

But suppose you are an exceptionally abstemious person in your sugar ration. Say you take two level teaspoonfuls or two ordinary lumps in your tea or coffee daily, and three or four more spoonfuls in your cake, cookie, ice cream or lady fingers, bit of candy, bite of pie, dab of pudding, thimbleful of sherbet or your favorite fountain beverage. Five tablespoonfuls in all—instead of the ration the government allows you, approximately 5 ounces. This would yield 150 calories daily—so much velvet, over and above your ordinary food.

Now if my arithmetic is not as terrible as usual 150 calories more or less would be 5 per cent more or less than an ordinary maintenance diet for an adult doing light work. You'll never know till you try and try earnestly getting along without your sugar ration for a month, how much control over body weight this seemingly insignificant item has.

Yes, yes, so do I. In fact I don't want any coffee at all if I can't have it sweetened. But a wee tablet of saccahrin (saccharine to you, old timer), a tablet containing from 1-4 to 1-2 grain, sweetens a cup of coffee as satisfactorily as a lump or a spoonful or more of sugar.

Saccharin in just the right quantity gives a sweet taste that leaves nothing to be desired. But get a wee bit too much saccharin in it and it tastes bitter. Have to experiment till you find precisely the right amount to suit your taste. The use of saccharin in this way is harmless in any quantity up to 5 grains a day.

Saccharin, benzosulphinide, is 500 times as sweet as cane sugar, is not a food and therefore serves as a substitute for sweetening tea, coffee, or cocoa, for diabetic or obese subjects.

Just another little suggestion for the stout boys and girls who, like the gink who runs this column, want to stay young and slender so long as they don't have to give up tea or cofee. And in case anybody is in earnest about it, here is still another suggestion: Many overweight individuals who have included an optimal vitamin ration in their moderate reduction regimen find that they become less susceptible to that abnormal craving for sweets. As some of them express it, their stomach must be shrinking, for they are satisfied with less food than they formerly required.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

MICROPHONE STABILIZATION WASHINGTON, May 15. Money men have been wondering why Mr. Morgenthau suddenly developed a radio urge to express himself about the American dollar. No one has asked him about it lately. Heretofore he has touched this subject only with a 10-foot pole.

The fact that he arranged radio time to unburden himself before the world has spawned a rumor that an international money agreement may be reached before the disintegration of what is left of the gold bloc. This does not appear to be true.

ALIBI What seems to have happened is that Mr. Morgenthau secretly and unofficially sounded out some of the nations on stabilization and found them in a very disagreeable mood. There are reasons for suspecting Britannia flatly snubbed Mr. Morgenthau's indirect feelers on more than one occasion, the last of which was recent.

The failure of these moves left Mr. Morgenthau standing in the middle of the car tracks of the world, alone with his dollar, a much misunderstood man. The simplest solution was to remove from himself the blame for continuing unsettled currencies by a public statement.

This seems to be about all there was to it.

OUTLOOK The money seers with the best eyes can now detect the beginning of a world clamor for stabilization. It will eventually result in another international economic conference—eventually, but probably not any time soon. In the end we will have to take the initiative because we broke up the last one. Mr. Morgenthau already has taken the first hesitant step by establishing his dollar alibi.

RATIO The gold-silver ratio in Mr. Morgenthau's address seemed to be about 99 to 1. At least 99 per cent of his address related to gold and 1 per cent to silver. All he said about Father Coughlin's metal was: "We are also endeavoring to restore silver to greater usefulness as a monetary metal."

Do not be fooled into suspecting from this that the treasury is getting ready to ease down on its silver policy. The silver politicians know different.

GHOULISH DIPLOMACY The warmth of life had not left the body of Marshal Pilsudski (Poland's George Washington) before the politicians of Europe started grabbing at Poland.

Herr Hitler moved first by sending condolences before anyone else could. That was not all. His diplomatic sorrow for Poland had to be spectacular, so his right-hand-holder, Goering, the man of many uniforms, was designated, along with two nazi generals, to attend the funeral. State Secretary Meissner was sent to the Polish legation to see that Hitler's name appeared first in the condolence book. Then came the climax, when Hitler announced he would enter a disapproved church to attend memorial services. The answer is that Hitler is playing energetically against France and the Russians for Polish support.

Old Pilsudski was very adept in this situation. He played with Hitler one day and France the next. Now there is danger that his successors may not be as shrewd. That means trouble.

POLITICS The right key to the Farley matter seems to rest in the unspoken attitude of the progressive republicans. They said privately that they thought Huey Long had a very weak case against the postmaster-general. But they all dislike Farley and voted for a senatorial investigation of him because they hoped it would uncover something better.

Political pressure was strong on the other side of the aisle. In fact, it was so strong that Huey quietly released a few of his own democratic friends. His move was lost anyway. There was no need to cause them embarrassment by requiring them to vote with him. Two absented themselves, two others voted against him and one, who had publicly announced his support of Huey, also voted against him.

This probably will save them from the wrath of the Farley regime in matters of patronage, etc.

COST President Roosevelt's special cabinet committee is trying to find out how much the cotton processing tax costs consumers. AAA-ers point to the fact that the tax is but 4.2 cents per pound of cotton and contend it is negligible as a price factor in a cotton shirt. Textile men have a different view. They say it is not so much the tax as the mark-ups as cloth passes through various processes.

The only real data were dug up by the Federal Trade Commission some time ago. They indicate the processing tax adds about 10 per cent to the cost of cotton goods. In other words, a $1 shirt will cost $1.10 due to the tax.

NOTES Auto production for this month has been ruined by the strike. The output of one low-priced car dropped two-thirds in one week.

Professor Tugwell has privately submitted to the White House a plan to build houses here for administrative assistants in the government.

A wealthy young businessman decided to enter the New Deal and finally begged a job in General Wood's office. He wanted to quit the first day. He came to work at 8 a. m., and was kept until after midnight.

Stabilization is like the weather. Everyone talks about it, but no one ever does anything about it.

The Germans Who Despise Einstein Are Those Who Are Ignorant of Science

By Robert Quillen

Since the wisdom of Providence divided mankind into different races, and things that are different cannot be equal, peace is constantly threatened by the arrogance of one race and the hurt pride of another.

The difference between races would matter little if all men felt as the Indian did before a benevolent government began to protect and degrade him.

Like the Seminole of today, the free Indian was proud of his race. No contrast or defeat could make him concede the white man's superiority. He suffered in many ways, but he never felt the hurt of shame.

Other races, treated as inferiors, angrily assert and proclaim their equality but secretly doubt it, and from this doubt develops a malice that is more bitter than any other hatred.

Those who do most to feed the flame of this malice and those who suffer most because of it are the lowest class of the superior race and the highest class of the inferior race.

Consider, for example, the relationship of American whites and Chinese when the west was young. It is always politic to use the Chinese as an illustration, for nobody depends on their patronage or votes.

Most of the Chinese who came to this country in those days belonged to the coolie class, and were in fact unquestionably inferior to high-class white men.

By immemorial custom, their color made them inferior to the lowest-class white man, also, and this led to trouble. It was more a theory than a fact, and the white bum, ignorant, lousy and unwashed, felt it necessary to use violence to convince himself of his superiority.

Innocent and bewildered Chinese were stoned in the street and sometimes shot for no particular reason except their race.

High-class white people became fond of their Chinese servants and treated them kindly. They were certain of their superiority and saw no reason to assert it.

The greatest sufferers, as always, were the few high-class Chinese. Cultured, wise and refined, they were superior to the lowest class of whites by every standard used to measure men; yet they were "darned Chinks" to the white bums they despised. Their hurt was deep, for nothing rankles in the soul like being scorned by inferiors.

They were not scorned by upper-class whites, but treated with the respect they deserved, and therein lies the hope of the world.

600 Chinese Reds Reportedly Slain

SHANGHAI. —(Thursday), May 16.—(UP)—The official Kuo Min news agency today reported that 600 Chinese "reds" had been killed and hundreds captured by government troops at the interior village of Tumen, center of anti-communist activities at present.

The loyal forces attacked the communist stronghold, which held out for two days.

Mill Employe Freed In Fatal Gun Affray

George Freeman, former employe of Fulton Bag & Cotton mills, was acquitted in Fulton superior court yesterday of the slaying of Charlie Scott, also mill employe, who was fatally shot in Freeman's home last December 1 during the course of an argument. The jury debating Freeman's fate was out only 10 minutes. The defendant in his statement told the jury he shot in self-defense when Scott threatened him with a knife.

A demonstration in the courtroom after spectators had been warned resulted in a reprimand by Judge James C. Davis, presiding at the trial. Assistant Solicitor-General John Hudson, when applause followed a reading of the verdict, ordered the courtroom doors closed and requested all who applauded to stand, but there was no response. William Schley Howard, who defended Freeman, spoke in behalf of the crowd, mostly mill workers, pleading ignorance of proper courtroom decorum on the part of the spectators.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Bargain Hunting. NEW YORK, May 15.—It strikes me that Mr. Roosevelt, who arrived in Washington full of confidence and power in the role of a benevolent dictator, has succumbed to the temptation which gets all the presidents and for a long time has hampered himself in his work by trying to make the people keep on loving him until next election day. The people's love is not a pure sentiment, however, being for sale like baloney, by the slice. If he would indorse the Townsend plan he would purchase for himself at the expense of the country the monetary loyalty of the 25,000,000 eligibles, children of eligibles who would enjoy living on their parents' pensions and almost-eligibles who would like to retire in a year or two and give themselves over to a continuous round of pleasure and sumptuous ease in the tourist camps along the highways. If Mr. Roosevelt wants the approval of all but a fortunate few veterans of the war who stand to lose more in taxes than they would gain in cash by the passage of the Patman bill he can buy it wrapped and delivered to the White House by putting his name to this grant. He can buy up Huey Long's following to the last voter by giving them all $5,000 per head, or whatever the latest Huey Long figure is, plus a rose-clad cottage and an income. But obviously this would not be judicious shopping. It would work out, as the English say, at too great a cost per vote—and the president must look for bargains in loyalty.

He has already bought back the government employes who became unbought when their wages were cut 15 per cent early in his administration by restoring their wages to them. And no doubt he has been turning over in his mind the problem of how much loyal affection he can buy with the $4,880,000,000 which has been made his to spend for re-election if he should wish to use it for that purpose.

Desire Betrayed. The best friends of the president will hardly argue seriously that the thought has never entered the president's head. Even a president without ambition to succeed himself—if such there ever could be—would have seen the possibility even if he were not tempted by it. And almost from the beginning, through the operations of Mr. Jim Farley, Mr. Roosevelt has betrayed a desire to be elected again.

Thus he has lost some of the fine independence which might have been his—and a great novelty, too, in the White House—if he had kept on as he started. The people are an unappreciative employer, forever complaining and rarely congratulating a president for helpful achievement or diligent attention to business. Mr. Roosevelt has paid too much attention to his fan mail, and his occasional fireside chats, which started out to be pep-talks, have taken on a "How am I doin'?" character which bespeaks a desire for a few cheers.

Course Altered. He ought to know by now that cheers are nothing but noise and that the loudest cheers come from those who have just received checks from the treasury. He could hardly hope for re-election if he were to take the attitude that he was hired to do a job under a four-year contract and meant to go down the line with it according to his own ideas. This seemed to be his thought at the start of the administration, and it may be that for a little while there in the early days he had no idea but to do his very best in all respects and let the office seek the man for a return engagement at the end of his first term. But it wasn't long until the president was detected making plans for the future in an obvious willingness to meet the office a little more than halfway.

The fascination of the job is hard to understand. It is the most enormous headache in the entire world, the associations with politicians are low, socially brutal and disillusioning and the pay is not so great but that a man who has held the job for one term can make at least twice as much if he wants to get out and hustle. Calvin Coolidge and Theodore Roosevelt made large incomes putting down one little word after another for publication, and Franklin Roosevelt could continue to ride the cushions the rest of the way through life even if he threw the job in the people's face at the end of his present term and told them to go ahead and give it to Huey Long.

Respect Fades. I wonder if the teachers still tell the children that a future president might be sitting in their very midst, and if so whether they take that as an inspiration or a solemn warning. Presidents aren't much respected any more, and when a man has been dead a few years inevitably out comes the intimate biography attempting to make a bum of him by revealing that he ate crackers in bed, kicked his dog, fought with his wife and shot paper wads with a rubber band in church.

3 Carolinans Indicted In Banking Violation

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 15.—(AP) James R. Boyd, president of the First National bank, of Waynesville; his son, James R. Boyd Jr., and D. R. Noland, Waynesville businessman and farmer, were indicted here today by a federal grand jury on charges of violation of the banking laws.

Boyd, a former member of the state legislature, was charged in two counts of borrowing $40,000 on January 16 and $38,000 on December 31 from the Chase National bank, of New York, without making a written report to the directors of the Waynesville bank as required by law.

His son, an employe of the bank, was accused in four counts of abstraction and misapplication of funds of the bank, the indictment alleging he misapplied personal checks which he issued at the time he had no account with the bank.

Noland, a member of the state board of agriculture, was indicted on three counts on charges of using his official connection with the bank to borrow funds in violation of the law. Noland is vice president and a director of the bank.

Atlanta's Parks Only Hobby Of Simons, Gonzalez Finds

GEORGE IRVINE SIMONS—"The result is really a Nordic-looking type suggesting Viking ancestry. . . . But he comes from Augusta . . . never been near the Norway coast. . . . Grew up next to a can of printer's ink and a galley of type . . ." writes Gonzalez.

By MORO GONZALEZ,
Noted Mexican Caricaturist.

George Irvine Simons, general manager of Atlanta parks, walks into the newspaper office . . . He's ambushed—caught in the net . . .

It happens quick as a flash . . . Before he knows what it's all about he finds himself posing . . .

His blond head is done in black and white . . . The result is a really nordic looking type suggesting Viking ancestry . . . He comes from Augusta—never been anywhere near the Norway coast . . . has just completed his 25th year as a citizen of Atlanta . . .

George was raised in the composing rooms of the newspapers of this city . . . He grew up right next to a can of printer's ink and a galley of type . . . Twenty-two years a printer—he says the composing room is now his second love . . .

He claims no eccentricities . . . vows his greatest love is Atlanta parks—looks after their well-being . . . George is a fine sort of chap—and won't say much about himself . . . but has many words to say about the park system . . .

Grant Park Is "Pet."

If he has a pet park it is Grant park . . . He tells about animal life in the newly acquired Briarcliff zoo given to the city by Asa Candler . . . He beams and is enthusiastic when discussing that wondrous masterpiece, "The Cyclorama" . . . That is something that people everywhere have heard about . . . It is the remarkable work depicting the "Battle of Atlanta" . . . Simons tells us that was a battle in which 35,000 men were killed and wounded . . .

Simons then explains that the blue of the painting blends into the blue of the sky . . . Now they are making the base of the cyclorama blend with the terrain—merge with the ground . . . Sculpturesque figures are placed in the foreground to heighten the illusion . . . Right proud is George of the added improvement enhancing the artistry of the unique 400-foot spectacle . . .

Claims No Credit.

For all there is that is creditable about the parks he claims no credit . . . Those who know about it will say without reservation that the Atlanta park system is one of the finest in the southeast . . . George sums up by saying the most popular summer sports in Atlanta are swimming, baseball, tennis and golf . . . Further data from Simons: There are 14 hard ball and 11 soft ball diamonds now in full swing . . .

Parks is all he'll speak about . . . so here be the tale about that sort of thing . . . It is his hobby and his work . . . Art is something else . . . Simons is willing to mess with it if I'll tell about the parks . . . I seen my duty . . .

I'll be 'asseing' ya in Grant park . . .

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK

(Copyright, 1935, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.—Max Reinhardt has made a few changes in his first screen masterpiece, "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

First and foremost, Reinhardt removed the color sequences which had been introduced into the picture. He did so on the ground that you can't spot a picture with color—that it has to be all or nothing. The jump from gray and white or black and white to color disturbed the entire tenor of the picture and Reinhardt asked that the scenes be left the same as the remainder of the picture, so the audience would not be jolted out of the mood of the story.

Mrs. Bottom—a Hollywood-conceived character (slight improvement? on Shakespeare's original idea)—was stricken from the story. The picture will not be released until autumn. No Hollywood studio likes to release a master film during the summer months. It was Irving Thalberg who once told me that the sun vogue and the beach tan vogue, which were growing from year to year throughout America, were destroying the picture business during the warm weather months. People full of sun do not want to go to the pictures at night. . . . They can hardly wait to throw themselves down for a night's sleep. Sun is the great soporific.

Reinhardt has great hopes for this first picture. So great that he has turned down sufficient offers from colleges throughout America for productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" that it comes to the sacrifice of a million dollars. But he feels that so many productions of this type now would rob his film of so many thousand box office purchases that he would suffer in the long run.

It just occurs to me that the first time I talked with Max Reinhardt he was producing "The Miracle" in San Francisco. He told me at that time he had no interest whatsoever in motion pictures. That was pre-Hitler, pre-depression and a bit previous, judging from the interest he is taking in his first movie.

Hawthorne Removed As Florida Attorney

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 15.—(AP)—The senate late today removed N. Vernon Hawthorne from the post of state's attorney at Miami.

The senate was in executive session for 20 minutes before the decision was announced by Secretary Robert Davis.

Earlier, a senate committee heard Hawthorne explain why he did not accede to Governor Sholtz's order that the prosecutor go to Moore Haven to handle a grand jury investigation of several slayings.

It was for the refusal that the governor asked the senate to remove Hawthorne.

National Maritime Day Proclaimed by F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(UP)—President Roosevelt, in a proclamation today, called to the people of the United States to observe May 22 as National Maritime Day, the anniversary of the first voyage of the steamship Savannah from Savannah, Ga., to Europe.

Talmudic Tales

By DAVID MORANTZ

NO. 22.

(Based upon the ancient legends found in the Talmud, which work embodies the civil and canonical laws and traditions of the Jewish people.)

THE SERPENT'S TAIL.

One day the serpent's tail said to the head:

"Why should I not also lead sometimes? I must always stay in the background while you always appear foremost. Am I not as capable of leading as you?"

"You may have your wish," replied the head, and he relinquished the lead to the tail.

The very first thing the tail did then was to drag the body into a muddy ditch. Next it floundered into a fiery furnace and escaping from that it found itself entangled in a patch of thorns.

By this time it came to a realization of its shortcomings and lack of ability to lead and was willing to delegate the leading to the head and resume its place where it properly belonged.

Says the Talmud further:

"Be not overanxious to be at the head of the table."

"It is not the place that honoreth the man, but the man that adorns the place."

"One must not place the crown merited by him upon his own head, but should let others do it, as it is written: (Prov. XXII) 'Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips.'"

GIRL SAID KIDNAPED FROM TOURIST CAMP

KANKAKEE, Ill., May 15.—(UP) Richard Williams, of Toldo, reported today that his 16-year-old daughter, Silver, had been kidnaped from her bed at a tourist camp near here.

Deputy sheriffs began a search for Jimmy Young, 35, a transient camper who disappeared from the camp early this morning, shortly before the girl's disappearance was discovered.

Williams told authorities the girl was asleep when he and his wife looked in on her at midnight.

CUBA WILL EXTRADITE KIDNAP SUSPECT TRIO

Three Caught Passing Ransom Notes, in U. S., Mexico, Will Be Sought.

HAVANA, May 15.—(AP)—First steps toward the extradition of three Cubans accused of complicity in the kidnaping of Eutimio Falla Bonet, who paid a ransom of $300,000, were taken tonight.

The department of justice started study of a report from the special court investigating the case for the purpose of preparing the charges and turning them over to the state department for action.

The court held that ample evidence exists in its files to show that Evaristo Ulloa, former captain in the Cuban navy; Miguel Angel Fernandez De Velasco, former cabinet member, and Reynaldo Jordan, former sub-secretary of education, had taken part in the case.

Ulloa recently was arrested in Miami, Fla., for attempting to pass ransom bills but was released a few hours later. The other two were questioned by police at Mexico, D. F., a few days ago, but were not held.

Police said formal extradition requests would be forwarded to the United States government for the detention and extradition of Ulloa and to the Mexican goverment in the cases of the other two. They added that the state department was expected to ask for search of the effects of the three and seizure of the ransom money believed to be in their possession.

CUBA IS TRANQUIL, McGILL DISCOVERS

They followed one from the docks as the ship landed. They greeted the clippers of the air.

Vendors of all sorts of vicious things worked openly. The sea wall along the harbor and the famous and beautiful Malecon drive was filled nightly by sleeping men and women who had no homes. It was nothing to see families sleeping in doorways.

Sugar was down to nothing. A few years before there had been "The Dance of the Millions." The war had come and America had said to Cuba, "Grow sugar." And then, "Grow more sugar," and again, "Grow still more sugar." And Cuba had responded.

The year 1920 saw "The Dance of the Millions." Cuba exported almost $800,000,000 worth of goods that year, mostly sugar. Men cutting cane in the fields had automobiles and wore silk shirts and underwear as they swung their big knives. And then one morning the dream was shattered, sugar was down to nothing.

The tariff bill of 1931, imposing new duties on Cuban goods, hastened the decline. The depression came to Cuba five years before it did to the rest of the world and it is just now, because of the new government and the New Deal at Washington, beginning to relinquish its grip.

Meanwhile, President Gerardo Machado, whose parents had been suspected of curious cattle deals in 1898, so much so that mothers of daughters in the better families forbade their daughters to dance with a young fellow called Gerardo, had come to be president of Cuba. He spent more money and was charged with helping himself to a great deal of it, than any previous president.

Hate for Machado Deep.

Hate for Machado became too deep to restrain. He attempted to restrain it with his army and a force of terrorists.

And succeeded for a while. There were murders by the government. A secret society called "The A. B. C.," composed of the better Cubans, came into existence. The schools were closed. There was stalking poverty and hunger everywhere. Machado lived behind guards.

I saw him a few days before the end. The island was seething with hatred. The prisons were full. People spat when they mentioned his name. The president of the largest business concern in Cuba opened a dictionary and pointed to the word "Monster" when I asked him what he thought of Machado.

His name came to be linked with a system of government which is known today as "Machadoism" and any type of government such as his is called "Machadistic" and it is a simile for murder, graft and oppression.

He was a big, gross man. And that day, in a room with guards at the door, he sat and spoke in platitudes of his misguided people who loved him.

I had come past machine guns and guard after guard to see him. And his people would have torn him to pieces could they have reached him.

And then one day in August, 1933, on the 11th to be exact, he fled. The city went wild. There was no law. The palace was looted. His terrorists were caught and many of them killed. The city went on a hunt for all "Machadists."

Today you may drive through the Miramar section, the richest section of all, and see a great house gutted by fire.

"One of Machado's rich friends lived there," the driver of your car will say.

Another one will have all the windows broken out and the door gone. The patio and the yard will be high in weeds.

"One of the Machado officials lived there," the driver will say.

A palace will be pointed out, "It is confiscated by the government. One of the Machado houses." And so on.

Scars Remain.

The scars he left are to be seen in scenes such as these. But there are greater scars.

Events followed quickly. With Machado gone, (he had resigned), a provisional government was set up. He left General Alberto Herrera, secretary of war, and he appointed Carlos Manuel Cespedes as secretary of state. He then resigned and Cespedes became provisional president.

But the pent up storm and hates of eight years was too much and on the night of September 4, 1933, the army had its own revolution and the name of Sergeant Fulgencio Batista appeared in the papers. He, it seemed, was in charge of the army. It was astounding. But true.

And Cespedes resigned. In went Grau San Martin and while he was not a communist he did inspire a tremendous upheavel of all the subversive forces.

The Grau government, unrecognized by the United States, lasted four months. All Cuban business was hostile to it. And in January of 1934 Carlos Mendieta was inaugurated as provisional president.

It was he whom I saw, he and Batista, the unknown, and they become the story

New Air of Hope.

Today Cuba has peace. There is a new air of hope, an air of expectation. Cuba looks cleaner. Crops are better. The tourists are coming back.

Carlos Mendieta, the gentleman farmer who sacrificed his private life to take the provisional presidency, and the ex-sergeant who became head of the army, have done this job And done it well.

(Note—In the next article there will be told the amazing story of Fulgencio Batista, "the man of the hour," in Cuba.)

Cuba Shows Dixie Newspapermen Tranquil Vista of Ancient Beauty

HAVANA, Cuba, May 15.—(By Air Mail)—More than a dozen newspapermen, representing the southern states of Georgia, Alabama and Florida, Wednesday were the guests of the government's tourist bureau in an all-day trip to Matanzas, one of the chief Cuban cities.

It is one of the older cities of the nation and one which offers a view of conditions which are largely unchanged in the past two centuries insofar as buildings are concerned. Its churches and its scenery are unsurpassed in Cuba.

Yesterday the visitors were the guests of the president, Carlos Mendieta, at the capitol terrace where the first international airplane "train" was formally received. The plane with its two gliders arrived from Miami.

In the afternoon, following the reception for the air train, they were the guests of the reporters and editors of the city of Havana.

On Monday the visitors were received by President Mendieta at the presidential palace and the president greeted them warmly, pointing out that conditions in Cuba were peaceful and asked them to carry his cordial salutations to the people of the United States.

Following the visit to the palace, the newspapermen were received by United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery, of New Orleans, who has done such a splendid job in restoring relations between the government here and that of his country.

In the afternoon the visitors visited the statue to Jose Marti, who is to Cuba what George Washington is to the United States. A wreath was placed on the base of the statue and a tribute paid the memory of Marti, who himself was one of the famous newspapermen of Cuba in addition to being a leader in the army. Ralph McGill voiced the group's tribute.

A dinner at the Mirimar Yacht Club completed Monday's entertainment. On Sunday the party had visited the Havana Yacht Club, the races at Orienta park and had been entertained with a tea.

the Norfolk Southern railroad in Charlotte.

She said the four went for a pleasure cruise on Lake Lure Tuesday night and that in some way their small power launch overturned, throwing them all suddenly into the water.

Miss Barrow did not know what had become of her companions, but it was established yesterday that the three were drowned. Mr. Jones was the son of a wealthy Charlotte contractor, and Miss Savage was a member of a well-known family in North Carolina.

Police and volunteers began dragging the lake yesterday soon after Miss Barrow reached Lake Lure, but the bodies had not been recovered last night.

Mr. Harmon was known as a good swimmer, and excelled at this sport while he attended the University of Michigan, from which school he was graduated. Friends here recalled that his favorite pastime was swimming, and could not understand his not being able to reach shore. It was thought that he was struck and dazed possibly when the boat overturned.

He was a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., where his father is a prominent dealer in hardwood lumber. Before coming to Atlanta, he was a resident of Detroit, having been connected with General Motors for 10 years. He was a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Early Passage Seen Of Labor Dispute Bill

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(UP) Early passage of the Wagner labor disputes bill—the main prop supporting the present era of industrial peace—was forecast tonight by senate leaders as a survey disclosed only moderate opposition.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, democrat, New York, former German immigrant and author of the bill, opened debate today with a vigorous refutation of charges that the proposal was "radical," "communistic" and would place industry at the mercy of trade unionists.

APPROVAL GIVEN RAILROAD PROBE

Committee Also Lashes Critics of Utility Holding Company Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—The senate interstate commerce committee came a step nearer today to winning a general investigation of railroad financing, and at the same time released a report attacking critics of the bill to abolish all but "necessary" utility holding companies.

The committee, however, had at least one disgruntled member, Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, who contended he had not been permitted time to study the utility bill before being asked to report it out. He planned to submit minority report, he said, and would consult Senator Dieterich, democrat, Illinois. With Hastings, the Illinois senator assailed the committee procedure as well as the sweeping authority contained in the bill to reorganize the power industry and bring it under federal control.

The railroad investigation, long sought by Chairman Wheeler, democrat, Montana, of the interstate commerce committee, today was approved by the audit committee and awaits only formal senate approval of the $25,000 requested for the inquiry into railroad mergers and reorganizations during the past several years.

Wheeler said the investigation, when authorized, would be conducted in co-operation with the interstate commerce commission, which he expected would begin work upon it at once. Senate hearings will begin next fall, he said.

In the committee report on the holding company bill, drafted under supervision of Senator Wheeler, critics of the legislation were declared to be misleading the public.

Jury Fails to Indict In Chain Letter Case

DENVER, May 15.—(AP)—The federal government's first effort to stop the flow of cash chain letters throughout the nation failed today when a grand jury here declined to indict three men against whom federal officials had carefully prepared a case.

'Sleeping Beauty' Walks 5 Miles in Nightgown

COPPERHILL, Tenn., May 15. (AP)—Miss Maggie Griffin's sleeping sickness took her on a five-mile hike last night to the dismay of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin, when they found her bed empty at 10:30 p. m.

The 19-year-old girl, who has been sleeping soundly since Sunday, was found at 5:30 o'clock this morning on the porch of the Tennessee Copper Company hospital here by Ike Humphrey, negro attendant.

Clad only in a nightgown and carrying a sheet and blanket, Miss Griffin was taken back to her home near Ducktown, where Dr. C. W. Struss reported she awakened at 8 a. m.

FLA. SENATE REJECTS CHAIN STORE CLAUSES

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 15.—(UP)—The senate today rejected major amendments to the anti-chain stores bill with the result that the measure will likely go to conference. Appointment of a conference committee to adjust the differences in sentiment between the two legislative branches is expected tomorrow.

The senate would not accept the house's referendum clause which would submit the "Florida recovery act" in a referendum July 23. The senate proposed submission of the bill at the next primary or general election in 1936.

Neither would the senate agree with the house's position that all Florida-owned chains should be driven out of the state along with foreign-owned establishments.

Two points were removed from the controversy, however, when the senate accepted an amendment placing chain agricultural supply houses under the effect of the bill.

But amendments subjecting hotel shops, seed, feed and grain stores to the effect of the measure were rejected.

EDUCATIONAL MEASURES GET ATTENTION IN S. C.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 15.—(AP) General education measures were partley formulated in free conference tonight on the eve of a grapple in the legislature over administration policies.

Both a basic school bill and a textbook rental bill took shape in committee rooms although they were not expected to be presented before tomorrow night. Talk of an added power tax bobbed up in connection with the school bill.

ANTI-RABIES MEASURE OFFERED IN ALABAMA

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 15.—(AP)—Senator Will O. Walton, of Chambers, today introduced the state health department sponsored anti-rabies bill in the upper house and announced he would push its passage, despite the defeat of a similar measure in the house of representatives last week.

The bill provides that all dogs shall be licensed and inoculated against rabies. A fee of $1 is assessed for the serum, treatment and license.

uted much of the "grave problems of unemployment and business depression" to its reduced volume, and added:

"Our effort to rebuild American foreign trade is being carried steadily forward—with the necessary safeguards against currency fluctuations. Signs are not lacking that other governments, finding other methods unsatisfactory, are now disposed to direct their policy in the same direction.

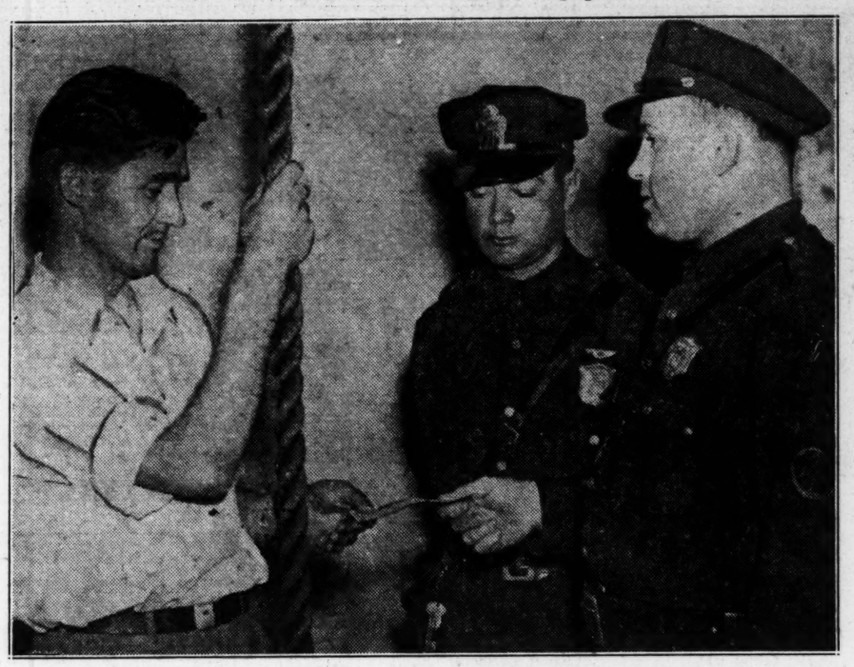

"All progress made in extending world trade makes it easier to regularize currency relationships. Correspondingly, all progress in this direction makes it much easier and safer for governments to arrange for an extension of trade.

"These movements supplement each other. As trade grows and currencies approach a condition of stability the rigid control over exchanges which many governments now exercise can be lessened or abolished. These exchange controls were imposed in many instances with a view of protecting the value of national currencies.

"Experience seems to show that while they may serve this purpose during critical periods, it is at the hindrance of trade interests. Experience also seems to show that their use to gain trade advantage is short-lived and at the expense of other countries which in turn take steps to counteract that advantage.

"The progress of trade agreements and the expansion of foreign trade are intimately related to progress made toward a greater measure of exchange stability and a better balance of prices."

Insistent Tolling of Repeal Bell Hushed When Irked Citizens Appeal to Police

Police authority won respite yesterday from persistent tolling of the bell of the Central Baptist church, but it took several trips, the service of a copy, and, finally, threat of a jail cell to stop the call, sounded by prohibitionists. Above are shown, left to right, J. A. Ashworth, 450 Cooper street, volunteer bell ringer, being served with a copy, while Motorcycle Officer Paul E. Edwards looks on, and Motorcycle Officer Y. F. Geeslin serves the copy. Photo by Associated Press.

Police officers in full regalia finally emerged temporary victors yesterday in the drive to silence bell ringing by Atlanta churches as a clarion call for prohibitionists to quash repeal in the state-wide referendum.

Paul E. Edwards, motorcycle officer, was stationed at the Central Baptist church, 219 Washington street, S. W., just opposite the state capitol and the city hall, and only one block from the Fulton county courthouse, to abate the bell-ringing "nuisance."

Although J. A. Ashworth, postoffice clerk, a junior deacon at the church and a volunteer in the bell-ringing episode, already had been served by officers to appear at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon before Recorder A. W. Callaway on charges of "debating a nuisance," he kept ringing the bell.

Irked by the persistence of the tolling, Acting Chief of Police A. J. Holcombe dispatched Officer Y. F. Geeslin, in temporary charge of the motorcycle squad, with Edwards "to stop the bell ringing or bring the offender to jail."

Edwards was stationed as a sentinel to see that the tolling ceased, and Ashworth agreed not to ring it anymore.

A feature of the deluge of complaints filed against the ringing of the bell which came into the office of Mayor Key and Chief of Po. T. O. Sturdivant was one emanating from the court of Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit, who is sitting this week on one of the Fulton benches.

Assistant Solicitor-General John Hudson, of Fulton, and William Schley Howard, prominent DeKalb attorney, both of whom are as arid as the Sahara desert, were engaged in the trial of a case in Judge Davis' court. Hudson could not hear the testimony of witnesses and appealed to the court to stop the ringin, Judge Davis requested that the bell be rung at less frequent intervals, but when court adjourned he notified the church that the bells might sound as frequently as those in charge wished, in so far as he and his court were concerned.

Boarding house operators complained their patrons, some of whom work at night, could not sleep and asked that the ringing of the bells be stopped, and citizens complained of the inconvenience.

Rev. Richard Huston, pastor of the church, was out of the city, as was Edwin Preston, state secretary of the Baptist Training Union, which issued the call for the ringing of the bells throughout the state as a reminder to prohibitionists to cast their ballots against repeal.

BOXES NEAR CHURCH OPPOSE PROHIBITION

The three ballot boxes located in the immediate vicinity of the Central Baptist church yesterday had 623 votes for repeal as compared to only 218 against, according to tabulations.

First ward box, at 213 Mitchell street, received 213 wet votes against 27 for retention of prohibition laws; second ward "A." in the courthouse basement, 202 votes for repeal, while the opposition mustered 73, and third ward "A." at 43 Hunter street, S. E., 303 for repeal and 118 against.

Tennessee Federation Flays Talmadge, Long

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 15.—(AP)—By a vote of 57 to 47, the Tennessee Federation of Labor today adopted a resolution condemning Huey Long, Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia; Father Coughlin, the American Liberty League and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The resolution was approved after heated arguments from the convention floor.

The large miners' delegation, voting almost solidly, put over the resolution after James Leahy, of Knoxville, had led a fight to eliminate Long and Coughlin from the list.

BONUS MEASURE TO BE RELEASED

week-end with Mr. Roosevelt in a western Maryland fishing and hunting retreat.

Roosevelt Unyielding.

There was no indication that President Roosevelt would yield to the demands contained in thousands of telegrams showered on the White House that he sign the Patman bill. He was said to be remaining firm in the position that the bonus was not due until 1945, that many veterans already had borrowed more on their certificates than the actual worth of the paper; that payment of the bonus either through bonds or greenbacks would not stimulate trade and that the veterans have been better treated by the government during the depression than any other group of citizens.

Congressional leaders expect Mr. Roosevelt to accompany his veto with a strong message. The effect of this message will come in the senate and not in the house which always overrides a veto on the bonus.

Thomas, who has kept the Patman bill in the senate by a motion to reconsider the vote by which the upper chamber passed the measure last week, said tonight most of the absentee senators who favor the bill will be back in town next week in time to act on a presidential veto.

The absentees include Senators Robert R. Reynolds, who has been conducting an investigation in the Virgin Islands; Ellison D. Smith, absent on official business; Richard B. Russell Jr. and Walter F. George, Georgia democrats, absent to attend the funeral of the late John S. Cohen, Atlanta (Ga.) publisher.

March Rumored.

As the Patmanites prepared to act, reports reached the capital of another bonus march that might be directed here to attempt to influence sentiment in favor of the measure. Leaders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars hurriedly sent out instructions to all posts ordering members not to come to Washington.

Their instructions were backed by Thomas, who said:

NEW ORLEANS INDUCTS CATHOLIC ARCHBISHOP

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—(AP)—Amid the solemnity of pontifical mass, the Most Reverend Joseph Francis Rummel, German-born prelate and former bishop of Omaha, today was formally inducted as the ninth archbishop of the New Orleans archdiocese at St. Louis cathedral, oldest Roman Catholic house of worship in the middle west.

The four-hour ceremony, the first of its kind since the late Most Reverend John W. Shaw was installed as archbishop in 1918, climaxed a two-day program in which 100,000 New Orleans Catholics took part.

21 address. The reichstag will meet at 8 p. m. (2 p. m., eastern standard time) to hear Hitler.

Hitler is expected to reserve several strong blasts for the Franco-Russian pact, maintaining it is purely a military alliance, directed against Germany and that it violates the Locarno treaty.

BOTH MOSCOW AND PARIS WILL SEEK POLISH AID

MOSCOW, May 15.—(AP)—France and Russia pooled their strength tonight to bring aloof Germany and Poland into a general pact of non-aggression to insure peace in eastern Europe.

A joint communique issued at the close of conversations between Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, and Russian leaders which opened Sunday, disclosed both governments would begin diplomatic negotiations to bring the nations into the pact.

"The conclusion of a mutual assistance pact between the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and France," the communique asserted "in no sense diminishes their interest in seeking without delay the realization of a regional pact in eastern Europe which would join parties formerly taken into consideration in this regard in an agreement based on non-aggression and after consultation non-assistance to the agressor."

The communique declared that neither country will allow its "means of national defense to weaken in the slightest degree," although preservation of the peace is a primary duty of both countries.

Joseph Stalin, soviet dictator, it said, "understands fully and approves" the French defense policy of keeping her armed forces at a level required for security.

Laval was to leave for Warsaw tonight after witnessing a military aerial parade in his honor today. He was the first foreigner ever admitted to the Moninco military airfield near Moscow, where more than 100 fighting ships went through their paces for him.

A proposed eastern security pact, modeled after the western Locarno treaty, has long been hanging fire, with both Germany and Poland apparently very wary of the proposal.

Laval did not say what the next step would be toward putting the plan into effect but he intimated it was up to Poland and Germany to express their views.

He said the agreement would operate "within the framework of the League of Nations" and that a mutual assistance pact, similar to the Franco-soviet accord, "is now in preparation" between Russia and Czecho-Slovakia.

ent system for permanent old age pensions and unemployment insurance which would throw the burden of financing them entirely upon industry.

At the same time, the Georgia senator, who is a member of the senate committee considering the legislation, demanded it to be separated into two bills.

He contended that the provisions for emergency benefits to the aged, and the sections of the bill for child and maternal aid, should be in one bill, and the permanent proposals for old-age pensions and unemployment insurance in another.

Pay Roll Tax.

The Georgian's bill would impose a 5 per cent pay roll tax on all employers of 50 or more persons, beginning next year. They would be exempt from the tax if they set up an industrial protection plan approved by a social security board composed of five members appointed by the president.

Primarily the plan would require employers to pay into a reserve fund for their employes a sum equal to all earnings distributed in profits of dividends, until the plan was on an "actuarially sound basis."

Workers, after they were 65 years of age, would get 1 per cent annually of the total wages they had earned during their working days. If they became unemployed prior to that they would be entitled to benefits for one year equal to one-fourth of their normal wages.

Employes would contribute to the funds voluntarily to add to their benefits, and employers could borrow from the government on long-term credit arrangements to meet their obligations.

The board would be given a $1,000,000,000 revolving fund for the purpose of setting up "self-supporting homestead villages" for the unemployed.

Long Renews Attack In Senate on Farley

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Senator Long, democrat, Louisiana, renewed his feud with Postmaster-General Farley today by introducing a resolution to authorize the senate judiciary committee to investigate government contracts with a view to determining whether legislation is necessary.

The senate yesterday by an overwhelming vote killed a resolution through which Long had desired the senate postoffice committee to investigate Farley's alleged connection with certain public works contracts.

The resolution offered today would authorize the judiciary committee to investigate such companies as James Stewart & Co., of New York, which Long has charged was assisted by Farley in obtaining a New York city public works contract.

The resolution was referred to the judiciary committee.

HOOVER DEMANDS SCRAPPING OF NRA

Goal of Codes Should Be Reached Through Statutes, He Says.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

PALO ALTO, Cal., May 15.—(AP) Former President Herbert Hoover said today that complete abolition of the NRA is "the one right answer" which the house of representatives should make to the senate's action extending its life.

"We do not construct new buildings on false foundations," he said in an interview, "and we cannot build a nation's economy on a fundamental error."

The NRA has been crushing the life out of small business and "they are crushing the life out of the very heart of the local community body," he declared.

In response to a question as to what, in his opinion, congress should do with regard to the NRA, the former president said:

"In reply to your question, the one right answer by the house of representatives to the senate's action extending the life of the NRA is to abolish it entirely.

"Present NRA proposals are as bad, in many ways, as the original with its continuation until the next congress and with the federal agents putting pressure on state legislatures to get them to enact state laws in support of NRA, it is evident there has been no real retreat.

"Bureaucratic Weapon."

This whole idea of ruling business through code authorities with delegated powers of law is un-American in principle and a proved failure in practice. The codes are retarding recovery. They are a cloak for conspiracy against the public interest. They are and will continue to be a weapon of bureaucracy, a device for intimidation of decent citizens.

"To the customary answer of 'destructive criticism' or the other question 'what substitute is offered?' I suggest that the only substitute for an action that rests on definite and proved economic error is to abandon it. We do not construct new buildings on false foundations, and we cannot build a nation's economy on a fundamental error.

Specific Laws Urged.

"The beneficent objectives of a greater social justice and the prevention of sweating, child labor and abuse in business practices should be and can be better attained by specific statutory law.

"There are already sufficient agencies of government for full enforcement of the laws of the land. Where necessary those laws should be strengthened, but not replaced with personal government.

"The multitude of code administrators, agents or committees has spread into every hamlet, and, whether authorized or not, they have engaged in the coercion and intimidation of presumably free citizens.

"People have been sent to jail, but far more have been threatened with jail. Direct and indirect boycotts have been organized by the bureaucracy itself. Many are being used today. Claiming to cure immoral business practices, the codes have increased them a thousand-fold through 'chiseling.'

"They have not protected legitimate business from unfair competition but they have deprived the public of the benefits of fair competition.

"Era of Monopolies."

"This whole NRA scheme has saddled the American people with the worst era of monopolies we have ever experienced. However monopoly is defined, its objective is to fix prices or to limit production or to stifle competition.

"The whole concept of NRA is rooted in a regimented 'economy of scarcity'—an idea that increased costs, restricted production and hampered enterprise that will enrich a nation. The notion may enrich a few individuals and help a few businesses, but it will impoverish the national and undermine the principles of real social justice upon which this nation was founded."

10,000 May Be Evicted In Chicago Relief Crisis

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP)—Serving of eviction notices on Illinois emergency relief clients began today.

Thousands face removal within the next few days because their rent is no longer paid by the relief commission, whose funds are exhausted.

Max Volpe, chairman of a joint committee representing several neighborhood real estate boards, estimated that 3,000 notices had been served and that evictions would be sought at the rate of 1,000 per week until 10,000 had been obtained.

HOUSE CHIEFTAINS DEMAND 2 YEARS OR DEATH FOR NRA

trialists who support the two-year extension.

To Express Views.

"Through the Washington meeting next Wednesday," he said in a statement, "those industries, business groups, trade associations and industrialists favoring a two-year extension of a strong act will express their views and tell congress directly of the necessity for avoiding the industrial chaos by defeating the vicious proposal of the Clark (senate-approved) resolution."

Included among the organizations which he said backed the two-year renewal were the American Paper and Pulp Association, Cotton Textile Institute, Retail Tobacco Dealers of America, Book Manufacturers' Institute, American National Retail Jewelers' Association and others.

Cheney's statement said that "it is clear that the senate is either completely enmeshed in political bickering or that it is totally unaware of the feeling of business and industry throughout the country."

Speaker Byrns, Chairman Doughton, democrat, North Carolina, and other members of the house ways and means committee, and Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, house democratic whip, agreed the house would abide by presidential request for a two-year extension.

One member of the ways and means committee, Representative Fuller, democrat, Arkansas, went this far:

Says Senate Will Agree.

"There is no doubt in my mind, on the basis of information I have received as a member of the ways and means committee, but that the house will pass a two-year extension bill eliminating intrastate business and the senate promptly and gladly will accept it.

"The senate's adoption of the 10-month resolution was but an attempt to pass the buck to us—with the expectation that the senae would get a chance later to vote to extend NRA two years."

Doughton summoned democratic members of the ways and means committee to an executive session to outline procedure. The two-year extension already virtually was agreed upon, but some modifications in the senate bill were under discussion.

On the senate floor, Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, broadened an attack primarily directed at President Roosevelt's farm speech of yesterday to include an address by Donald R. Richberg, recovery chief, declaring the "fundamental concepts of NRA were so sound that only confused and muddled minds could attack it."

Hastings interpreted this as an attack on what the senate did in passing the 10-month NRA bill.

"In my judgment," the Delaware republican said, "NRA is the one way out and Donald Richberg is more responsible than any other single individual in America."

'Lawrence of Arabia' Still Is Unconscious

WOOL, DORSETSHIRE, England, May 15.—(UP)—Colonel T. E. Lawrence, famous for his World War exploits in Arabia against the Turks, still was unconscious tonight, 60 hours after a motorcycle accident near here in which he suffered a fractured skull, broken leg and other injuries.

A specialist said the famous warrior's injuries included "laceration of the brain."

The specialist announced that Lawrence's "condition is unchanged but the outlook is a little brighter." He and his associates agreed that the crisis in the life of the romantic World War figure is to be expected within 24 hours.

LONG'S OPPONENT DEFIES 'GAG' LAW

Louisiana Solon Flaunts Martial Law, on Criticizing Huey.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 15.—(AP)—Unmolested after defying martial law in Baton Rouge, Representative J. Y. Sanders Jr. headed back to Washington tonight after telling constituents they must choose between Senator Huey P. Long and President Roosevelt in the state's next political fight.

Sanders, militant leader of Long's Louisiana opposition from the sixth district, flaunted the martial law edict forbidding criticism of the militia or any one in state authority, and then, waiting for the national guard to "act as it saw fit," he decided to return to the national capital after no action was taken against him.

Resolving to make a "test case" of a decree in effect since the militia took charge of East Baton Rouge parish when Senator Long held his "murder plot" hearing January 25, Sanders denounced the martial law as a "seizure and usurpation of civil rights."

He notified militiamen in charge at the East Baton Rouge parish courthouse that he was violating the martial law manifesto by continually criticizing the state's governmental rule and was "prepared to accept the consequences."

CONCRETE SAVES MOST, SERVES BEST

STREETS OF CONCRETE ARE BEST

...safety, beauty, long life, low cost!

Safe, long-lasting streets of concrete mean more than better driving conditions. Concrete costs less than any other pavement of comparable durability and carrying capacity. It cuts upkeep ... increases property values ... and reduces driving cost by saving on gas, oil, tires and car repairs.

Concrete pavements give a clean, spick and span appearance to the community. Concrete's pleasing gray color reflects light, makes it easier to see—reduces accidents, in every kind of weather.

Insist on concrete—the ideal material for building new streets or resurfacing old ones.

MAX CUBA PRAISES INTANGIBLES PLAN

Councilman Terms Policy an Experiment in 'Painless Taxation.'

Declaring the high tax rates on intangibles are driving business out of Atlanta and putting a heavy burden on the home owner, Max Cuba, chairman of the tax committee of the Atlanta city council, declared yesterday that the policy of accepting voluntary returns at a reasonable rate would be made permanent by the city if taxpayers co-operate in the present movement by filing their returns.

Until May 31 the taxing authorities of Fulton and DeKalb counties and the city of Atlanta are accepting voluntary returns of intangibles at a fair basis, instead of the full value allowed by law.

Terming the movement an experiment in "painless taxation," Mr. Cuba said:

"The holders of intangibles must decide before May 31 whether they wish a forced high assessment on cash, stocks, bonds and mortgages, or a voluntary low asssessment on these assets, for the outcome of this 'painless' taxing experiment will materially affect the future taxing policy of the city of Atlanta.

"The taxing authorities of Atlanta, under the leadership of Mayor Key, have made every effort to lighten the tax burden and at the same time raise sufficient funds to finance such needed governmental services.

"In the case of intangibles, city officials met with many problems. A large number felt justified in "overlooking" to return their intangibles as long as the tax upon them appeared excessive. And the city, to ferret out these intangibles, was forced to additional expense, only to find that the high assessment placed on these intangibles was driving them, as well as their owners, out of Atlanta, thus retarding the growth of our city and taking the property out of taxing reach for future years.

"The holders of intangibles will be given an opportunity to May 31 to make a full return on the following basis:

"First, that cash will be assessed at 5 cents on the dollar.

"Second, that stocks and bonds will be assessed at 15 per cent of their market value.

"Third, that first mortgages shall be assessed at 25 per cent and second mortgages at 15 per cent.

"Fourth, that no questions will be asked as to previous years tax payments on these assets.

"Fifth, that the taxpayer will not be required to leave a list of his holdings with the taxing authorities.

"Further, that any holder of intangibles who has failed to take advantage of this opportunity prior to May 31 will find himself forced to return his property at a previous high assessment, not only for 1935, but also for the preceding years."

Changes Made in State Office Personnel

Allen Post, of Atlanta, yesterday was sworn in as an assistant attorney-general of the state, succeeding John T. Goree, of Donalsonville, who resigned to join the legal staff of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company. At the same time, George Goode left his office as public service commissioner to become an assistant attorney-general, exchanging places with Judge Julian J. E. Anderson, of Statesboro. Governor Talmadge is shown above administering the oaths of office. From left to right, those taking the oaths are Mr. Post, Judge Anderson and Mr. Goode. Associated Press photo.

COURT DECLINES AID TO HUEY LONG GROUP

Huey P. Long's "share-our-wealth" advocates received a local setback yesterday when Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, declined to grant an injunction to prevent the board of education from barring meetings in the interest of the program from using school buildings.

J. Ira Harrelson, former president of the board, and Georgia director of the Long forces, had scheduled a meeting to be held Friday night at the Lula L. Kingsbury school, but in a poll of the board yesterday, nine of the 14 members voted to bar use of the schools for any such purpose.

Harrelson then appealed to the courts for an injunction to prevent the board from rescinding its permit for the meeting, but Judge Humphries set the hearing for the restraining order for 9:30 o'clock Friday morning and failed to issue an injunction.

The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, national organizer, was scheduled to speak, and Harrelson claims the organization has 30,000 members in Georgia.

Board members who voted against "opening the schools to Long's program" were:

Landers, Brewer, Cook, Matthews, Scott, Lowman, Garner, Powell and Gilliam.

Harrelson's court petition set out that the action would be a change of rules of the board, which he contended may be changed only in a regular meeting.

The poll of the board was taken by telephone after four members had asked Ernest Brewer, president, to have the vote taken.

Brewer addressed a special delivery letter to Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, asking Sutton's views regarding use of the schools by Long's followers, but Sutton answered by special delivery declining to commit himself. He said it was a board matter and as the board already had conducted the poll, any opinion he might have would not affect the board's decision.

MILLS CONTINUE FIGHT ON JAP CLOTH IMPORTS

Nipponese, Meanwhile, Sit Stolidly Attentive, Offer Rebuttal.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—While a group of Japanese importers sat patiently awaiting their innings, American cotton manufacturers today piled up evidence before the tariff commission in support of their appeal for imposition of a quota on imports of bleached cotton from Japan.

Another move toward relief for the cotton textile industry was made simultaneously by Representative Martin, republican, Massachusetts, who presented at the White House a petition, signed by 71 house members, asking for removal of the cotton processing tax.

A procession of manufacturers appeared before the commission today, all reporting heavy inroads in the domestic bleached cotton market by competing Japanese products, while William S. Culbertson, counsel for the Japanese importers, sought through cross-examination to show that other causes were responsible for the slump in business.

Harry L. Bailey, of the Wellington-Sears Company, and a member of the Cotton Textile Code Authority, pointed out that the industry, first to come under NRA, had been promised that tariff protection would be afforded. He denied, in answer to questions by Culbertson, that obselesence of machinery or overcapitalization was responsible for the industry's present condition.

Traffic Accidents GiveNoWarning; Insurance Safeguards Dependents

Should you insure yourself against the menace of the ever-growing accident wave?

If you knew disaster was soon to single you out there would be no question about the matter. Then consider the fact that none of those who are killed or maimed in the accident wave knows in advance of his impending fate.

Every day the newspapers tell of fresh casualties, persons left slain or suffering who never dreamed that they were to be involved in wrecks. Draw a lesson from their experience: protect yourself financially, and safeguard the future of your family with insurance.

The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill., which company has already paid Atlanta Constitution subscribers over $200,000. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription going into the home at a small registration fee of 20c with application and 10c per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1.00 each per policy per year in advance to subscribers who live in Atlanta and Atlanta suburbs where we have carrier delivery. Out-of-town subscribers can have this insurance by paying $1.00 per policy per year in advance.

This insurance offered through The Atlanta Constitution provides for the payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specified accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

Do your duty! Protect yourself and family today. Tomorrow may be too late!

NEW MARKET BULLETIN APPROVED FOR MAILS

The newest issue of the Market Bulletin of the state department of agriculture, containing a renewed attack on the AAA by Commissioner Tom Linder, was approved for the mails yesterday by Acting Postmaster Lon Livingston and 100,000 copies of the weekly were sent to its subscribers.

In his article, Linder reviewed a number of charges he has made against the AAA, but Postmaster Livingston said he had given the issue his approval.

He said the copy of the Bulletin had been forwarded to Washington officials of the postoffice department for further study.

Supply Shortage Delays Chevrolet's Reopening

Although settlement in the differences between the Chevrolet Motor and Fisher Body companies has been reached, local workers will not return to work for one week, and possibly two, it was announced yesterday by officials of the concerns here.

Employes in the Atlanta plants went on strike May 4, joining more than 10,000 Chevrolet and Fisher Body workers in other cities. Prior to the strike vote, however, the local plants were shut down because of lack of materials.

Transmissio. used in the manufacture of Chevrolet automobiles are manufactured in Toledo, and until a supply of these is received the local plants cannot operate. It will be at least a week, and possibly longer, before shipments will arrive.

Meanwhile, the 2,000 workers here will be compelled to remain idle. The pay roll runs more than $200,000 a month.

Employes will be notified by letter, and will be given definite instructions as to when to report, it was said.

Dixie Policy Group Backs Tenant Bill

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—A letter calling for support of the Bankhead bill to aid farm purchases by tenants was sent today to each member of the senate by the Southern Policy Committee.

"As members of the Southern Policy conference representing nine southern states," the letter said, "we regard Senator Bankhead's farm tenant bill as the most constructive piece of land legislation yet introduced.

"At our recent meeting in Atlanta on April 25-28, we unanimously voted to support prompt and favorable action on the Bankhead bill as the most promising means of removing the devasting tenant system.

"We urge you to give this bill your immediate support."

The policy committee recently was organized by a group of prominent southerners. H. C. Nixon, of Tulane University, is chairman and Brook Hays, democratic national committeeman of Arkansas, vice chairman.

Illinois Again Fails To Provide Relief

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 15.—(AP) The Illinois house for the fourth time today failed to pass the 3 per cent sales tax bill designed to provide revenue demanded by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins to assure allotment of relief funds for the state's 1,200,000 unemployed.

Consideration of the bill was postponed when the unofficial roll call stood 87 to 56 for the sales tax increase. Passage as emergency legislation requires 102 votes.

"Do you wonder then that I call these papers our best friend? They are my life insurance policies.

"These policies are going to do something else for us, too. If I live, they are going to make it possible for me to retire—and for you and me to have an easy, comfortable time of it in our old age.

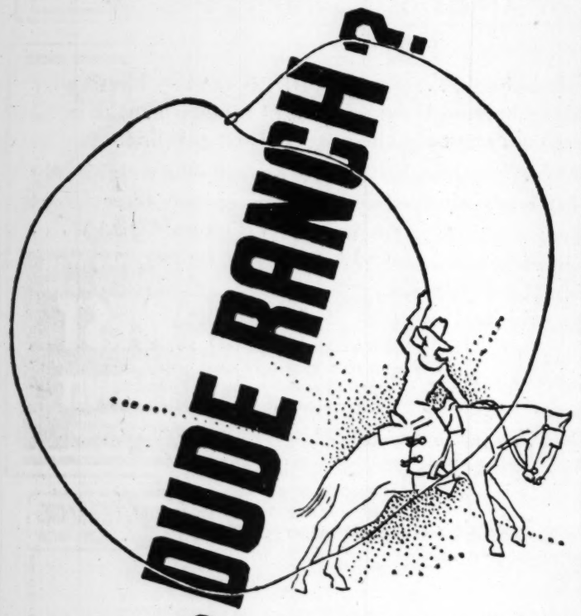

"So you see these policies are going to act as 'best friend' either way. They're going to take care of you and the children if I die. And they're going to take mighty good care of us all if I live!"

COX AS GOVERNOR, IS CAPITAL VIEW

Flood of Congratulations Pours in Following Answer to TalmadgeAttack

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Out of a flood of more than 400 telegraphic messages received commending him for his vigorous defense of the Roosevelt administration, Representative Eugene Cox, of Georgia, today found himself the center of an incipient boom to succeed Governor Eugene Talmadge, whose recent bitter attacks on the president and the national administration occasioned the Cox nation-wide broadcast here last night.

At the office of the Georgia congressman it was revealed that several hundred persons in the state have wired him hearty indorsement of his Tuesday night speech, in which he assailed the governor for his continued verbal assaults on the president. Still other congratulatory messages were received during the day from a score or more of states, some of them coming from states as far away as California. His office was kept busy most of the day reading and answering the telegraphic tide.

Delegation for Roosevelt.

The Cox boom for governor was projected not only in a large number of the telegrams received from the state, but within quiet circles of the Georgia congressional delegation, where the speech of last night was an absorbing topic of discussion today.

Delegation members could not refrain from speculating on the political repercussions of the speech in the state, marking as it does the first open break between the congressional group and Governor Talmadge as regards his fight on the Roosevelt administration. While officially Representative Cox spoke only for himself in his denunciation of the state executive, it may be said authoritatively that at the proper time the entire delegation will throw the full strength of its support behind President Roosevelt if any effort is made to deny him the state's instructed delegates to the next democratic national convention.

To this extent, and even beyond, the Cox speech, intended as a reply to a broadcast made by the governor here last week, may be taken as reflecting sentiment of the Georgia congressmen.

4-Year Term Possible.

Proposals that Judge Cox be put forward as a Roosevelt administration candidate for governor are based, in some measure, on the belief prevailing in certain quarters that Governor Talmadge will seek reelection when his present term expires next year instead of challenging the seat of Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., who has often been mentioned as his next political opponent. Delegation members who have stuied the new constitutional amendment bearing on a four-year governorship term, as passed by the last legislature and to be submitted for ratification in the 1936 general elections, have expressed the view that no obstacle is raised to the governor succeeding himself.

It is held here that the question at best offers one over which lawyers may disagree. If Governor Talmadge should run again and be re-elected they see little resistance offered to him serving.

Cox Silent on Race.

Efforts to interview Mr. Cox on the incipient boom drew from him only the statement that he is interested in no other political office than the one he now holds. He was not inclined to treat the suggestions seriously though obviously pleased over the number of congratulatory messages received.

Now serving his sixth term in congress, making him a veteran of 11 years' service, Representative Cox is a high-ranking member of the important rules committee and is regarded as one of the key figures in the house democratic organization. At the beginning of the Roosevelt administration he was named as one of a group of house leaders to sit as a laision committee between the White House and congress. He represents the second Georgia district and makes his home at Camilla.

Out of a total of more than 400 telegrams received, it was stated at the Georgia member's office that only one of the lot expressed continued allegiance to Governor Talmadge, the others being commendatory of the Cox attack. This one addressed to "Congressman Thomas Cox," read simply "Geoorgia stands for Talmadge" and was sigend by John J. Robinson, of Savannah.

Some of the others read "Hearty congratulations your splendid defense of the Roosevelt administration. Ninety per cent of this territory is with you."—G. W. Varn, Valdosta."

"Georgians Grateful."

"Just heard your answer radio. Considered you covered ground in a sane and sensible manner and wish to congratulate you. Am satisfied majority of sensible Georgians agree with you and you can count on this Georgia Cracker. Keep it up.—T. T. Caldwell, Thomasville.

"All true Georgians are deeply grateful to you for your masterful exposure of the mountebank w. have for governor. Georgia prefers a president who can think to one who can walk straight. Georgia farmers know when they are being benefited and no flag of red galluses can fool them. Georgia is 98 per cent for Roosevelt and you."—H. D. Smith, Columbus, state senator.

"Fifty farmers heard your speech in mass meeting in schoolhouse here and heartily approve what you say. Keep good work up."—Warwick Melon Club, Worth county.

Lest he be charged with promoting his own candidacy, Judge Cox declined to permit the use of the names of persons urging him for governor but the following is a ample of many along the same line: "Congratulations on your splendid speech. It was a work of statesmanship. We need you as governor of Georgia instead of in congress."

Dick Bollenger, Ann Evans, Dorothy Garland, Marie Merkling, Nancy Robinson, Margaret Thomson and Jane Thweatt will appear in "The Women Folks," a sparkling comedy. James Barfield, Bayrou Capeloute, Marion Lowe, William Mayes, Marbrey Payne and Gertrude Selarge are cast in "The Ghost Hunters," a drama, while Leslie Buchanan, Margaret Dodge, Dick Eiseman, Jeanette Fluker, Dorothy Gordon, Robert Lipchutz, Frances Muse, Marian Thibaut and Virginia Wayne are featured in "Elmer."

Caughey Culpepper and Frank Lowenstein are stage managers for the productions, which are directed by J. J. Brooks and Miss Lillian Lee, of the Bass faculty.

Pilsudski Will Lie In State in Warsaw

WARSAW, May 15.—(AP)—The body of Joseph Pilsudski, late dictator of Poland, was slowly borne through Warsaw's darkened streets tonight on the shoulders of 20 army officers from Belvedere castle to St. John's cathedral, where it will lie in state.

Over the two-mile route 10 officers on either side carried the specially wrought silver casket in recognition of the fact that the marshal in life carried the burdens of the army on his shoulders.

The procession passed through a solid lane of soldiers on both sides of the street while thousands of persons with bowed heads jammed the sidewalks. All electrical signs along the route were extinguished and street lights were covered with flags.

Troops led and ended the procession, with members of the family, government leaders and foreign diplomats following immediately behind the casket.

The doors of the cathedral were thrown open to the public immediately after the procession's arrival and will remain open until after a military funeral Friday.

SCHOOL BOARD HEAD NAMES 3 COMMITTEES

Ernest Brewer, president of the Atlanta board of education, yesterday appointed the following three committees in accordance with actions taken at Tuesday's meeting of the board:

Textbook committee — Commissioner H. Jack Penn, chairman, and Commissioners Scott, Geffen, Gilliam and Matthews.

Committee to investigate a proposal to erect a high school in the vicinity of the Maddox Junior High school or to convert Maddox Junior High school into a high school—Commissioner Penn, chairman; Commissioners, Therrell, Gilliam, Landers and Garner.

Bad debts committee, to force school employes to meet their just obligations—Commissioner Louis Geffen, chairman, and Commissioners Garner, Cook, Powell and Lowman.

1 PCT. SLASH MADE IN R.F.C. LOAN RATE

Interest Reductions Will Save $1,300,000 in Georgia Annually.

Reduction of 1 per cent in the interest rate on loans to business concerns, industrial plants and other commercial loans was announced yesterday by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, providing an annual saving of $1,300,000 to Georgians alone.

The reduction, announced by Erle Cocke, manager of the Atlanta agency, became effective yesterday. It applies to loans already made as well as to loans that will be made in the future. Heretofore, the interest rate has been 6 per cent, but is now 5 per cent.

Action in cutting the rate is in keeping with the policy of President Roosevelt and his administration in keeping interest rates as low as possible, Mr. Cocke said.

The Atlanta agency, since the inception of the RFC program in February, 1932, has made loans totaling $150,000,000. Approximately $130,000,000 of this sum was loaned in Georgia. Computed on loans of $130,000,000 the 1 per cent cut will mean a saving of $1,300,000 annually to businessmen of Georgia.

Atlanta Leading Agency.

The Atlanta agency, Mr. Cocke said, has made more loans than any other of the 32 agencies in proportion to the population of the state as well as in proportion of the capital worth of industry. The general program of the corporation includes loans to open and closed banks in the nature of discounts and additions to the capital structure and loans to cotton producers, turpentine and naval stores producers.

Congress liberalized the act under which the RFC operates at this session enabling the corporation to cater to small industries since the larger loans could be financed through private banks, Mr. Cocke said.

Since the act was liberalized the RFC in Georgia has approved a total of slightly less than 100 loans totaling approxiamtely $1,500,000 and has under consideration additional loans of approximately $2,500,000. In addition, approximately $1,000,000 in loan applications for Georgia are on file in Washington.

The loans were made to numerous types of industries, including cotton mills, foundries, plants manufacturing machinery, wholesale grocery stores, retail and wholesale merchants, warehouses, the lumber industry and others.

POISON DOSE VICTIM REPORTED IMPROVED

Susan Spratt, popular high school daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Spratt, of 2329 Dellwood drive, N. E., was reported recovering last night at Crawford W. Long hospital of a poison dose taken accidentally Saturday.

The girl took two tablets of a slow-acting poison thinking they were harmless medicine. She was admitted to the hospital, where attaches said her condition is good. She is a student at North Fulton High school. Her father is general manager of the American Printing and Manufacturing Company.

CELL IS PREFERRED TO PACKING CASE BY HIDING BURGLAR

After spending 15 hours in a packing case at the Southern Tablet Manufacturing Company, 141 Mangum street, to avoid capture as a burglar, Albert Abrams, 34, negro, of a Collier street address, last night confided to police that he much preferred a cell in Atlanta's new city jail to the packing case.

Members of a radio squad car passing the tablet company plant at 3:45 o'clock yesterday morning saw a negro enter the building. They investigated, entering the plant through a basement window, but failed to find any trace of the prowler.

At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, C. M. Robinson, the superintendent, heard a noise on the second floor. Investigating, he found Abrams hiding in a packing box. A revolver which had been taken from an unlocked safe in the office was found in the negro's possession.

Abrams admitted he had been hiding in the packing case since early in the morning. "These cells here is real nice when I think of that packin' box," he said as the cell door clanged behind him.

COLUMBIA HOLDS SEVENTH ANNUAL GRADUATION RITES

The seventh annual commencement exercises of Columbia Theological Seminary were held yesterday morning in Campbell hall at the seminary, with George Thomas Preer, of Columbus, Ga., and Henry Seymour Robinson, of Lincolnton, N. C., graduating magna cum laude.

William Massey McInnis, of Red Springs, N. C., and Stephen Jamison Sloop, of Morganton, N. C., were given degrees with cum laude honors.

Mr. Preer was also presented with the Anna Church Whitner fellowship, which entitles him to one year of graduate study at an approved educational institution of his choice. He plans to use his fellowship in pursuing his studies at the University of Virginia, and to complete his studies toward a Ph. D. Mr. Robison was presented the Wilds book prize, given for distinguished scholarship.

The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Harold Francis Branch, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Tuscaloosa, Ala. Dr. Branch spoke on "The Prophet Pilate."

Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, presided as chairman of the board.

Running "around town" wastes your money if your gasoline hasn't these 3 Different Kinds of Power . . .

TO the office . . . the school . . . the store . . . dashing here and there . . . often starting your engine 15 TIMES a day!

No wonder today's driving "eats up" gasoline!

But now Shell engineers, in another great achievement, have given you an answer to the problem!

Stop-and-go driving, these engineers point out, calls for THREE different kinds of power . . . power for quick STARTING . . . power for hard PULLING . . . power for steady RUNNING!

What's more, these 3 kinds of power must be in the right proportion—in PERFECT BALANCE!

Shell engineers had a difficult task, but they have now produced the FIRST truly balanced gasoline!

So Super-Shell saves you money . . . not in one . . . nor two . . . but in THREE WAYS! That's why thousands of motorists make Shell their REGULAR gasoline.

There are 30,000 neighborly Shell stations spread from Coast to Coast. Visit one TODAY . . . and start saving money.

STARTING
With its even volatility, Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline on every "cold" start. (Even in summer, your engine is relatively "cold" after being idle an hour.)

PULLING
Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline in 10 minutes of hard pulling, in rapid accelerating, or on hills.

RUNNING
Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline in every hour of steady running, many motorists report—thus saving on long runs as well as on short trips.

When you save 16 cupfuls, remember, you save a whole gallon!

Kipps and Cunninghams Enjoy Gladsome Reunion in Atlanta

By Sally Forth.

IT WAS a grand reunion on Monday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Kipp, of Yokohama, Japan, arrived to visit Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cunningham at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. You see, the Kipps and the Cunninghams had not seen each other since they parted in Seoul, Korea, and that was 12 years ago. At that time Mrs. Kipp was Miss Marie Miller, of New York, and Mrs. Cunningham was Miss Mabel Cocke, of Manassas, Va. The former was doing medical educational work in Seoul, but after a year's time she surrendered to the pleas of Mr. Kipp and became his bride. Shortly thereafter the couple moved to Yokohama, which is still "home" to them.

It was several years later that the former Miss Cocke, who is one of the city's most gifted musicians and who at that time was teaching music in Seoul, returned to the States and was married to Mr. Cunningham, who soon followed her. Needless to say, since the arrival of the visitors the days have been spent in reminiscing, recalling the gay and interesting times the foursome enjoyed in Korea. Quite interesting, too, was the introduction of the Kipp children, Dorothy, aged 10; Martha, who is 8, and Peter Jr., who is 6, to the young Cunninghams, Patricia, aged 8, and Bobbie, who is 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Kipp live in the foreign concession, overlooking the beautiful harbor, in Yokohama, and are popular members of the American colony. Landing at San Francisco, they motored across the continent to visit the Cunninghams, en route to New York, where they will spend some time with Mrs. Kipp's family.

While crossing the states, young Peter Jr., who was born in Japan, had his first glimpse of growing tobacco. He inquired of his father what it was.

"That is a field of tobacco, son," replied Mr. Kipp.

Whereupon Peter Jr. further questioned: "Well, what kind is it? Is it Lucky Strike?"

Mr. and Mrs. Kipp are receiving much social attention from their hosts' wide circle of friends. Informal dinners, teas, luncheons and picnics have been planned in their honor. At a dinner given Tuesday evening Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Kipp recalled a dinner given shortly after their arrival in Korea by a bachelors' club in Seoul. Both Mr. Kipp and Mr. Cunningham were members of the club.

A native boy served the dinner. When the fish course arrived, the bachelor who sat at the head of the table fancied that he detected an unsavory odor. He questioned the servant in low tones.

Which, when translated, means "just a little bad."

WHEN Marion Yundt returned from her recent visit to the east, she was accompanied by a former classmate, Jane Brown. It is the eastern belle's first visit south. She has always liked southerners immensely, but she admits difficulty in understanding their slow, drawling accent. Since her arrival here she has had to call upon Marion to interpret the conversation of their masculine dates. Also Marion is asked frequently to explain some phrase spoken by her guest, who rolls her R's in true Boston style.

Sally thinks that Jane Brown is one of the most attractive personalities ever to visit Atlanta. She possesses dark brown hair and violet blue eyes and is of the graceful, slender type of figure. Her favorite sports are swimming, tennis and horseback riding, in which she excels. It was at the Garland School of Home Making in Boston that Marion and Jane met. During their enrollment there they became close friends. Marion has visited her former classmate three times in Massachusetts. She insists that Jane must remain with her three times longer than planned. With others who have met the fascinating Bostonian, Sally hopes that Marion will persuade Jane to prolong her visit.

AN ATTRACTIVE cottage facing the ocean at Sea Island Beach will be the two-week rendezvous of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Draper and Mrs. William T. Healey. They depart today and will motor to the seashore resort, which is such a favorite with Atlantans.

The congenial quintet will enjoy the privilege of surf bathing from a private beach. Yachting parties and motor rides along the winding, ribbon roads on Sea Island and St. Simon's Island will intrigue the interest of these good friends, who yearn for the relaxation that comes to human beings at the seashore.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT F. MADDOX have invited congenial friends to greet and welcome Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant and Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell at dinner Saturday evening, May 18. They will entertain at Woodhaven, their Pace's Ferry road residence, as a complimentary gesture to these socially prominent Atlantans.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant reach Atlanta today after having traveled for the past three months in Europe. Dr. and Mrs. Bucknell returned here last week after a 12-month sojourn in Arizona and California.

Good Grooming Demands a Flawless Complexion

Clever women realize that true smartness can not be attained unless the skin has that clear, flawless transparency that only Mercolized Wax can give it. Mercolized Wax has won for itself a distinguished place in the world of beauty, because it is the only single preparation that can absorb the discolored outer skin and reveal the radiant beauty beneath. Its specially blended ingredients dissolve the film of faded surface skin in tiny, invisible particles, clearing away all blemishes. The lovely underskin then unveiled in all its pure, clear loveliness becomes your new complexion. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty in the skin.

Saxolite Astringent reduces wrinkles and other age-lines. Saxolite stimulates relaxed tissues and refines coarse pores. It is a refreshing, bracing skin tonic. Use it daily. Saxolite Astringent is made by dissolving one ounce Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. At all drug and dept. stores.—(adv.)

Senior Hadassahs Plan Donor Dinner.

With the proceeds of the donor dinner, which the Atlanta Senior Hadassahs will hold on Monday, May 20, they will do their share in the maintenance of the Hadassah medical organization in Palestine.

This, the largest unit of the Hadassah system of health work, has under its supervision some of the following subsidiary nonsectarian departments: prenatal, preschool and school hygiene; nutrition, preventative and curative diseases, hospitalization, outside obstetrical, anti-trachoma, anti-tuberculosis, health educational and many other health departments. The maternal mortality rate for the past year was 2.4 out of 1,000 cases in the overcrowded obstetrical ward of the hospital, one of the lowest rates of its kind in the world.

Reservations for the dinner are $5 minimum for ladies and $1 for the escorts' plates. The program will include talks by Rabbi Harry H. Epstein, of Atlanta; Rabbi Julius Mark, of Nashville, Tenn.; motion picture slides, "Fashions Have Changed in Atlanta Hadassah," and a series of tableaux, "Women in Israel," formed by the following Junior Hadassahs: vocalist, Mrs. Minna Hoffman; director, Miss Lottie Goncher; pianist, Miss Annette Geffen; reader, Miss Bessie Geffen; participating, Misses Dorothy Davis, Dot Seligman, Lil Vajda, Ozna Tontak, Beatrice Eplan, Rachel Shamos, Sara Franklin, Rasalie Hirsch, Naomi Cantor.

N. A. P. S. Officers.

Miss Eugenia Bridges has just been elected editor-in-chief of the Senior Reader, the newspaper of the North Avenue Presbyterian school, for 1935-36. Miss Bridges has served this year as managing editor of the newspaper. Miss Jacqueline McPherson, this year's advertising manager, will be business manager for next year. Both of these young ladies will be members of next year's senior class.

The Cecilian Dramatic Club has also elected officers for 1935-36. Miss Jacqueline McPherson will be president; Miss Eugenia Bridges, secretary, and Miss Nettie Lee Greer, treasurer.

Says Cardui Eased Pain

Many women have told how they learned about Cardui from their mothers and have since put their knowledge to good use in relieving painful upsets.

"When I was fourteen years old, my mother gave me Cardui and it surely did me a lot of good," writes Mrs. Coleman Adams, of Waynesville, N. C. "Last spring, I was in a very run-down condition and at times I suffered a great deal. My nerves would be all upset, in fact my health was not good at all. I decided to try Cardui as I had before. . . Cardui certainly helped me, easing the cramping and pain. I felt much better."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.—(adv.)

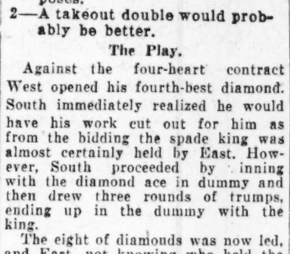

Culbertson on Contract

Card Analyst.
By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest

Middle End-Play.

An end-play does not have to come at the end of a hand. Quite frequently one of the defending players is thrown in as early as the fourth or fifth trick and is forced to make a lead which will give the declarer a trick which he could not otherwise have won. South, the declarer on the deal below, seemingly had four losers unless he could win an indirect finesse against a missing king. This card was located badly for the declarer, but he still fulfilled his contract by clever play.

West, Dealer
Neither side vulnerable

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1◇ (1)	1♡ (2)
Pass	3♡	Pass	4♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A rather weak bid, made partly for lead-directing purposes.
2—A takeout double would probably be better.

The Play.

Against the four-heart contract West opened his fourth-best diamond. South immediately realized he would have his work cut out for him as from the bidding the spade king was almost certainly held by East. However, South proceeded by inning with the diamond ace in dummy and then drew three rounds of trumps, ending up in the dummy with the king.

The eight of diamonds was now led, and East, not knowing who held the ten, felt compelled to go up with a high honor. East, after winning the diamond lead, was in a bad position. Either a club lead or a spade lead would give the declared a trick and a diamond would provide a ruff and discard. East finally decided to lead the jack of spades hoping against hope that his partner held the ace or that the declarer would be bluffed out of letting the lead ride around to dummy's queen.

South, of course, played low from his hand and won with the queen in dummy. He then led a low spade to his ace and another low spade, and East found himself thrown in again. This time East had only two choices. He could lead a diamond, giving the declarer a ruff in his own hand and a discard of a losing club in dummy, or he could lead a club, which would give the declarer a second-hand finesse to avoid the loss of a trick in that suit. South finally made five-odd on a hand which seemed difficult for four.

Comment.

Even after incorrectly going up with the diamond jack, East, by exiting with another diamond, deliberately giving a ruff and discard, could have held the contract to four. Perfect play by the declarer would have insured four-odd even had East permitted the low diamond lead at Trick 5 to ride around to his partner' 10. West's best shift at that point would have been a spade. The declarer could duck in dummy and permit East's 10 to hold the trick, deliberately withholding his ace. No return by East at this point could prevent the declarer from making all the rest of the tricks but one.

Is there a grand slam in the hand above? Check it with our exposition of tomorrow.

Mr. Culbertson will send to any reader who will enclose a self-addressed stamped (3 cent) envelope with request, a booklet containing the new rules and discussing the etiquette of contract. The request should be addressed to Ely Culbertson, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Household Arts

BY ALICE BROOKS.

PATTERN 5346

RISING SUN.

Though many of us have little opportunity nor inclination to see the rising sun, we still will find it very lovely to look in a gay colored quilt. This one, aptly named Rising Sun, will be lovely with the sun's rays made in scraps or in three different materials. The block goes together easily—before you know it, you'll have enough ready for your quilt.

In pattern 5346 you will find the block chart, an illustration of the finished block in actual size, showing contrasting fabrics; accurately drawn pattern pieces; an illustration of the entire quilt; three color schemes; step-by-step directions for making the quilt and exact yardage requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Cox Commencement Will Feature Gala Homecoming

Mrs. H. L. Stephenson, president of the Cox College Alumnae Association, announces that the annual alumnae reunion will be a gala affair this year. Home-coming will be observed May 24, 25 and 26 of commencement week. Registration and room reservations for alumnae will be taken care of May 24, and alumnae will gather for their first group meeting in the dining hall at 6 o'clock, after which they will attend the senior play at 8 o'clock.

Saturday, May 25, at 6 p. m., the annual alumnae banquet will be held in the college dining hall, at which the class of 1935 and the faculty will be guests. Mrs. Stephenson will briefly review the work of the association for the past year. Miss Virginia Browne, president of the Sigma Lambda sorority, and Miss Lucy Svelyn Merritt, president of the Phi Lambda sorority, will welcome the alumnae members of their sororities. Miss Bess Morgan, president of the senior class, will tell of the plans the class of 1935 has upon becoming alumnae. President W. C. Carlton will outline the plans for the coming year's work; and others will speak briefly. Officers of the association for the coming year will be elected. At 8 p. m. the annual debate between the two sororities will be attended by alumnae.

At 11 o'clock Sunday, May 26, alumnae will attend the commencement sermon. President and Mrs. Carlton invite alumnae to be guests of the college during home-coming, and advance reservations indicate that alumnae from all over the south will be present. Mrs. Stephenson may be reached at 1057 Euclid avenue, N. E., Atlanta, for reservations.

SHEPPERSON CITES THOUSANDS' PLIGHT

Relief Situation Acute for Georgia Underprivileged, She Announces.

Federal relief money has failed to answer the social, health and education problems of the underprivileged families in Georgia, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, FERA administrator for Georgia, told the state child health and welfare council here today.

Declaring that the relief situation for thousands of persons is acute, Miss Shepperson pointed out that the average of education for all persons on relief rolls in Georgia was under the fourth grade and that one-half the underprivileged in all classes were unfit for physical work because of health conditions.

There are 161,000 children under 17 years of age on the relief rolls and 55,000 under six, Miss Shepperson said, adding that 10,000 pupils in the state are served a hot lunch every day at school as part of the FERA work.

"However, there are 10,000 widows with dependent children who are not able to participate in the work relief program and thousands of old people and other classes of unemployables for whom some provision must be made," Miss Shepperson said.

Dr. Ethel Dunham, assistant director of the children's bureau Department of Labor, at Washington, described the tentative program of the federal government, citing figures to show that 40 per cent of the relief rolls is composed of children.

"The two primary purposes of the legislation before congress in which the bureau is interested are the provisions for federal aids to state programs for maternal and child health services and the matching of state funds to aid crippled children as well as those in good health," Dr. Dunham said.

YOUTHFUL SWAGGER COAT ENSEMBLE.

Featured today is a double duty costume. It serves equally well for town or for afternoon bridge or tea.

Gray crepe silk, a summer favorite, made the skirt and coat. The flared back gives the fingertip length coat a decidedly youthful air. Dainty shirring distinguishes the aqua blue crepe blouse.

Carried out in sheer crepe silk print with plain crepe contrast, it's also stunning.

Style No. 621 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 4 5-8 yards of 39-inch material for jacket and skirt with 4 7-8 yards of 39-inch material for long sleeve blouse, jacket collar and lining.

Our Spring Fashion Book is beautifully illustrated in color.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

In the old days of prosperity when money came easy and went easy, I formed the habit of keeping my business to myself and not telling my wife what I had. She was inclined to be extravagant and when she got wind of a good deal I made she spent money like water. Now things are different with me. I haven't been able to do more than make a living for the last few years and I have told my wife frankly that she must cut down on expenses. Unfortunately she doesn't believe me and when I protest some big bill she has made she flies into rage and says I am fooling her as I have always done. She is certain I have money and plenty of it. What am I to do? How can I convince her that I am strapped?

WORRIED.

Answer:

Once let a woman get the idea that her husband isn't frank with her and there is the dickens to pay. He doesn't have to tell her outright lies to give her this impression; he simply has to withhold from her information which she thinks she has a right to. "Secretiveness, without any actual falsehood whatever, is one of the most effective instruments of deceit," says a well known college president. The man who is secretive with his wife about his personal or his business affairs arouses her suspicion and the world knows how a suspicious woman behaves.

An extravagant wife does create some perplexing problems for a man but he can't dispose of them with subterfuge and concealment. Contrarily he creates more problems by this method. She senses that he is holding out on her and instead of trying to be economical she fights back with bigger expenditures. Whereas, if he took her into his confidence and reasoned with her about the wisdom of being thrifty she would at least make the effort to please him.

"Sometimes the honest, wholehearted confession will restore lost confidence. Women want to believe in their husbands. They will sometimes stultify their reason to believe. So the man whose wife has lost faith in his frankness hasn't a hard job to reestablish himself in her confidence, if he goes about it in the right way.

When we deal with a moral question we have only a person's word for the truth. But when we deal with the arithmetic of business we have books filled with figures that tell the tale. Figures don't lie and if they are correctly entered on the books anybody can verify them.

Under these circumstances a man can treat his wife like he treats the tax bureau auditor: Spread out the books before her. Invite her to scan them and see for herself what has been and what is there. Simple enough if the husband has the courage to go through with it.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I was married seven years ago to a man I have never loved. He loves me so this makes it harder. I was able to conceal the truth about my feeling for him until very recently but he is beginning to suspect me. Yes, there is another man but I don't want a separation and I don't believe in divorce. It would be much easier for me to carry on if my husband had clean personal habits and was less crude but as it is I can't respect him or love him either. What shall I do?

IN-LOVE.

Answer:

My dear woman, married to a man you don't love, any habits he might have would be irritating. If he were immaculate and polished to a high shine his very perfection would be a source of annoyance to you. Worse, married to a man you are deceiving every deception you practice makes you dislike him more. This is one of the anomalies of human nature; we are more likely to hate the people we wrong than we are to hate those who wrong us. Andre Maurosis expresses the idea when he says "The hardest things to forgive another is the ill we have said of him." You see, bowed down with a sense of guilt, we begin to search for faults and dereliction in the one toward who we are guilty. You have done your husband a cruel wrong; first in marrying him without love; second, in deceiving him throughout the seven years of your marriage and third, in carrying on a clandestine affair. His crudities are not responsible for your attitude to him, his uncleanly habits are not keeping you from carrying on comfortably. Your own sense of having cheated him and defrauded him is the thing that keeps you from knowing peace and contentment.

It is not difficult to tell you what to do. Put that other man out of your mind. Be more dutiful to your husband. Apply the balm of a woman's tenderness to your husband's hurt pride and he will respond with a clean collar and manicured nails.

NANCY PAGE

The Lacy Border Now Goes in a Bonnet

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Nancy had no idea which baby of her acquaintance would get the bonnet she was knitting. It really belonged with the sweater and bootees that she had knitted earlier. That is, it is the same lacy border arrangement and completed an ensemble that was attractive and dainty.

Summer time is not the best time to knit with wool, for one's hands perspire, but Nancy had learned a few tricks. She always dusted her hands with talcum powder before she started knitting. She kept a small, tightly covered container of the powder in her knitting bag and when her hands began to get sticky she dusted them over again.

When she worked with white or light colored yarns she was careful to keep a lightweight clean towel or apron on her lap. This prevented the yarn from getting soiled. It also gave her something on which to place it if she had to lay it down. The yarn was held in a container, either her knitting box or yarn holder, in such a way that the ball would not roll around on the floor or porch.

She had learned that dry cleaning and even careful washing would not remove gray dirt marks that have been ground in during careless knitting.

This bonnet may be knitted on the flexible circular needle, but not as a round and round affair like a skirt. The flexible needle is easier to handle than a pair of straight needles.

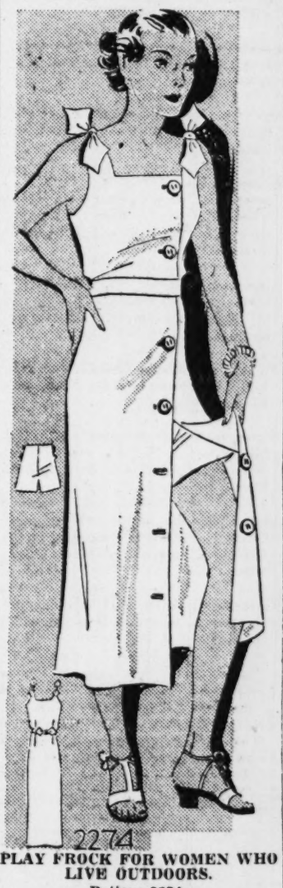

The first stiches which are cast on become the two edges going down the center of the crown. They are later sewed together as the directions given in the sheet will explain. The directions are given in detail in this sheet which you may procure by following the directions at the end of this column today.

The washable ties may be snapped in place if you choose small, flat snaps—a kind that won't dig or press into the soft flesh of the baby. Snapping the ties on and off makes them easier to launder and to keep fresh and clean. The bonnet may have a soft silk lining which will show through the lacy part and make the bonnet warmer.

Direction leaflet on "Lacy Knit Bonnett" may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page, care The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Georgia.

The assembly has completed a successful administration under the leadership of Miss Marylin Howard, worthy advisor. Mrs. Annie Mae Jacks is mother advisor.

"ALL THE FUN WAS GONE OUT OF LIFE"
says middle aged woman

Many women suffer from hot flashes, dizzy spells, nervousness and other annoying symptoms of the Change of Life. They get so blue and discouraged that life does not seem worth living.*

Mrs. Matushek

"All the fun was gone out of life," complains Mrs. S. Matushek of 10907 Edbrooke Ave., Chicago. For five years I was going through a very bad time. I was nervous, had terrible headaches, could not climb stairs and felt swollen. Your Vegetable Compound worked wonders for me. It is a great medicine for any time of life, but especially at the Change and before motherhood. My daughter Lucille used to faint at the office. Your medicine helped her and helped my daughter-in-law too."

Miss Scott Weds Mr. Healey Jr. At Fashionable Church Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Healey Jr., leaving the Peachtree Christian church last night after being united in marriage. Mrs. Healey is the former Miss Betty Watson Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Trammell Scott. Staff photo.

Fashionable members of Atlanta society and out-of-town guests assembled at the Peachtree Christian church Wednesday evening to witness the marriage of Miss Betty Watson-Scott, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Trammell Scott, to Jack J. Healey Jr., of Detroit, Mich., which was one of the most brilliant events of the spring season. Rev. Frank K. Sims, of Dalton, Ga., performed the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock. Prior to and during the ceremony an appropriate program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Victor Clark.

The beautiful interior of the church was decorated with a profusion of rich greenery amid which were interspersed tall pedestal baskets filled with Easter lilies. The background of the palms and ferns and lilies formed an effective setting for the many cathedral candelabra holding white burning tapers. Large white tapers in standard effect were placed on every third row of pews down the center aisle forming an effective lighting arrangement and added a regal note to the occasion.

Wedding Party.

Acting as ushers were Dr. Phinizy Calhoun, James L. Dickey, Harry Sommers, Neil Conrad, Herbert Oliver, Fonville McWhortr. The groomsmen were David Gwinn, Stanley Hunt and Samuel Wells, of Menominee, Mich. Mrs. Stanley Hunt, of Atlanta; Mrs. Samuel Wells, cousin of the bride-elect, of Menominee, Mich., and Mrs. A. M. Rogers, of Mexia, Texas, were bridesmaids. Mrs. Trammell Scott acted as matron of honor for her daughter, and Miss Mary Trammell Scott was junior bridesmaid for her sister.

The bridesmaids were gowned in beautiful models of dull red sheer chiffon. The fashionable high neckline in front was achieved by two rows of ruffles which dropped to form the low decolletage in the back. From the waistline three ruffles fell in graceful effect to form the long train. Their slippers were of satin and matched their gown and they each carried large sheafs of calla lilies. Mrs. Scott wore a gown similar to those worn by the bridesmaids of white dull sheer chiffon. Her flowers were calla lilies dyed red. Miss Scott's gown was also of white and her flowers were a bouquet of red roses.

Lovely Bride.

Entering with her father, Trammell Scott, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the bridegroom and Palmer Snow, of Auburn, N. Y., who acted as best man. Her wedding gown of antique ivory satin fashioned period style was an exquisite model, and was worn by her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Elizabeth T. Emerson, of Menominee, Mich. The basque waist was featured by a becoming Queen Anne collar and around the neckline a band of net beaded in an exquisite design of seed pearls was a becoming feature. The sleeves were net to the elbow and were completed to wrist length by full lace ruffles.

The long and full satin skirt featured a panel of net down the front which was appliqued with pearls, the same design as featured around the neck. The period style was introduced by the bustle effect which formed the long train. The bride wore a duchess lace cap from which fell an exquisite lace panel over the long veil of voluminous tulle. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of gardenias, bordered with valley lilies. She carried a real lace handkerchief bordered in lace which belonged to her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Emerson. Her only ornament was a diamond bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom.

Reception at Home.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Scott entertained at a reception at their home on Habersham road honoring their daughter and Mr. Healey, the guests including only members of the two families, the out-of-town guests and the wedding party.

Forming the receiving line with the hosts were the bride and bridegroom, Mrs J. J. Healey, mother of the bridegroom, and the members of the wedding party. Mrs. James T. Williams kept the bride's book and assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Phinizy Calhoun, James L. Dickey, Harry Sommers, Neil Conrad, Herbert Oliver and Fonville McWhorter.

Garden flowers were used in effective arrangement throughout the home for the decorations with palms and ferns forming a rich background. The bride's table in the dining room was overlaid with a real lace cover and was centered with a mound of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Healey, mother of the bridegroom, was handsomely gowned in white lace posed over white satin. Her flowers were deep purple orchids. Mrs. Frank M. Boston, aunt of the bride, was gowned in black chiffon and wore orchids. Miss Zenobra Boston wore yellow chiffon with a shoulder bouquet of yellow roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Grace Healey, of Lowell, Mass., sister of the bridegroom, wore pink pebble crepe and her flowers were orchids. Miss Dora Healey, another sister, wore blue taffeta. Her flowers were gardenias.

Mr. Healey and his bride left for their wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. Upon their return they will make their home in Detroit, Mich., where they will be popular additions to the ranks of the younger married set of society. The bride traveled in a model of blue dull sheer crepe worn with a quilted cape of taffeta. Her hat was a poke bonnet model and she wore a shoulder spray of orchids.

City Federation Meets May 29

Mrs. Oscar Palmour, the president, announces the spring meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs to be held Wednesday, May 29, at 10 o'clock at the Atlanta Athletic Club on Carnegie way. Club presidents are expected to make reports and take typed reports in triplicate so as to facilitate publishing in yearbook. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock at 75 cents per plate.

Executive board meets on Friday, May 24, at 10 o'clock at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Mrs. R. Murdoch Walker, the vice president, will preside. Officers and chairmen are requested to have written brief reports ready for this meeting and resolutions to come before the open meeting on May 29 should be in hands of committee by May 15 to be presented at the executive board meeting.

St. Anthony's Club Plans Breakfast.

Members of St. Anthony's Club will have the annual communion breakfast this year in the Pompeian room of the Biltmore on Sunday, May 19. The officers of the club, composed of the young people of St. Anthony's parish in West End, are William Oberst, president; Frank Fitzpatrick, vice president; Thomas Kehoe, secretary, and Jeannette Fitzpatrick, treasurer.

The breakfast will be an affair of general interest to Catholics throughout the city. A prominent Catholic layman will address the gathering. Those desiring to make reservations may communicate with any of the following: Misses Irene Monsch, Kathleen O'Keefe, Suzanne Hughes, Eleanor Smith, Ella Nora Anderson, Cornelia Collins or Joseph Sullivan, William Harington, Wilson Baker, William Hammock, Robert Cline.

Miss Edwards Honors Miss Catherine Kimbell

Miss Louise Edwards was hostess at a linen shower recently at her home on Copeland avenue honoring Miss Catherine Kimbell, a bride-elect of June, who will make her future home in Annapolis, Md.

Miss Edwards was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. D. A. Edwards, Mrs. G. C. Cook and Mrs. Ed Dunbar.

Circolo Italiano.

Circolo Italiano held its second social of the year on Saturday evening, at the Knights of Columbus hall, 1200 Peachtree street, N. E. Two hundred guests were entertained by a program presented by some of Atlanta's most talented youngsters, dancing and novelty numbers being offered. Dancing was also enjoyed from 9 to 12 o'clock.

The club plans similar entertainments in the near future, announcements to be made later.

The Beautiful Derelict

BY CAROLYN WELLS

INSTALLMENT XXX.

Fleming Stone, however, followed Dan as he went swiftly along some rear corridors, and Inspector Cox was close on Stone's footsteps.

Ming led the way, and her cheery voice rang out as they neared the nursery door: "We're coming, Samfari! Are you there?"

They were off in an ell, attached to the south wing of the old inn, and they found Samfari there waiting.

The nursery was a large suite of rooms, fitted up with all necessary and convenient appliances for the welfare and happiness of infants whose parents spent their summers at the old inn before the Waynes bought it. Barry had lived there many of his childhood seasons, and Ming was his efficient and devoted nurse.

The windows were barred lest heedless toddlers lean out too far, and now, with plenty of grown-up furniture about, the nursery was a delightful place for anyone looking for quiet and solitude.

Samfari himself threw open the door to his visitors. Dan stepped at once to his side, and putting his arm around the young man's shoulders, made a short speech.

"Before these witnesses," he said, looking around at the interested group, "before Inspector Cox and Detective Stone and Nurse Mingle, I declare here and now that this is my son, Samfari Wayne, and that he is to be accepted as such by all and sundry, so long as he shall live."

"I accept Samfari Wayne as your son and as my cherished friend," and Inspector Cox held out his hand to Samfari, who accepted it gravely.

The gesture was repeated heartily by Stone, and with a deferential timidity by Ming.

"He is my boy, as Barry was my boy," she said, almost reverently, and drawing down his tall head she kissed him on the brow.

"Of course," Dan went on, "this will be ratified and legally declared in the courts. This is merely my informal announcement to you, my friends, who are by me now. All details will be properly cared for, as soon as may be. The furtherance of the matter on which Mr. Stone is working will proceed with all possible speed, but today, tonight, I have set apart for the introduction of my son to my friends. Shall we join them now?"

The three men went downstairs, and in the common room Dan again made practically the same announcement he had made upstairs.

The Holts, and Vera, as well as Pat Wayne himself, and Rod Campion, who had drifted back, voiced a chorus of welcome and congratulations, and Samfari, quite at his ease and looking very handsome, smiled his thanks and joy at the occasion.

Ming, in the servants' sitting room, was telling the tale, and immediately afterwards conferring with Bangs and Kiah regarding a feast that would be spread later for a few of the best and dearest friends of the Waynes.

Jane Holt was perhaps the most excited one of the party. She seemed, like Dan and Ming, ready to accept the new son as a complete substitute for Barry, in every respect. Almost she embarrassed Samfari by the expressions of regard and the assumptions of proprietorship with which she showered him.

Steve Holt, too, appeared to have overcome his uncertainty as to Samfari's worth and value, and made very friendly with him.

Vera was in her kindest, gentlest mood. She welcomed Sam to the family circle, declaring she belonged to it herself.

In a word, everybody was glad and happy, yet not forgetting that Lang Syne was a house of mourning and a dark cloud overhung its people.

When at last the evening was done, and they separated with friendly good nights, Dan asked Samfari if he wished to change his rooms then, or wait another day.

"I shall not change," Sam replied; "I have no fear now of the Korowaar. I dwell under the roof of my father. Nothing will harm me. Barry's places are now my places. Yet—I lock my doors."

He smiled a little when he said a final goodnight and backed into his small foyer, and at once they heard the door click as its lock fastened itself.

The many clocks in the old inn went 'round and 'round, yet at 9 next morning no sound had been heard from Samfari.

Kiah and Ming consulted, and then carried their dilemma to Fleming Stone rather than the Waynes.

With them, Stone went to the door that Samfari had clicked shut the night before. It was still shut and locked, and there was no other entrance to the suite. Save, of course, the windows. These, all fastened firmly in place, gave admission to ventilating air, but left no opening large enough for one to get in or out.

"Go and get Mr. Pat Wayne," Stone said to Kiah. "Don't tell Mr. Dan yet."

And then, with Pat's permission, Stone ordered a pane cut from one of the bedroom windows. Kiah managed this deftly and Stone stepped through the opening. He turned back quickly, and opening the French window beckoned to Pat.

Pat came in from the veranda and the two men stood gazing down at Samfari Wayne as he lay in his bed.

And he lay there, dead, with a cruel looking Malay kris sticking out from his heart.

Pat Wayne called Kiah from the veranda, and as he entered Pat dropped the heavy curtain again over the French window.

"We must see what to do," he said, and his voice shook a little. "I'm bewildered, Stone. Why are all these terrors happening here? And while I feel it keenly enough, think of Dan! How can I face him with news of this new tragedy? What do you advise? Shall Kiah go and fetch him up here, or shall we go downstairs and tell him?"

Stone noted that Pat's thoughts were all for his brother. So he said gentley, "Suppose we get Dan up here and let him advise. Breaking the news to him, hard as it will be, is only the beginning of what we are up against. You know, of course, we must notify Cox at once, and the police routine must start afresh. Let me look around here just a moment before we make any move."

Pat nodded silently and turned again to the still figure on the bed.

Stone, who knew the room well, wanted to make himself sure as the means of entrance. The door into the hall was the only ingress to the suite as a whole. The bedroom, where they were, had a door into the dressing room and another into Barry's library.

These were not locker or bolter. Samfaria had locked only the main outer door.

Two French windows opened on the veranda. One of these had given entrance to the men now inside; the other was firmly fastened, with its ventilator adjusted for air.

Carefully, Stone noted the locks and bolts, even making a few hurried notes, and then said: "How did Samfari's murderer get into this room?

But Pat's response to this, was simply, "And out again? I've often said, Mr. Stone, that I didn't believe in the fiction plots that hinge on what they call 'a hermetically sealed room,' but I must admit this looks like it. I must admit, too, that I would like to leave those matters until we have told Dan about this. He may go out somewhere, and it is his right to know of it as soon as we do. Shall Kiah go for him?"

"Yes. Tell no one else, Kiah, but bring Mr. Dan here at once."

The man started, and then paused. "You know, Mr. Stone, Ming and me kep' watch outside, all night."

"Watch outside? What do you mean?" Pat asked, curiously.

"Why, Mr. Dan he arranged that Ming and me should spell each other a-watchin' that nobody got into Mr. Samfari's room. And nobody did. I took two hours and then Ming she took two hours, the whole endurin' night. And nobody—nobody, Mr. Stone—coulda got in these here rooms. 'Course, they coulda broke in a winder, like we did jest now, but likewise, you can see that wasn't done."

"Then, how did the murderer get in, Kiah?"

"Why, he couldn't get in. Mr. Stone; and he didn't get in. Which brings us back to—"

"Don't be silly, Kiah!" Pat exclaimed. "You were going to say Korowaar, which is absurd. If you have gone oriental, talk with Ming about it, but not to us."

"Yes, Mr. Pat. And shall I go now for Mr. Dan?"

"Yes," Pat said, "go on. Don't speak a word to anyone else, not even Ming."

"Think of Ming and Kiah keeping watch all night," Pat mused. "Dan was certainly fearful of some one or something that he thought threatened Sam."

"He will tell us," Stone said. "I think, Mr. Pat, that while you talk with your brother, I will call up Inspector Cox, for we will be censured if we delay too long."

Kiah returned with Dan. The man nearly collapsed under this new blow. "What does it mean?" he groaned, "what does it mean? Are we all doomed to violent death? Who will be the next?"

Stone looked at Dan Wayne with infinite sorrow and then slipped away and telephoned Cox. He went slowly back to the room where Samfari Wayne lay dead, where Daniel Wayne was fighting against a nervous collapse, and where Patrick Wayne was doing all he could to comfort his stricken brother.

"I must ask you to go to some other room," Stone said, "for it is my duty to turn this suite over to the police as nearly as possible as we found it. Kiah, you may tell Ming of this, but if anyone else asks you about it, refer them to me."

Kiah took Ming to a small empty office, and told her the news. She listened in silence, and then said, slowly, "Now, perhaps you will believe in Korowaar's powers. You know, you and I watched the night through; you know, no human being entered or could enter Samfari's rooms. Then, what explanation is there but the power of that devil of all evil? A dagger in his heart, you say? What dagger? Where from?"

"It's a heathenish looking thing. One of those that form a trophy on the wall of the library."

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

The Bible, which is the world's "best seller" of all books, was written over a period of 1600 years and has been called by many names. Anciently, it was called "The Divine Library." Later it was called "The Books." By common consent during the last 700 years, it has been called "The Bible."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

TREES OF THE FOREST.
IV—The Cypress.

Trees are part of the wealth of the human race. Let us take care of them!

They give us shade in hot, sunny weather. They are a treat to the eyes as they stand in their full-leafed beauty; and they are a storehouse for many things which we need.

In the past, sad to say, men have not taken good care of their forests. There has been too much clearing of forest land for the growing of crops—often when the land was not well suited to farming. There has been too much cutting for lumber, without planting new trees where the old ones stood.

These thoughts come to me as I write about the cypress, which produces lumber known as "the wood eternal." That phrase may be taken as a slogan, for there is no wood which will last forever; but it is certain that cypress will last a long time. Some pieces, in doors for example, have lasted for centuries.

Twenty-six years ago, a survey showed that there were about 40,000,000,000 "board feet" in cypress sawtimber in the southern United States. Another count, four years ago, showed that almost nine-tenths of the cypress saw-timber was gone! Great forests had been cut down. New trees had been planted in some parts, but not nearly enough to take the place of the old.

Forests are for our use. They should supply us with the lumber we need; but the example of the cypress forests gives an idea of how men have let their tree wealth slip away.

Southern cypress trees grow well in the moist soil of swamps; but may be hurt when the water level rises. If the swamps which have too much water, are drained, it will help save the trees which still stand, and will aid the growth of new trees.

There are a dozen kinds of cypress. The trees are native to Asia and to southern Europe, as well as to North America. One kind is known as the Nootka Sound cypress or "Alaska cedar," and grows very well along the northwest coast of our continent.

The world's most famous cypress tree is in Mexico, not far from Mexico City. It is known as "El Tule," and has been called "the tree of the ages." We do not know its exact age, but it is believed to be at least 4,000 years old—and it may be much older than the pyramids of Egypt. In 1803, the famous traveler Alexander von Humbolt visited this tree and reported that the distance around the trunk was 117 feet! Thousands of persons have looked at it since Humboldt's day, and it still seems to be growing in lusty fashion.

Crackers Take First, 4-2, and Lose Second to Lookouts, 4-3

HAVANA, Cuba, May 15.—(By Air Mail.)—There are no more likeable people than the Cuban people and especially such two fine ones as Juan Sabates and Conrado Massageur, who are in charge of this party of visiting newspapermen now visiting in Cuba as the guests of the government's tourist commission.

And this morning they said we would come late in the afternoon to pay a visit of homage to the statue of Jose Marti, Cuba's Apostle of Liberty.

And so we said we would like to place a wreath at the base of the statue because Jose Marti had been a newspaperman as well as a statesman and an officer in the army. He knew how to die, too, dying before the Spanish troops in 1895 after fighting them for 18 long years with pen and sword and eloquence.

It was late afternoon when we came to the square where the tall marble statue stands, with the figure of Jose Marti upon it, his hand outstretched in a gesture.

To one side glittered the blue waters of the harbor which has known the history of almost five centuries. And not far away was the old castle which DeSoto had built for himself and wife. And across the square was some of the old Spanish castles, 200 years old.

The sun was golden; a deep golden as it gets to be at sunset in these tropic climes. And it came hot over the buildings to fill the square and the trees with its gold.

There were a dozen of us there. Southern newspapermen from three states. And as we stopped and quit the cars before the statue, the Cubans began to gather. Our little party had honored A. H. Chapman, publisher of the Bradenton (Fla.) daily, and the writer by asking us to carry the large wreath to the statue and asking also that this reporter say something in tribute to Marti's memory.

And standing there in the hot sunset, looking at so many centuries, and telling how Marti had written editorials in Spanish which Charles Dana had translated himself so much did he value them; of how Marti had first enlisted the sympathy of America in Dana's New York Sun; of how he had fought and led the Ten Years' War against the Spanish armies from 1868 to 1878 and then gone on to die fighting in 1895—it all seemed very solemn and we all felt very solemn paying our small tribute to a great man of another nation.

There will be many experiences for us all perhaps but the southern newspapermen here in Cuba this week will never forget that little scene on the square of Liberty before the marble statue of the Apostle of Liberty as we stood there in our small tribute.

CHILI DRON.

We have been eating many Cuban meals. On Sunday there had been lunch at the American Yacht Club with chicken and yellow rice. And today there was Chili Dron at the Tropical Gardens, which are a part of the Tropical beer gardens.

We were at the Hindu temple, one of the great outdoor eating places in the garden. And there had been a great dish of fish with a creole sauce. And then had come great flagons of beer and salads and the cool, crisp Cuban bread.

And then came huge earthen bowls of meat with a chili sauce.

"Ah," said Conrado Massageur, "this is Chili Dron, a great Cuban dish, and you must all eat until you burst."

And when the meat and its fine sauce was served we all fell to and endeavored to do just what Massageur had asked.

There was an interruption. "Mr. Massageur," said one of the ladies in the party, "what is the meat in Chili Dron?"

"Goat, madame," said Mr. Massageur cheerfully, "which is Cuban mutton."

Whereupon at least two of the ladies pushed away their Chili Dron. And did not try to burst.

But the rest of us went right on. It did not taste like goat. It tasted like Chili Dron, which is a magnificent dish. Especially when served at the Tropical Garden.

THE SADDEST LOOK.

Quite a number of the visiting members of the press are addicted at home to nickel cigars. Now, the Cubans are used to the very finest hand-made cigars and they regard the cheap cigar as a crime against mankind.

"You puff and you puff," explains Conrado Massageur, "and my heavens, you are rewarded with so little."

But it was just this morning that I witnessed a little tragedy. "Have a cigar," said Mr. Juan Sabates, one of the impresarios of this journey about Cuba. He proffered a brand which is not for sale in the states but which if it were would retail at about 50 cents the copy.

Have one of mine," said the visiting fireman, and he shoved at Mr. Sabates a brand which is very, very cheap and scored, even, by the brass-like throats of the addicts.

Sabates, being the soul of courtesy, took the cigar and lit it. And for five minutes I watched a very fine example of the agony endured by one accustomed to Cuban-made cigars. He finally managed to drop it accidentally and took one of his own. A very polite man, Mr. Sabates.

GOLD ON THE CEILINGS.

This morning there was a visit to the president's palace and a reception by Carlos Mendieta, president of the republic of Cuba.

And later there was a visit to the capitol building, built at a cost of $24,000,000. (Our own capitol at Washington cost $5,000,000).

Most of the ceilings are covered with real gold leaf.

"They put the gold leaf on the ceilings only," explained one of the guides, "because the politicians cannot reach it up there."

Which may be an idea for future builders of state and national capitols.

THE DIARIO DE LA MARIANO.

Last night the party visited the offices of the Diario de la Mariano, the Havana newspaper which is 104 years old.

It publishes a daily roto section of four pages, if you care to know how up to date it is. And its news and sports sections run to a great many columns.

Two translators are kept busy at the A. P. ticker. The news comes in from the United States office in English. The translators rewrite it all into Spanish.

The visit brought us an enthusiastic greeting from the newspapermen on the staff. There was, in fact, a little party for us.

DETROIT BEATEN AS YANKS END WESTERN TOUR

Ruffing Blanks Tigers for New York's Only Win.

DETROIT, May 15.—(AP)—The Yankees again showed their power against southpaw pitching today by trimming the Tigers and Joe Sullivan, clever young left-hander, 4 to 0, in the final game of their western tour. It was their first triumph in the series with Detroit.

Charley Ruffing, who had failed to complete one of his first three starts, came back with a brilliant six-hit shut-out performance while Sullivan, who had won three in a row, was rapped freely, and Elon Hogsett, another portsider, was touched for the last couple of Yankee hits and the final run.

Ruffing was in real trouble only once. In the sixth inning the Tigers crammed the corners with one out when Manager Mickey Cochrane and Charley Gehringer hit singles and Hank Greenberg drew a pass. But "Rufus the Red" stepped up and fanned Goose Goslin then made Billy Rogell pop up to end the threat.

The Yankee pitcher did well enough at bat to win his own game when he scored the first tally in the third, smacking a hard double to right and coming home on Jesse Hill's base hit and Red Rolfe's fly. In the fifth inning the Yanks nicked Sullivan for two more runs. Hill walked and was forced on Rolfe's attempted sacrifice. Then Ben Chapman, back in the lineup for the first full game since April 27, and Tony Lazzeri hit a pair of singles and Bill Dickey smashed a two-bagger to bring in the runs.

YANKS 4; TIGERS 0.

'Gator Trackmen To Enter S. E. Meet

GAINESVILLE, Fla., May 15.—(AP)—Four University of Florida athletes will compete in the Southeastern conference track meet at Birmingham Saturday.

Alton Brown, of Palatka, has entered the shot put and discus events, and Erroll Mestrezat, of Miami, the two-mile run.

Billy Richardson, of Ocala, competing in the low and high hurdles, and Dick Ezzard, of Orlando, in the half-mile run, will enter freshmen events.

The quartet will leave tomorrow, accompanied by Track Coach Dutch Stanley and other members of the athletic staff.

AMERICUS, Ga., May 15.—Manager Don Sikes' single scoring Henry from third broke a ten-inning tie here this afternoon, enabling the Americus Cardinals to trounce their age-old enemies, the Albany Travelers, 6-5.

Ammon pitched beautiful ball for four innings but weakened in the fifth before a barrage of Cardinal hits. He finished the game, however, giving up 12 blows.

Kearns went the route for Americus, his teammates giving him almost perfect support.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., May 15.—Joe Crisler, Moultrie southpaw, had Thomasville's Orioles baffled during most of the afternoon here today and the revamped Steers whipped the birds, 6-4.

A late rally by the Orioles featured by Milton Gray's smashing triple to left center in the eighth saw the Birds tally twice in the eighth and once in the ninth, but the rally was not strong enough to snap a six-game losing streak for Thomasville.

Avondale Wrestling In Outdoor Arena

Avondale wrestling will be moved into the open tonight, when Promoter Nat Jones opens his new outdoor arena, located at the entrance of the Avondale Estates. A good card has been lined for tonight and the first match will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

"Whitie" Patterson, rugged Panthersville veteran, meets Bob Anderson, of Decatur, in a winner-take-all affair. They will meet in the feature match, scheduled for a two-hour limit, best-two-out-of-three-falls match.

"Totem Pole" Anderson, Alaskan wrestler, and a veteran of many battles, will match holds with John Dameron, Kirkwood, in the semi-windup match, slated for a one hour, three falls. "Gas House" Fuller, Atlanta, will tangle with Foy Rivers, of Marietta, in the opening 45 minutes, one fall match.

Reserved seats can be obtained by calling Dearborn 4236.

Newmarket Stakes Won by Bobsleigh

NEWMARKET, Eng., May 15.—(AP)—Bobsleigh, owned by Lord Derby, won the Newmarket stakes over a mile and a quarter route today. The race is famed as a Derby test.

Bobsleigh, second choice for the Epsom Downs classic, finished two lengths ahead of Aga Khan's Hairan. Another eight lengths behind came Lord Astor's Flash Bye.

Bobsleigh started at 8 to 11, Hairan at 2-to-1 and Flash Bye at 23-to-1. Nine ran.

The race last year was won by Windsor Lad, who went on to capture both the Derby and the St. Leger.

Sir Alfred Butt's Windsail scored a run-away victory in the spring two-year-old stakes, first important test for juveniles. The filly was eight lengths ahead of Lady Montagu's Master Jinks. Sire Findlay's Maple Tree was third. Sixteen ran. Windsail at 7 to 4, Master Jinks at 100 to 8, and Maple Tree, 100 to 9.

BOSTON, May 15.—(UP)—Johnny Kelley, Arlington florist who won the recent Boston A. A. marathon, has abandoned plans for competing in the forthcoming marathon in California, nor will be compete in the Washington, D. C., marathon, June 1, he said today. Kelley will compete in a 10-mile race here May 30 but will remain out of marathoning until 1936.

PETRELS TAKE AUBURN SERIES; STEWART STARS

Petrel Second Baseman Doubles in 13th To Win Game.

AUBURN, Ala., May 15.—Doubling in the thirteenth to score two runs, Frank Stewart broke up a brief pitchers' duel between Lawrence Wade and Raford Furlow and gave Oglethorpe a 7-5 win over Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn, Wednesday. It looked for a while that the nerve-tingling game would have to be called because of darkness with the count knotted, but Stewart, second baseman, erased this thought with his two-bagger that gave the Petrels three out of four over Auburn for the season.

Both Furlow and Wade, whom the Tigers defeated Tuesday, 2-0, and who trimmed Auburn, 3-1, last Friday,

EARNSHAW SOLD TO DODGER CLUB

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP)—The Chicago American league baseball club today announced that George Earnshaw, veteran right-handed pitcher, had been sold to Brooklyn. It was an outright cash deal, said club officials, who declined to disclose the purchase price.

Earnshaw, for years one of the outstanding hurlers of the American league, was sold to the White Sox during the winter of 1933-34 and began his second season with the Chicagoans this spring.

The big right-hander was an important cog in Connie Mack's pennant-winning aggregation which figured in Vanderbilt's silks to the front in the renewal of the Toboggan handicap at the opening of Belmont Park's 22-day spring meeting today.

A crowd of more than 10,000 backed the Vanderbilt colors into favoritism at 9 to 5 with the hopes Discovery would show the same speed that won him close to $50,000 last year, when he was ranked second to Cavalcade

HARRY KELLEY MEETS DEFEAT IN SECOND GAME

Bud Thomas Gets Credit for His Sixth Win of Season.

By Jimmy Jones.

ENGEL STADIUM, May 15.—A valiant effort by Harry Kelley to complete the riot of Joe Engel's Lookouts in the second game of the double-header here today fell barely short of success as the Crackers lost, 4-3, after taking the first game in a thrilling finish, 4-2.

A crowd of 5,000—the largest week-day crowd of the year—was enticed out by Joe Engel to see a new automobile given away and watch the ball club of his penitent lieutenant and recent bridegroom, Mule Shirley, salvage one of the four games played in the first series of the year between the two teams.

This game, it may be stated, hinged on the one step by which Johnny Mihalic, Chattanooga's chunky Pollock second baseman from Cleveland, beat Henry Oana's peg to the plate in the fifth when he scored on Catcher Mimes' long hoist to center.

It was the second loss of the season for Kelley, who was shooting for his seventh victory of the season and his second in two days. Kelly gave the Lookouts only six hits and pitched his customary masterful game. The Crackers got nine off Holsclaw but their fielding was not quite as tight as it might have been behind such inspiring pitching.

As things terminated, however, the Crackers took three out of four here and have won seven and lost four on the present road trip which percentage is satisfactory enough. New Orleans and the Lookouts are the only teams to beat Harry Kelley this season. Buster Chatham's lusty triple in the ninth with two on decided the first game in favor of Atlanta, and young "Bud" Thomas, who went in to relieve Big Jim Lindsey to start the eighth after Jim had been lifted for a pinch-hitter, got credit for his sixth victory of the season and his second of this series.

The score was tied, 1-1, when "Bud" went into the box. Lindsay pitched good ball until he was taken out, but as was the case in Jim's last start, the club didn't do much hitting for him.

Before the game today Manager Moore announced the reduction of his squad to the league's required 16 players by sending Outfielder Paul Easterling to Bert Niehoff's Oklahoma City team in the Texas league and assigning young Al Williams, the pitcher, to Portsmouth, in event no Southern league club claims him on waivers, which expire tomorrow.

Lynn Nelson, pitcher, is suspended with an injured finger and another

WALTER HAGEN SEES A 'FAIR' CHANCE TO WIN

Paul Runyan Is Lad To Beat at Oakmont, He Says.

DETROIT, May 15.—(AP)—Now that Walter Hagen has passed "kindergarten" successfully by qualifying for the national open to be played at Oakmont in June, he's willing to hazard an opinion on who will be "the lad to beat" for the open title—"if conditions are right."

Hagen, who shot a 149 to gain a place among five qualifiers from the Detroit district, believes he himself has a "fair" chance to win the crown. He admits he's slowing up a little and has lost his old putting touch, but he's willing to name the player most likely to give everyone trouble.

"I think Paul Runyan is the lad to beat, if conditions are right," said Sir Walter. "He's a good golfer, perhaps a great one. But the thing I like about him is that he's careful. He studies every shot a long time, and he knows just about what he is going to do. Oakmont is that type of course where a fellow will have all kinds of chances to study shots, too. For that reason I like Runyan."

CONDITIONS VARY.

Hagen explained that a lot depends on the conditions under which the open is played.

"You know," he went on, "the elements have a lot to do with golf. If its raining the greens are slow and the fairways are heavy. You don't get a lot of roll and a lot of other things happen. On the other hand, if conditions are right, there's no wind blowing—why, the fairways are swell and the greens are fast and you could judge fairly well who would be in the fight."

Hagen believes a "lot of fellows are going to find out a few things when they get to Oakmont."

"It's a good test of golf, all right," Walter said, "but the course is unfair for the best pros, decidedly unfair, and I'll tell you why."

The veteran believes the traps at Oakmont are constructed in such a way they penalize all types of shots. As Hagen explained it, "the traps are corrugated, a mass of furrows. That's not right, because this is the way it works.

TOO MANY TRAPS.

"Many of the traps are just about 100 to 150 yards from the green. Now when a fellow is that close he is entitled to try for the flag, isn't he? Well, he doesn't get that chance at Oakmont. In those furrows the best he can do is to take a niblick and pitch out on the fairway. He can't try for the pin.

"Now suppose a fellow plunks his ball in front of the trap. He must expect a penalty. But take the fellow whose shot barely trickles into the sand. He should be in a position to explode out or use a semi-explosion shot. He can't do it, from those furrows. Of course, there's one chance in a thousand that his ball will land on top of one of the ridges. He's all set then, but that's a rarity.

"What I'm trying to point out is the fact that Oakmont penalizes a shot maker. Shot makers, you know, don't make their best shots from the fairways. The best shots come from the traps and the rough. But the shot maker is going to have tough going in Oakmont's traps."

Hagen was asked what score he thought would win, and said that if weather conditions are right, a total of 294 would cop the title.

three World's Series from 1929 to 1931.

He is 35 years old and one of the biggest men in baseball, standing 6 feet, 4 inches and weighing 200 pounds.

Earnshaw came to the White Sox in one of a series of deals by which Manager Mack, of the Athletics, broke up his championship team, the sale price was reported to have been $25,000.

The former Athletic had only fair success in Chicago. He worked under a salary agreement whereby he was promised a bonus of $500 a game for every victory over 10 in a season. His bonus last year was small.

Manager Jimmy Dykes, of the White Sox, asked waivers on Earnshaw this spring and all other American league managers passed him by, permitting the sale to Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, May 15.—(AP)—The Dodgers reduced to the 23-man player limit today by releasing Frank Lamanske, southpaw pitcher, and Manuel Onis, rookie catcher, to the Reading club of the New York-Penn league, a Brooklyn farm. Options were held on each player.

The release of two players was made necessary by the purchase of George Earnshaw, who will report to the Dodgers in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

GALEHOUSE GOES.

CLEVELAND, May 15.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians released Dennis Galehouse, right-handed pitcher, to the Minneapolis American association team today under a 72-hour recall arrangement. The deal reduced the Indians to the American league's 23-player limit.

player will have to be taken off when he is put back on the roster.

The first game was a nip-and-tuck affair, replete with beautiful fielding on both sides. The Lookouts led, 1 to 0 up to the eighth while Jim Lindsey and the veteran McColl waged a first-class pitchers' battle, each giving only six hits up to that stage.

The Crackers tied it up in that inning. "Pinky" James, the fleet Tarheel, batted for Lindsey to open the eighth and dropped a Texas leaguer double over third base on the first pitched ball. James made third on Lipscomb's infield bounder when "Buddy" Lewis, the 18-year-old third baseman, dropped Bobby Reeves' perfect throw. James scored a moment later as Johnny Hill forced Lipscomb.

"Bud" Thomas went to the mound in Lindsey's place and set the Lookouts down in order in their half of the inning.

The big ninth opened when Sheriff Harris ripped a single through the pitcher's box and Manager Moore advanced him to second by dropping a bunt in front of the plate. Some argument ensued over Moore's bunt, but since Jackson had made the play at first, the decision stood and Harris rested on second. McCaskill, who had made three straight hits, a double and two singles, was deemed too dangerous and after a huddle between McColl and Manager Shirley it was decided to put him on. After McCaskill walked, the diminutive Chatham, somewhat riled by the strategy, took a vicious whiff at the first pitch for a strike and then hit the next one far out between Marion and Waddey for three bases, scoring Harris and McCaskill, putting the Crackers ahead, 3 and 1. Chatham scored when Moore had Thomas, a good hitter by the way, to put on the old squeeze play. Thomas' bunt caught the Lookout infield flat.

Lipscomb ended the inning with a liner to Lewis, who doubled Thomas off first. The Lookouts got one run back in the ninth on Jackson's double and Lewis' single, but Oana came in fast to make a good catch of Shirley's line drive to center and then made a great throw to Harry Taylor, who stretched his full length to take it for a double play, catching young Lewis off first, greatly to Joe Engel's disgust.

FEATURE PLAYS.

This game abounded with good plays. "Red" Marion, the young outfielder from Atlanta, who supplied two of them, one in the fourth, when he robbed Henry Oana of an easy triple by racing back to the fence in center to take his long drive and again in the fifth when he cut off a Cracker run by nailing McCaskill, a fast runner, at the plate when the latter attempted to score from second on Jim Lindsey's single.

Harry Taylor's fielding at first smacked of the Hal Chase variety.

The Crackers move to Nashville for a three-game series tomorrow before returning home to play New Orleans' fast-traveling Pelicans Sunday. Bill Schmidt is scheduled to work the opener against Nashville.

DISCOVERY FAILS IN GOTHAM RACE

among the three-year-olds. The big chestnut son of Display never was a serious contender, however. He got away slow and although he made up ground, he could do no better than fifth, some three lengths back of his stablemate.

In contrast Identify, four-year-old son of Man 'o War, surprised by covering the six furlongs down the Widener straightaway in 1:11 3-5 under 108 pounds to earn the purse of $4,275. Samm Renick drove him home one and one-half lengths clear of Ajaccio, a 25-to-1 hazard from the Sanford stud farm. W. R. Coe's Pompey's Pillar, also an outsider, was another length to the rear, nosing Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, second choice, out of the picture.

With the field away to a good start, William Graham's Diminutive Open Range showed the way after the dozen horses got into stride. Most of the others were closely bunched, however, and at the half-way mark, Identify took command. He continued gamely to the end to hold the fast closing Ajaccio at bay.

VANDERBILT FIGURES.

Vanderbilt also figured in two other races. His two-year-old Winter Sport was beaten by F. D. Grimes' Western Flash, Billie Bane, in the four-half furlong dash for juveniles but Cold Shoulder scored in the closing event over Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Black Gift to pay 15 to 1. Only in the opening race, styled for two-year-olds, was the youthful master of the Sagamore farm shut out.

Villa Rica Wins Over Bremen, 8-5

VILLA RICA, Ga., May 16.—A fifth-inning rally which netted five runs enabled Villa Rica to beat Bremen, 8 to 5, here this afternoon in a Georgia-Alabama league game.

Villa Rica completed a double play and Bremen killed a Villa Rica rally with a triple play.

Farr's two doubles drove in four of Villa Rica's runs, while the hitting of Ayers and Williams also featured for the winners. Eidson, Herndon and Garrett hit best for the losers.

COLLEGE STARS JOIN 'CATFISH' IN DIXIE LOOP

Georgia, Auburn and Clemson To Furnish Diamond Stars.

By Bill Ray.

ATHENS, Ga., May 15.—Fans of the Dixie amateur league will see an all-college baseball club this summer when Vernon "Catfish" Smith, Georgia baseball coach and All-American end in '31, takes the managerial-coaching reigns of the Union Springs, Ala., baseball team.

Coach Smith, who was manager of the Troy, Ala., club last summer, will take a group of 15 college ball players representing the outstanding members of the Georgia, Auburn and Clemson clubs, he announced here today.

Members of the team that will be recruited from Coach Smith's Georgia club are Henry Wagnon, fielder and catcher; Lefty Nichols, pitcher; Alf Anderson, shortstop; Maurice Carter, fielder and catcher; Harrison Anderson, first baseman, and possibly Charley Treadaway, second baseman.

TREADAWAY OUT.

Treadaway was declared ineligible for college ball this spring due to failure to pass the required number of hours during the previous quarter. Treadaway will probably be on the team if he passes enough work this quarter to play football next fall.

Of the Georgia group Alf Anderson, sensational sophomore shortstop; Henry Wagnon and Lefty Nichols are the outstanding players. Nichols is a first-class college pitcher while Anderson and Wagnon are great hitters and fielders.

Nichols, who graduates this year, may go to the Jackson, Miss., club for a tryout as a pitcher. Jackson in the East Dixie league signed Cy Grant, the old Cornelia apple knocker, on Sunday for a one-year contract as center fielder.

Clemson College, which produced one of the best college ball clubs in South Carolina, will contribute two pitchers. They will be Alec Swails and Durham, who also plays second base.

FROM AUBURN.

From Auburn will come Scarborough, center fielder; Tipper and Stewart, third baseman.

One of the outstanding college pitchers in the south—Bullock of Ole Miss—may be secured for the Union Springs club. He has been recommended highly to Coach Smith.

The Dixie Amateur league opens on May 22, but Coach Smith and many of the college players will be unable to report before June 1. "That is the only difficulty," Smith said today, speaking of his inability to report at the beginning of the season.

Coach Smith, who was a pitcher at Georgia, may do relief pitching at Union Springs. In the final game with Georgia Tech in 1932 Smith, who was a senior at that time, finished a dramatic athletic career at Georgia by knocking a home run to score the winning run for Georgia.

Miss Wethered And Bob Jones Play Matches

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—(AP)—An itinerary stretching from New York to Atlanta and west to Chicago was announced today by Joyce Wethered, British woman golfer, on her forthcoming American tour.

Miss Wethered is due to arrive in New York on May 28. Her first match is scheduled two days later at the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club, Glen Head, Long Island.

Although it was originally planned to confine the tour to the northern part of the country—with Richmond, Va., the southernmost stop—sponsors of the exhibition series consented to have her play at Atlanta June 18 in a match with Bobby Jones.

Except for her first matches at the Women's National Club, Miss Wethered's opponents have not yet been selected and decision of them rests with the individual clubs at which she is to appear.

Her first exhibition on Long Island pits her and Bobby Jones against Gene Sarazen and Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare in a four-ball match, and a single contest against Mrs. Vare.

City Black Crackers Will Play Tonight

The Atlanta Black Crackers open a three-game home stay at Ponce de Leon park tonight at 8:15 o'clock with the Birmingham Black Barons as their opponents. This will be the first time this season meeting the Barons who are rated one of the strongest teams in the northern colored league.

Manager Sammy Thompson is undecided just which pitcher he will start but it is almost certain that he will send a southpaw to the mound. Atlanta's colored team will be fighting to hold their grip on first place in the league and a large crowd is expected to witness this game. A special section will be set aside to accommodate white fans.

NORMAN NEARS BASEBALL TITLE

NORMAN PARK, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Winning three out of four games on a road trip last week, the Norman Junior Bears have practically clinched the race in the Georgia College Baseball league for the second straight season.

The Bears broke even with the Statesboro Teachers, winning the first game, 11 to 10, but dropped the second, 10 to 1. At Mount Vernon the Norman nine easily took two games from the Brewton-Parker team, 14 to 5, and 5 to 1. In the second game, Norman Smith, leading hurler of the league, held the Brewton-Parker Barons to a single hit, the lone run following an error.

Norman faces the South Georgia Teachers from Douglas, second in the standings, in a two-game series at home Thursday and Friday. Plans are under way to move Thursday's game to Moultrie while the Moultrie club of the Georgia-Florida league is on a road trip.

were the third pitchers called upon for service on the firing line by their coaches, Wade took up where he left off Tuesday and gave up only one hit and a lone tally the five and two-third innings he toiled. Furlow also stood out in a relief role in limiting the winners to a trio of safeties and two runs in five and two-thirds innings.

Neither team scored until the seventh, the Petrels breaking the ice and sending John Paul Tipper to the showers with a three-run rally on a pair of singles and three charity tickets to first. Oglethorpe scored twice more in the next frame. Auburn's runs were secured in the seventh and eighth stanzas on six hits, an error and a base on balls. The Tigers could have scored again in the sixth if they had played alert baseball on a passed ball.

THREE ERRORS AID DOWNFALL OF GREAT STAR

Gives But 6 Hits; Young Brother Allows 5; 41,000 Present.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Bill Terry's Giants managed to sink one-half of the Dean boys today, Big Brother Dizzy, but Li'l Brother Daffy was the same old problem and so the St. Louis Cardinals split a double-header before a great week day crowd of 41,110, losing the first, winning the second, both by 4-to-1 count.

Dizzy and all the Cards had one turbulent inning in the first game, the seventh, when little Hughie Critz hit his second home run off the lanky right-hander, a feat so astonishing and upsetting to the Cards that they promptly made four errors before the side was out, three runs scoring in all, enough to insure 20-year-old Clydell Castleman his third straight victory for the Giants. Big Dizzy allowed only six hits.

With Brother Paul hurling beautiful five-hit ball in the second, the Cards came back to gang Hal Schumacher for four runs in the fourth, when Rip Collins slashed a home run into the upper right-field deck with two on. Paul fanned seven and would have had his shutout but for the fact that Ernie Orsatti dropped an easy fly ball in right field in the first inning, putting Dick Bartell on second. Bill Terry scored him with a single past third.

The Giants' victory over Dizzy in the first game equalled their entire record against him last year, when he beat them half a dozen times and lost but once, as did Daffy. It was Dizzy's third loss against four victories this season.

In Georgia's FIELDS and STREAMS

by H. C. Carter

When I took those bats home the other night we had a circus. I was all for turning them loose in the living room but the better half objected. She proposed the alternative plan of putting them in a baby bed, screened-in type, where they could flutter and we could get close-up views of them. So I hauled out the crib and tossed the open container inside, letting the lid catch my finger tip in my hurry to put it down. The little fellows landed on the matress and began to walk about, then flying here and there, turning in less space than their own wingspread at the ends of their cage.

But in just a few minutes I missed one of the five. I began looking for him but he found us first. He crawled out the bottom of the affair, between the matress and the spring, and was soon circulating through the apartment with joyful abandon. The others soon found out about this avenue of escape and took advantage of it. The room is small and was apparently full of bats. I had things my way but altogether unintentionally.

There is little one can do in the way of catching a flying bat except to swing on him with a butterfly net and then you get more exercise than bats. So while they continued to wing their merry ways about, I took several yards of oilcloth and covered the bottom of the cage, carefully plugging all holes. Then, when I began to look for my bats, only two of them were to be found. These I recaptured when they landed on the screen door and placed them in the cage. I looked through four rooms and found no more bats. Finally I located them in a dark coner of the ceiling, all three together, hanging up for a nap. It was easy then to put them in the cage with the help of a few boxes and squares of cardboard.

I watched them for over an hour as they walked on the oilcloth and crept over the screened sides of the crib. They flew restlessly back and forth, making a stop on the screen about every sixth round trip. Finally two managed to meet in one end of the crib, where they huddled togethere for a few minutes of rest. Shortly another one found them, and the pattern of three was repeated. Later there were four in the cluster and one suspended alone.

They began to fly when I turned out all the lights in the room. But next morning they were back in the same formation except that the group was in the other end of the cage.

On the Air Today

VARIETY PROGRAM—Running the musical gamut from "I'm Popeye the Sailor Man" to a Spanish medley, Horace Heidt and his Brigadiers will present another lively half-hour program over WGST tonight from 9:30 to 10 o'clock. The program will originate from KFZ, Denver.

The spirited variety program includes "Everything's Been Done Before," solo by Alyce King, blues singer; "I'm Popeye the Sailor Man," by Art Thorsen, boop-a-dooper, and three King Sisters; "April in Paris," tone poem by the orchestra; "Rhythm Is Our Business," Gene Knotts, pianist, and Jerry Browne, trumpeter; "Cradle and the Music Box," the glee club.

PIANO TEAM—Eldon Howells and Agnes Wright, noted two-piano team, will broadcast several concert selections over WGST from 3:30 to 3:45 o'clock this afternoon. Their program will originate through the facilities of station WBNS. The first part of their broadcast will feature the "Five Waltzes," opus 39, by Johannes Brahms, followed by Ernest Hutcheson's setting of the "Rakoczy March." The Wright-Howells duo are celebrating their first anniversary of programs over WBNS this month.

"CLEVELAND ENTERTAINS"—"Cleveland Entertains," featuring Louis Rich's orchestra, with Judy Sherrill, contralto, and the Bedford High school chorus, of Cleveland, will broadcast a program of concert classics and musical novelties over WGST this afternoon from 2 to 2:30 o'clock. Miss Sherrill will feature Johnson's melody, "Travelin' All Alone," and the Bedford High school chorus will offer Hahm's "Green Cathedral." The orchestra will play selections from "The Merry Widow."

Commercial

Bill Cox, of Atlantic Steel, hit three for five Saturday to take the lead among the batters in the Atlanta Commercial baseball league with an average for the season of .533. Smithwick, of American Bakeries, who has lead the hitters since the season opened, went hitless and is now in third position, while Ford and Simonton, of Atlantic Steel, are tied for second place, with .500. Atlantic Steel heads the list with five men batting above .400.

Following is a list of those in the league who have an average of .400 or over out of at least 12 times a that:

Joe Louis Predicts He'll Stop Carnera

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Joe Louis, Detroit's negro heavyweight hope, came to New York today with the flat prediction that he will stop Primo Carnera within five rounds when they meet at the Yankee stadium next month.

"I've never seen Carnera in action," said Louis, "but I've carefully studied pictures of some of his fights and they told me enough to convince me I can finish him in five rounds or less. That's my story and I stick to it."

The six foot, one brown bomber, just turned 21 and sporting 18 knockouts in 22 fights, was the toast of Harlem, the world's largest negro community, tonight. Friday he begins a week's engagement at a Harlem theater before getting down to serious training for his 15-round engagement with the ponderous Italian.

Louis will be at the ringside when Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock fight for the heavyweight title June 13.

"I'll be in there with one of those fellows later," he said.

Trap and Skeet Aces Open Fire Today in Annual State Race

THE DUFFER'S FAVORITE SHOT.

"What is your favorite shot in golf?" I asked a dub one day;
"The shot that brings its greatest thrill when in some hard-fought fray?
"A long drive from some well-trapped tee—a brassie to the green?
A soaring iron that clears the pond—and all else in between?

"Or maybe it's a niblick shot from some par-killing rut?"—
"My favorite shot," the duffer said, "is a conceded putt."

THE KILLING SNIPERS.

Some magician must have injected a new tonic into a flock of right and left elbows this season.

At any rate, every big league manager you run across seems to feel deeply depressed over the batting slump of some of his stars.

Most of them overlook the pitching they are facing.

"I've been looking on the toughest pitching this season I've ever seen," one of them told me recently. "No matter what team you meet, there's a deadly sniper out there shooting down your best hitters day after day. Both leagues are full of them—the two Deans—Mungo—Warneke—Blanton—Whitehead—Gomez—on and on and on."

The vital statistics seem to bear this statement out. For, at the end of the first four weeks, we find the following able-bodied athletes batting between .200 and .250:

Babe Ruth—Paul Waner—Lou Gehrig—Mickey Cochrane—Kiki Cuyler—Earl Combs—Bill Dickey—Frank Frisch—Rogers Hornsby—Leo Durocher—Bill Delancey—Babe Herman—Frey—Goslin—Trosky—and several others who ordinarily are well up in the .300 class.

This has been the roughest young season Lou Gehrig ever ran across. Lou had dust in his batting eye through most of the spring training season, and he hasn't been able to shake himself loose from the slump.

It is an odd fact that Paul Waner, of Pittsburgh, another league leader from 1934, has been struggling most of the year under the .250 mark.

So far, the pitching hasn't bothered Arky Vaughan, Jimmy Foxx, Joe Moore, Bill Terry, Hafey, Taylor, Gehringer, Vosmik and some others, but it has taken a heavy first month's toll for all of that.

Whitehead, of the White Sox, and Blanton, of the Pirates, two rookies, have turned in their share of trouble. These two blew in with a display of sinkers, hooks and a fast ball—plus more control than you'd figure a young fellow might carry into action.

Sharpshooting.

Spring Golf Tips.

"I'll slip you a tip on putting that will help a lot," Gene Sarazen remarked a day or two back.

"The trouble with most erratic putters is this—they lift the blade of the club off the green. This fault to any number of fine professional golfers, who keep wondering why their putts won't drop. The blade of the putter—especially on all putts from 2 to 10 feet—should be taken back close to the grass. It should not be lifted. The lift more than doubles the margin for error, and, in addition, nearly always produces a slight cut or spin that causes so many putts to hit the cup and then hop out.

"Keep the blade of the putter low—and take it back in a straight line from the ball. And don't take it too far back on putts from three to seven or eight feet. You'll find in this way you can hold the line much better—and that you will have fewer putts hitting the tin and popping out. Don't take the putting blade back on any inside or outside line—take it back as straight as you can away from the ball—but keep it low."

Which is about as sound advice as you might want.

Not So Distant Drums.

No one section of the country ever before heard as much leather thudding as New York's immediate vicinity now turns loose on the air.

McLarnin and Ross—Baer and Braddock—Carnera and Louis—in a busy scramble for what loose cash the metropolitan district can get together.

Any ambitious fight fan who wants a ringside seat at all three parties will need close to 50 iron men. There is more than the usual amount of rivalry in seeing just which of the three bouts will draw in more cash.

The third McLarnin-Ross meeting will get its share. The other two are still guesses. More than a trifle will depend on what Braddock can show in his next few weeks of training. The various reports that Baer is well behind in his training may boost the championship gate, as there still is a strong feeling that James J. is a bit beyond his class.

Baer's condition will always be a matter of debate. The Larrimore entry wasn't at his peak by a pole vault against Carnera, but a mixture of youth and strength can go further than many believe.

LEADING STARS WILL COMPETE; BEGINS AT 10

First Half of Georgia Class and Singles Scheduled at 16 Yards.

By Jack Troy.

As Arthur Cuscaden would say, the skeeters will squat and the trapshooters will grimace as opening events in the annual Georgia state trap and skeet championships are fired today at the Capitol Gun Club.

CUSCADEN.

The roly-poly pro from Tampa, who is a living example of that future shadow, wallowed into town yesterday and took his spite out on the 16 yards in practice. He couldn't miss, running 50 straight.

Then he decided to show up a couple of the skeeters—and did.

Art Cuscaden is one of the finest pros in the game. Known the country over, he is vastly popular. And there are few pros in the game who can shoot an entire program and show a better score, day in and day out.

Art is in great demand as a cashier, but he pleaded off in this shoot and will devote his time to crashing the 16 yards and plaguing the squat skeet shooters.

LEADING STARS.

Such noble trapshooters as Paul Earle, the shooting star from Starr, S. C.; John Kries, the roaring governor from Knoxville; Tack Hole Lee, of Birmingham, and Dan Glenn, of Birmingham, are expected early today.

Walter Huff, the grand old man of professional trapshooting, got in late yesterday. The venerable Macon pro, now in his seventies, is still able to hold his own with the younger shooters. He broke 50 straight in practice at the 16 yards yesterday.

Today's program begins at 10 o'clock. There will be 150 16-yard targets. The first 50 will constitute the first half of the Georgia class championship and the next hundred will constitute the first half of the Georgia singles championship.

SKEET PROGRAM.

The Georgia introductory skeet championship, 100 targets, also will begin this morning. Since half of the race must be shot over the elevated field, Jack Tway, Capitol secretary, announces that those who so desire may get the first 50 out of the way while the light is good. In the afternoon the sun is troublesome on certain stations.

There will be two handsome trophies for actual high gun and high gun with added birds in the skeet program.

More than 20 trapshooters and some 35 skeet shooters will participate in the opening day events.

H. L. White Wins Sherbet Shoot.

H. L. White led the way in the regular Wednesday silver sherbet program yesterday. He led a strong field of city skeet shooters. The shoot was designed as a preliminary to the Georgia state championship.

White, breaking 53x50, with handicap, finished two birds ahead of A. J. Orme Jr., who had a score of 51. Three shooters tied for third place, including Benson Freeman Jr., Jimmy Calhoun and Bill Healey, 50; Hugh Nunnally, Jack Gray, Tom Cassels and Jack Tway each had 49.

Other leading scores included C. W. Tway and Jack Troy, 48; Ralph Minehan, 47; Oliver Healey and Clyde King, 46; Mrs. Oliver Healey, 42, and Abe Moore, 41.

Visitors' scores included Joe Wofford, 47; Al Frese Jr., 45; Harry Harkins, 42; John Coleman, 42; Art Cuscaden, 41; Dr. H. N. Alford, 35; Dr. L. L. Welch, Marietta, 32; J. H. Pearson, 20. It was Pearson's first time at the skeet traps.

Walter Huff, Art Cuscaden and Charles Tway led at the 16 yards, each breaking 50 straight. Jack Tway was next with 48. H. N. Alford broke 43, Hugh Nunnally smashed 42 and Jack Gray hit 38.

Jack Tway, Doc Alford and Art Cuscaden led at doubles, 25 pair. Each broke 46. Charles Tway broke 40 and Hugh Nunnally smashed 36.

Twenty-five shooters took part in the program.

'Losers Pay' Meet Is Won by Blues

Charlie Currie and his "Blues" were guests of Strother Fleming's "Reds" Wednesday afternoon in a "losers' pay" dinner tournament on the Capital City course. The score was 11 to 6, and was the first of a series of a long schedule of summer tournaments.

In addition to the dinner tournament during the afternoon, 45 members filed their entry and qualified for the annual president's trophy tournament.

The qualifying will continue through Saturday afternoon with no low scores being recorded Wednesday.

Emory Golfers Defeat Georgia

Emory University's golf team defeated the University of Georgia team, 14 1-2 to 3 1-2 Wednesday afternoon on the Druid Hills course. Crawford Rainwater with a 74, led the Emory team and won three points from Rosser Little, Georgia.

Ray Menke lost three points to Albert Saye, Georgia, but the Emory pair won three points on the foursome.

In the other foursome, M. Smith, Emory, won 2 1-2 to 1-2 from Covington, Georgia, and C. Shropshire, Emory, won three points from H. Hodgson, Georgia. The Emory team won three points on the foursome.

Atlanta Fighters Feature Key Card

Atlanta fighters will feature the fight card at the Key arena tonight when Tom Fellers makes his debut as a promoter.

Fellers is seeking to develop Atlanta fighters for his card and amateur fights will be alternated with professionals. The first amateur fight is scheduled to be held Thursday night, May 23. Amateurs wanting to fight on the cards are requested to get in touch with Frankie Allen, Main 2359, or Wesley Orr, Main 3700.

Ben Brown will meet Stiffie Williams in the 10-round main go tonight. They are bitter rivals and tonight's fight will be a grudge affair with a knockout likely to come at most any time.

A fine set of preliminaries will complete the card which marks the return of boxing to the Key arena. Blackie Hart meets Harold Moore in a eight-round semi-windup. Chief Dago Potts will meet Kid Melton in a six-round main preliminary and Joe Mooney and Bill Coble will open the card.

Veteran Connie Hopes To Manage Until End

Says Only Two Things—Loss of Interest and Health—Can Make Him Quit Baseball.

By George Kirksey.

CHICAGO, May 15.—(UP)—Connie Mack sat by the window today watching the wind lash up Lake Michigan, and said only two things could make him retire as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

"One of them is to lose interest in the game," said Mr. Mack, "and the other is to lose my health. My interest in baseball hasn't waned a bit since I became manager of the Athletics in 1901, so I don't think I'll lose it at this late date. I suppose I may lose my health some time, but I hope to manage the Athletics right on down to the end."

Mr. Mack was 72 last December 23, celebrating his birthday on the Pacific ocean en route to Japan with the American league All-Stars, which he managed. He doesn't look or act 72 and he says he doesn't feel 72.

"I haven't had a cold in years and it's been a long time since I've been sick," he said. "I try to take care of myself and not take any chances."

On the road, Mr. Mack lives with his young son, Connie Jr. He retires at 11 each night and arises at 7 before any of the players. He eats three meals a day, and there are only two things that don't agree with him. They're blackberries and sweet potatoes.

ARE POISONOUS.

"Blackberries are poisonous to me," he said. "I'd become violently ill if I ate them."

In the mornings he reads the papers, answers his correspondence in pen and ink, goes for a walk, and chats with friends or his players. What page do you think Mr. Mack reads first? No, it's not the sports page but the front page. After luncheon he reclines on the bed for a rest of from five to 30 minutes but doesn't sleep.

He reaches the ball park an hour before game time and stands near an exit in the grandstand until 10 minutes before the game starts. He likes to watch practice from the stands, making mental notes on the opposing players as well as his own. He sits all during a game. He still carries a score card, and keeps his own score but doesn't use the card to signal the outfielders as much as he used to.

His players say he seldom criticizes their misplays but if a player does something that pleases him he usually says: "Good work" several times when the player comes back to the bench. When Mr. Mack is displeased with something a player did, he presses his lips together very tightly and looks grim but doesn't say anything.

The things he dislikes most on the ball field are indifference and carelessness. If a player continues to displease him, he calls him in for a father-and-son chat. His criticism almost always is constructive.

DOES NOT WORRY.

"I don't like to take a player to task," said Mr. Mack. "I try to put it off as long as possible. Sometimes I'll go a week or longer before I'll call a player in to speak to him."

Mr. Mack says he learned long ago not to brood or worry over defeats on the ball field.

"But sometimes," he said, "you lose a game that you should have won by every right and then it hurts me but I try to do something to make me forget as quickly as possible."

Mr. Mack's weight is now 150, and hasn't varied in a quarter of a century. As a player he weighed 160. He wears dark suits, and high stiff collars to cover up his long, thin neck.

He sometimes goes to the movies but isn't especially fond of them. He likes the comic strips in the papers, which he calls "very cleverly gotten up."

His religion is Catholic, and he goes to mass every Sunday at home or on the road. One of his daughters was educated in a convent.

Down the Alleys

The Individual Bowling league will open its schedule this coming Monday, May 20, at 7:45 o'clock, with an even dozen bowlers making up the loop.

While the full 12 players have not been registered it is a near certainty that most of them will be in line by the end of this week.

John Blick, operator of the local bowling alleys, is posting a cash prize fund of $50 to be distributed to the winners. Each player will pay $1 for each night's bowling and 55 cents of each dollar will go into the prize fund, the balance paying for the games. Three games will be bowled each Monday, in a regular league basis, that is each game will count as a win or loss with two players being matched as opponents and the full league bowling each Monday.

Members and prospective members include L. M. Tappan, Carl Tidwell, G. W. McKay, Dewey Bowen, Valter Lawson, A. J. Sossong, J. S. Blick, L. B. Outler, H. W. Crowe, E. E. Glading, Harry Cavan, H. E. Parker, Bill McAdams, Barnett, T. G. Allen, G. B. French, Charles Ross, A. Liebler, A. P. McElroy and others.

The Sunday School Summer league will resume activities at 7:45 o'clock this evening.

Teams from Westminster Presbyterian, Trinity Methodist, Cascade Avenue Methodist, Warner Hill's Bible Class, St. Mark's Methodist, Fellowship are scheduled.

Six more bowlers added their names to the list of prospective entrants for the "less than 100 average" bowlers duckpin tournament that will be bowled at Blick's this coming Saturday.

The players are E. G. Watson, Louis Daniel, A. B. Cain, John McCarley, O. B. Biggers, H. W. McNeely—the last three being from the Sinclair Refining league. No entry fee other than the cost of games will be charged and the winner will receive a $25 suit of clothes.

Career of Luque Comes to an End

NEW YORK, May 15.—(UP)—The active pitching career of Adolfo Luque, 45-year-old Cuban, came to an end today when the New York Giants transferred him to the coaching list in reducing its roster to 23 in accordance with the May 15 deadline.

Luque, one of the greatest right-handers of the past decade, had been pitching league ball for 23 years. His biggest year was 1923 when he won 27 games, lost eight and allowed only 1.93 earned runs per contest while pitching for Cincinnati.

The Giants list was reduced to 33 when Joe Malay, rookie first baseman, was released on option to the Fort Worth, Texas league club.

MARVIN LOSES TO KIRCHMEYER AT BALL PARK

Koverly Defeats Weaver; Pete Sauer Is Billed on Next Card.

Like the three witches which sorely plagued our old friend Macbeth so many years ago, Roland Kirchmeyer, Tom Marvin and Referee Doc Lanford foregathered in thunder, lightning and in rain at the ball park Wednesday night, with the gangling Kirchmeyer taking two out of three falls from the Indian to win the feature bout of Henry Weber's weekly wrestling card.

George Koverly, claimant of the Yugoslavia title and a newcomer here, made a hit with the fair-sized crowd in tossing rough Buck Weaver, 230-pounder, in straight falls to take the semi-windup. Weaver slugged, bit, gouged and choked, but Koverly proved a fast and clever grappler. He took the first fall in 21 minutes with a series of flying tackles, some terrific forearm blows that left Weaver staggering and two emphatic body slams. Three more body slams finished Weaver for the evening in five minutes.

"Preacher" Savage, bearded wrestler, failed to appear for the opener, wiring in that he had been injured in a bout at Bristol, Tenn., and Bruce Nolan, of Boston, went on in his place against Jack Warner, the Texan. Warner, fast and clean, was the crowd's favorite throughout, but Nolan was both rough and tough and neither gained a fall.

Tom Marvin was swinging in the rain from the start of the headline match, including one choice punch which landed square on Lanford's chin whiskers and floored the Doc for the nonce. Kirchmeyer used head scissors and wrist locks with effect, but gave up the first fall in 19 minutes when Marvin got his chin lock and squeezed. Early in the second fall, Kirchmeyer and Lanford joined forces to remove the tape from Tom's right hand. Then the tall westerner went to work and evened the match in 13 minutes with a flying tackle and two body slams. Marvin lasted 10 minutes in the deciding fall, yielding to a flying scissors as Kirchmeyer rebounded from the ropes.

Pete Sauer was announced as one of the principals in the main bout of the card next Wednesday night.

Chandler Sent To Portland Club

OAKLAND, Cal., May 15.—(AP)—Spurgeon Chandler, former University of Georgia athlete and right-handed pitcher owned by the New York Yankees, was transferred to the Portland club of the Coast circuit by the league-leading Oakland team on instructions from the Yanks. The big league club wants Chandler to see more action.

MAJOR NAMED TRACK CAPTAIN

ATHENS, Ga., May 15.—Evan K. Major, Decatur, two-mile runner, was elected captain of the '36 Georgia track team by the 12 letter men here today. Major is a junior at Georgia and is one of the outstanding distance runners in the Southeastern conference.

Lettermen selected today by Coach H. J. Stegeman that voted in the election were Glenn Johnson, Wiley Moore, Wesley Calhoun, Ben Boulware, Shorter Rankin, Evan Major, Spec Townes, Johnny John, John Bond, Ed Rountree, Maurice Green, Harry Harman and Dudley McGruder, manager.

Major succeeds Wesley Calhoun, 440-yard dash man, as captain. Calhoun was elected captain late this season.

Bud Lindsey, Wade Hoyt and Aaron Cohn will represent Georgia in the first southern intercollegiate tennis tournament, which begins in Atlanta under the sponsorship of Georgia Tech tomorrow.

Lindsey and Hoyt will compete in both the doubles and singles matches while Cohn will compete in the singles only.

Swayze Is Sent To East Dixie Loop

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 15.—(AP)—Tom Swayze, a left-handed pitcher, was sent by the Memphis Chicks today to the Columbus Bengals of the East Dixie league.

By FRANK MacMILLEN.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Good gains by a few leading equities added a little surface brilliance today to a stock market which was little more than steady in the aggregate.

American Telephone led the utilities with a lift of around 3 points at 119 1-2 as the regular quarterly dividend was ordered by directors. Allied Chemical was a bellwether for the industrial group as its directors announced that application for permanent exchange registration had been filed. Because of a known reluctance to disclose some of the more intimate details of its business, some speculative quarters had felt a little uneasiness that the step might not be taken.

Rails, oils and metals all found a following at advancing prices, continuing the trend of recent sessions. Preliminary estimates of Wall Street quarters set the latest week's loadings figures moderately above those for the previous 7-day period. The silver stocks responded to an advance of 1 3-4 cents in the bar metal at New York to 76 5-8 cents, with lifts of more than a point in leaders for a time, though the gains were in some cases erased at the close.

The grain market held its own but did nothing to spur enthusiasm for stocks. Wheat was steady at prices unchanged to 1-2 cent a bushel higher and corn was even to up 3-8 of a cent. Cotton did better with advances of 15 to 60 cents a bale. Bonds were generally about steady, though some of the utilities firmed mildly, and United States government obligations were uniformly a bit higher.

Market Shade Better.

The stock market was a shade better on balance, as measured by the Associated Press average for 60 stocks, which ended .2 of a point higher at 41.8, but the volume of business contracted a little below the previous session. Turnover in the stock exchange was 1,052,820 shares.

Industrial and corporate news provided a mixture of bull and bear ammunition. Iron Age reported a 1-point drop in steel operations to 44 1-2 per cent of capacity and ascribed the current firming scrap prices to export demand rather than to the domestic situation which was described as "conflicting and uncertain."

At the same time power output figures for the latest week increased more than seasonally, sugar consumption for April was estimated as well ahead of March, and lead, zinc and export copper prices all advanced.

Disappointing News.

Some of the corporate news was disappointing without providing any particular surprises. National Biscuit's directors cut the common dividend to 40 cents compared with 50 cents paid in previous quarters. The recent prolonged labor difficulties of the company had led Wall Street to predict the action and the stock ended only a small fraction lower at 25 1-4. Columbia Gas held even at 6 3-8 as it reported first quarter earnings of 28 cents a share, compared with 32 cents in the same period of 1934.

Railroad equipment shares in some cases found bidders at higher levels. Baldwin preferred was up 2 1-2 points at 14 3-4, and its common as well as Westinghouse Airbrake was around a point better. Other strength was mostly scattered, with gains of 1 to 2 points or so in such diverse issues as Union Pacific at 96, American Can at 125 1-4, Columbia Pictures certificates at 54 3-8, United Carbon at 57 1-2, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher at 64 1-2, Reynolds Spring at 19 1-2, Texas & Pacific at 18 and International Business Machines at 179 1-2. The usually active issues were mainly minor fractions higher or lower, including United States Steel at 32 7-8, American Smelting at 44, American Tobacco "B" at 36 1-4, Chrysler at 45 5-8, General Electric at 25 1-4, Montgomery Ward at 26, New York Central at 17, Sears at 39 3-8, and Anaconda at 15 1-4.

ALCOHOL ISSUES HIGHER ON CURB

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Firmness in alcohol issues was a feature of the scattered improvement on the curb market today. Some of the oils were a bit reactionary but moderate gains outnumbered losses in the general list. Transfers approximated 203,000 shares compared with 255,000 yesterday.

Among the alcohol issues, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams and Hiram Walker both advanced around 1 1-2 points, while similar gains were established by Crane Co., Bunker Hill & Sullivan and Blumenthal. Other moderate gainers included Aluminum Co. of America, American Cyanamid "B," Bridgeport Machine, Greyhound Corp., Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Sunshine Mining. Commonwealth Edison regained 2 points of its sharp loss yesterday, while other utility shares held fairly narrow. Declines of about a point were registered by Humble Oil, Gulf Oil, Newmont Mining and Babcock & Wilcox.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

DOBBS & CO.—It would seem still the part of wisdom for traders to keep substantial cash reserves for purchases at lower levels.

COURTS & CO.—The action of the market Wednesday seemed to confirm bullish contentions.

FENNER & BEANE—The market as a whole shows no signs of exhaustion in the buying movement although there is no reason to believe the trend will not be interrupted by inside technical corrections either by way of pause or by way of reaction.

BEER & CO.—We look for the renewed aggressiveness witnessed Wednesday to expand during the next few sessions.

COTTON OPINIONS.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—Rather bullish reports on weevil damage are a possibility by the end of May according to one of the crop reporting services, because emergence has been delayed until cotton has squared in the southern third of the belt. In the meantime nothing has occurred to indicate that the market is ready to move out of its narrow trading range. July Liverpool due 6.54.

COURTS & CO.—The loan on the next crop, the weather, congress, the AAA and the bonus situation are all price-making factors in cotton at this time and in view of the uncertainty it seems unwise to express an opinion than to note that good support appears on all declines.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for the market to work higher.

BEER & CO.—A trading position is still advocated.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

DOBBS & CO.—The wheat market gives some evidence of having for the present at least discounted the immediate bearish factors and something new is badly needed to stimulate speculative interest.

COURTS & CO.—Inflation sentiment has again subsided and while it will be a factor recurrently, we think the crop developments will be the main factor in making wheat prices.

FENNER & BEANE—The wheat market is entitled to some further recovery but we doubt if it goes materially higher unless there is an increase in outside interest.

BEER & CO.—The wheat traders are short about all they want to sell at the present but until some new developments they are not disposed to cover or sell more. It is a tight market in corn and we think it will be more so as we approach the end of the month.

By FRED G. WILLIAMS.

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—(AP)—Cotton values continued their March today toward the 12-cent level and worked up from 2 to 12 points above the previous close in quiet dealings.

Better stocks, reported purchases by the government cotton pool in new crop positions, and a constructive sentiment in the trading fraternity brought about the higher prices.

Active positions were up a few points above the final prices of Tuesday for almost the entire session, and light offerings were well absorbed during the trading period. May finished at 11.87, compared with a previous close of 11.75 bid, while July was up 5 points at 11.90 and proportionate advances were shown by October at 11.79, December at 11.84 and January at 11.88.

The action of the government cotton pool still continued to be the dominating trading influence. Reports were current today that the government has sold around 300,000 bales of actual cotton, replacing this with between 80,000 and 100,000 bales of futures contracts. While these figures were not official, they received considerable cognizance in the trade as about summing up the cotton pool activities so far.

11-Point Spread.

Narrowing of differences between old and new crop months failed to attain any important proportions today with July and October closing at a 11-point spread.

The census bureau's estimate of consumption of cotton during April showed a slight decline from the previous month and around 47,000 bales under April, 1934. A total of 533,112 bales of cotton, including linters, was used by spinners during the month, compared with 547,889 bales in March, 1935, and 580,073 bales in April, 1934. The issuance of the report failed to influence trading in either direction.

Heavy rains in the northwest area of the belt continued to be the feature of the weather reports. The drouthy conditions, so long complained of, were said to have been alleviated. Temperatures everywhere were reported to be seasonably high.

Liverpool Quiet.

Liverpool reported a quiet market. Traders in the English exchange were said to be of the impression that the American cotton pool would achieve the desired results and they looked for a stabilization of prices around the present levels. The Liverpool exchange is due on New Orleans tomorrow from 1 to 3 penny points higher.

Port receipts 1,411; week 17,324; season 4,230,145; last season 7,317,032. Exports 5,811; week 32,064; season 4,042,794; last season 6,5553,958. Port stocks 1,844,666. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 57,322; last year 87,740. Spot sales at southern markets were 8,847; last year 2,697.

NEW YORK FUTURES ADVANCE 3-12 POINTS

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Cotton ruled steady in quiet trading today. There was price fixing in old crop months and buying through commission houses, credited partly to the producers' pool, in forward positions. Final prices were 3 to 12 points net higher.

There was light scattered liquidation in May influenced by issuance of a few additional notices. Hedge selling and foreign offerings were reported early in the session, but prices gradually rallied from around the previous closing levels in the later trading. The market again showed resistance around the 12-cent level and the advance was checked at 11.98 for March.

The census bureau report on domestic consumption of 462,844 bales, against 481,135 in March and 512,594 in April last year was in line with recent expectations.

The weekly weather report reflected the unfavorable influence of cool nights on growth in the west, but elsewhere progress was satisfactory.

Exports today 5,573, making 4,205,455 so far this season. Port receipts 978. United States port stocks 1,846,865.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—The bond market was unable to make up its mind which way to go today and the majority of active issues showed little change from the previous day. United States governments continued steady.

Although there were a number of wider swings in rails and utilities, other groups reflected the absence of special developments by remaining in a strictly trading area of less than a point either way. The Associated Press averages remained unchanged for all groups except the utilities, which advanced .1 of a point to 93.5.

Announcement that President Roosevelt would have his transportation message ready for congress this week served to stimulate interest in carrier bonds but buyers and sellers were in most instances not far apart in the matter of price. Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern 5s were a feature with gains of 1 to 3 points but other active issues hovered closely around Tuesday's levels.

Utilities were not greatly distressed over the statement of P. H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public executives, that the Wheeler-Rayburn bill in its present form contains all the "destructive" features of the original draft. American & Foreign Power 5s came in for considerable selling, declining more than 3 points before finding support, but this was an exception to the general trend in this group. Columbia Gas 5s, Metropolitan Edison 4 1-2s and Tennessee Electric Power 5s were among those selling higher.

A further runup of around 3 points in Kelly-Springfield Tire 6s and sagging tendencies among the various Famous-Players-Lasky bonds, featured the industrial section.

In United States governments advances ranged from 1-32nds to 4-32nds with treasury issues the most active. There was little activity in Liberties despite announcement that May 23 is the dead-line for converting the first Liberty bonds into the new 2 7-8 per cent treasury loans.

Further declines of 1 to 2 points in bonds of the government of Denmark featured the foreign department. Cuban issues continued to improve.

Transfers aggregated $10,645,000, par value, compared with $11,531,000 on Tuesday.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Bleachable cottonseed oil was strong today on covering and commission house buying. It was reported that a bill was up in congress to tax imports of oil used in the manufacture of oleomargarine 10 cents a pound.

Strength of lard and firmness of crude oil, as well as the new highs for hogs were also factors in the advance. The market closed 10 to 30 points net higher. Sales were 95 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; May closed 10.65; July 10.77; September 10.83; October 10.83; December 10.75.

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, May 15.—(AP)—Recovering from early setbacks of prices, the grain markets developed late firmness today, influenced by strength of stocks and by some renewal of inflation talk.

Friends of higher prices said the wheat trade had apparently discounted immediate bearish factors. It was also emphasized that a rally of more than 12 cents a bushed had followed declines on April 16 to about today's low point.

After fluctuating within a range of 1 1-4 cents, wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2 cent higher, July 92 1-8 to 3-8, corn unchanged to 3-8 up, July 80 7-8 to 81, oats unchanged to 5-8 off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Rallies of grain values began when May wheat established today a new bottom price record for the season. Setbacks to this stage were ascribed to relative weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool and to reports that rains had improved domestic winter wheat prospects, whereas clearing weather in the northwest and Canada was facilitating completion of spring crop seeding. On the other hand, silver market advances tended to strengthen wheat values, and so too did a comprehensive summary indicating that wheat crop deterioration in central and eastern Nebraska and Kansas, as well as in north central Oklahoma, had more than offset improvement by rains.

Wheat ran into selling pressure on advances. General trade comment was that prospects for the 1935 wheat crop in North America were too favorable to allow price gains to go very far unless a marked broadening of speculative buying power developed. Meanwhile, milling demand here for wheat was better, and need of rain for the new Argentine wheat crop was reported.

Corn and oats mainly reflected the course of wheat prices. Some reports said Illinois corn planting could not be completed until June 1, even with ideal weather.

Provisions averaged higher, largely responsive to strength of grains and to closing of spreads against cottonseed oil.

Market Outlook

by MAX BUCKINGHAM

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

NEW YORK, May 15.—(UP)—The stock market tonight continued to gamble on more business improvement inflation.

Today's market was irregularly higher with slightly more than a million shares exchanged.

Warnings against inflation continued. The latest and most vigorous was from Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, who warned in Washington of a dangerous "conflagration" possibility in the new banking bill.

But to the inflation-minded group in Wall Street it was just another warning, for they felt certain that somewhere in pending legislation, such as the Patman bonus bill and the banking measure, there is the fuse which will set off inflation activity. The money market doesn't show it. The bond market gives no indication of it. Foreign exchange gives no reflection. But many feel that there is an inflation in force now but which has not become fully apparent.

BUSINESS MOTIVE.

But with all this talk of inflation, the stock market continues to get its motive power from business. And these reports give the market its excellent undertone which so far has been able to overcome any recessionary spirit. There were forecasts which heightened the feeling of continued business betterment.

One such report came from the National Machine and Tool Builders' Association which predicted that May business would show a sharp improvement over April. Pick-up in machine tool business indicates better business in the heavier industries. In addition, most observers believe the pathways are fairly clear for the motor car industry the remainder of the year in view of settlement of the Chevrolet labor difficulties.

Other business reports during the day included:

Some improvement in railroad carloadoings. There is also a little more hopefulness for the railroad situation, based on expectations of what the transportation message to congress will say.

Electric power production firmed some, but still ranks low compared with the high marks shown in the forepart of the year.

Goulash Noodles
Spring Salad Pudding Delight
Coffee

Goulash is an economical dish and delicious, especially served with homemade noodles.

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Goulash—One-half pound beef, one half pound veal, one-half pound lean pork, two tablespoons lard, one tablespoon salt, one tablespoon chili powder, one tablespoon sugar, one medium onion, chopped fine; one tart apple, four carrots, two cups cann tomatoes, one quart boiling water. Cut meat in small pieces, removing all skin and gristle. Saute in l d until browned, stirring occasionally. Add salt, chili powder, sugar and onion and saute with meat a few minutes. Pare, core and cut apple into small pieces and add to meat mixture with diced carrots, tomatoes and water. Cook together an hour and a half. Thicken gravy with two to three tablespoons flour mixed with cold water. Delicious with homemade noodles. Serves eight.

Pudding Delight—Mix together in the order given: Two tablespoons granulated sugar, one-half cup molasses (light-colored baking molasses), one egg yolk or a whole egg slightly beaten, two tablespoons melted butter. Add to this: One and one-half cups flour, one-half cup hot water, one teaspoon soda in a little water, added last. Steam pudding one hour after placing in a greased mold. It may be served hot with whipped cream or a butterscotch sauce.

A. T. & T. Authorizes Regular Dividend

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—The American Telephone & Telegraph Company today authorized the usual quarterly dividend of $2.25 on the capital stock. The distribution will amount to nearly $42,000,000.

The dividend is payable July 15 to stock of record June 15.

While the company's income has continued insufficient to meet the requirements for the $9 annual dividend, financial quarters had been reasonably confident that the regular payment would be ordered. This expectation rested upon the company's steady gain in new telephones installed during the past year, in harmony with the general recovery trend.

For the quarter ended March 31 net income was $30,097,288, equivalent to $1.61 a share, this compared with $32,992,340 or $1.77 a share in the first quarter last year. Increased labor and operating costs counteracted a considerable part of the gain in business.

SLIGHT GAIN NOTED IN ELECTRIC OUTPUT

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Electric power production in the United States for the week ended May 11 was reported today by the Edison Electric Institute at 1,701,702,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 0.2 per cent over the previous week, and of 3.5 per cent over the like of 1934.

The gain over 1934 narrowed somewhat, owing to a somewhat wider gain at this time last year. The total for the preceding week had been 4 per cent over 1934. Percentage gains over 1934 for regional areas for the May 11 week included Rocky Mountain 13.6 per cent, west central 8.0 per cent, central industrial 5.1 per cent, middle Atlantic 4.5 per cent, southern states 3.1 per cent, and New England 2.2. per cent. The Pacific coast showed a decline of 6.0 per cent.

The Associated Press Index of electric power production, based on a two-week moving average, with 1920-1930 taken as 100, rose for the week ended May 11 to 96.5, from 95.3 the previous week, and 95.5 a year previously. The index is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend.

The range of recent years follows:

	1935.	1934.	1933.
High	98.9	97.4	91.9
Low	94.9	91.9	80.2

U. S. EXPORTS GAIN IN LATIN AMERICA

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Substantial increases in United States exports to Latin-American countries were reported today by the department of commerce for March as compared with March, 1934.

Whereas Europe, last March, bought much less from the United States than in the same month a year ago, Latin-American countries increased their purchases. The same situation held true for the first three months of this year.

STEEL PRODUCTION SLIGHTLY LOWER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Iron Age in its weekly summary today reported steel production at a slightly lower rate. As an offset to this trend, however, a further advance in steel scrap prices was noted.

Mill operations were estimated at an average of 44 1-2 per cent of capacity compared with 45 1-2 per cent in the previous week. The operating trends in leading steel manufacturing centers were described as "conflicting and uncertain."

Regarding the rising trend of scrap prices the summary said that swelling export demand rather than domestic market conditions accounts for the strength of the commodity.

TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS No. 70
By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When the lion appeared around the curve of the fissure, Jeremiah Jones lost his accustomed calm. The beast was larger and more menacing than he had judged. And his tiny .32—which he had never fired!—seemed to shrink to utter insignificance as a weapon of defense.

If he merely wounded the beast, it would become an irresistible engine of destruction. There was only one thing to do. Jerry Jones did it. He fled into the unknown depths of the ancient rift. But now a new fear assailed him. Suppose the fissure should end in a blank wall!

. . . Tarzan of the Apes would have been glad to face Dr. Jones' lion rather than the man-enemies who surrounded him now. With his bare hands the mighty ape-man could have slain the jungle beast, but he was helpless before the deadly firearms of the slave-raiders.

Nazir, Boris Garetto's Arab lieutenant, held his revolver level with Tarzan's heart. He would be happy indeed when the menace of the ape-man no longer disturbed their nefarious trade in human beings. Nazir chuckled wickedly; then his thin, snaky finger pressed the trigger!

DAILY SHORT STORY

WHO LAUGHS LAST

When the Plumber Decided To Go in for Blackmail the Whole Town Quaked With Fear.

BY EDITH H. JOY.

On Thursday, May 16, the Bartley "Argus" was scanned listlessly by its subscribers until they turned to the last page. Then they came to life with a jerk. For standing boldly out among the personals was a lengthy item that once read was read again by everyone with an avidity for spicy news.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I, John Alton, have closed my shop because of insufficient funds. I need money to run my business and to feed my family. I have tried to collect part payments on many outstanding accounts. Since

"'So that's what I'm here for.'"

I have failed to honorably collect what is rightfully mine, I shall try other plans.

If by May 31 these bills have not been paid, I shall seek redress. Call it blackmail, or what you will. Nevertheless, I have left with Judge Wilson a list of those who owe me. I have also left with him a sealed package, the contents of which may be made public after the 31st.

Have you a skeleton in your closet that a plumber might have seen! Then beware!

A restless undercurrent of excitement pervaded the entire town during the two weeks that followed. The churches had never been so well attended as on that sunny Sabbath the week that Alton's "personals" notice had appeared.

The first of the week many good citizens of Bartley straggled into the judge's office; but no two ever came together.

Among the first to puff up the dingy stairs and into the waiting room was Patrick Conley, one of the well-to-do of Bartley's worthy citizens. He was the boss, sub rosa, of the town political gang.

The judge closed the door and waited. Pat's oily, ready tongue, failed him for once. He stuttered and made several attempts before he hit upon a satisfactory beginning and launched into the purpose of his visit.

"You see, it's this way, judge. I owe that d——d little plumber $900 fer puttin' them furnishin's in my two bathrooms, that the missis nagged the life out of me till she got. But you know how it is about payin' bills. I didn't know the little cuss was so hard up, or I'd have paid him long ago. So that's what I'm here for. Here's my check. I want a receipt."

His nonchalance was all on the outside. For as he lumbered down the stairs he inwardly cursed the plumber, whom he was positive had the private letter of the Walker Paving Company, which he, Pat, had lost when he was having his house remodeled. He inwardly cursed the contracting company. Why had they been such dumb fools anyway as to put their bribery on paper.

Even poor silly Molly Reid came with a few dollars, frightened to death for fear Alton had seen her bottle of hair dye, and would hold her up for ridicule just when Joe Brown was almost ready to ask her to say "Yes."

One day the minister called with $10 in small change, collected from God knows where. He had felt that he could not pay the plumber just now. Church collections had been so poor. But on the other hand, he confided to the judge he just could not have the people know that he had lost his temper because his loving incompetent little wife had spoiled the boiled dinner—the very day that the plumber had called to fix the furnace grates.

The judge scanned his list and looked up with a smile:

"Your name is not here, parson. I can't collect from you."

A little dazed, the minister put back into his pocket the money that would buy food for the coming week. Among the last to visit the judge's popular office was Mary Holt. Aggressively she stalked into the room with money to pay for the stationary tubs that Alton had installed for her six months previous. Judge Wilson grinned a trifle maliciously as she gave the dirty greenbacks a longing look before handing them to him.

He would have laughed in unholy glee had he known that she remembered Alton was at her home the day that she sold to a second-hand clothes vender the best of a quantity of clothing turned over to her for charity.

In the meantime, what had become of the would-be blackmailer? Sallie Rudder, the village gossip, reported, after a call on Mrs. Alton, that Fannie didn't know where her husband was. Said that he had taken his gun and driven off, to be gone until the first.

By the 31st everybody who owed or thought they owed Alton a dollar had called on the judge.

About noon of the first a muddy car stopped in front of the rambling old frame building which furnished office room for most of Bartley's professional men, and John Alton ran nimbly up the dingy stairs.

"Hello, judge! I'm back."

"So I see," and the judge handed John a quantity of bills, checks, and loose change along with the package left in his care.

There was a broad grin on Alton's lean brown face as he checked the list. The grin changed to an audible chuckle when he came to Pat Conley's check. It was almost a shout when he saw Mary Holt's name marked "paid in full."

"Well, John, don't you think you owe me something besides my fee on all this. Open the package. My curiosity almost got the better of me."

Without replying Alton tore the wrappings from the sealed package, and handed the judge a bunch of unused envelopes. On a card which had been slipped under the rubber band, there was printed in large letters: "A guilty conscience needs no accuser."

Tomorrow: "Lonely" advertised in the personals column for an old-fashioned girl, and his ad started a romantic correspondence. The story is "Estrangement," by Sally Elliott Allen.

CATHOLIC PRESS TO GATHER HERE FOR BIG CONCLAVE

Approximately 150 publishers, representing more than 300 newspapers and Catholic periodicals, will be in Atlanta May 23, 24 and 25 for the national convention of the Catholic Press Association of America, it was announced yesterday by Bernard J. Kane, president of the Atlanta Catholic Laymen's Association.

Included on the program of entertainment, as announced by James A. Harvey, chairman of the local reception committee, will be a dinner on Friday night, May 24, at the Biltmore hotel, and a luncheon on Saturday on the terrace of the East Lake Country Club. Both affairs will be open to the public.

The Biltmore dinner will be featured by an address by Father Gillis, author of "The Question Box" and a prominent Paulist missionary. Among those who will attend the sessions are the Rev. Wilfred Parsons, S. J., of New York editor of the publication, America; Benedict Elder, of Louisville, Ky., and Richard Reid, editor of the Bulletin, of Augusta, and past president of the national association.

APPENDICITIS HALTS GEORGIANS' WEDDING

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—The wedding of Miss Martha Lamar King, of Rome, Ga., and Ben J. Cothran, New York advertising man, formerly of Atlanta, scheduled for today, has been postponed indefinitely as the result of an appendix operation performed on Miss King.

She was operated on Friday and her condition today was reported to be excellent. Cothran said no date for the ceremony had been set but that he hoped it would be as soon as Miss King has completely recovered. Mrs. C. W. King, mother of Miss King, is also in New York with her daughter.

Mr. Cothran, former Atlanta newspaperman, is well known here and in Rome, where his family, as well as that of his fiancee, is prominent.

30 Pct. Cut in Prevailing Scale Considered for Relief Wages

3 Classifications, Pay Differential Areas Mapped; Lowest Southern Pay Set at $16.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—A basic framework for labor's wages under the $4,000,000,000 work program, calling for a 30 per cent slash in prevailing hourly rates on construction jobs, tonight was disclosed to have been drawn tentatively for White House approval.

Emphasizing that President Roosevelt has yet to approve the set-up, a high official who would not permit use of his name, said monthly payments were expected to vary from $16 for unskilled labor in the south to $96 for a skilled workman in New York city.

The average, he said, would exceeed the $50-a-month "security" wage on which the work program was planned. It compares with a monthly average of $29.50 on jobs now conducted under the relief administration on which prevailing wages are paid but only enough employment given to meet a worker family's relief needs.

Still undertermined in the tentative schedule were the monthly allotment of work hours to labor and the total cost of labor's share of the outlays. Detailed wage regulations were expected to be submitted to the White House shortly by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress director.

Three Classifications.

The authoritative official said present plans called for three classifications of workers, with graduations in pay. Separate wage schedule would be provided for the six major regions, still undisclosed, into which the country has been divided.

In some quarters it was said the new wage scales, which are to apply to all relief jobless with the exception of the Civilian Conservation Corps, will be modified to fit conditions in 320 work areas already marked out by Hopkins. A survey of the cost of living for low income families in 59 representative cities was to be completed shortly.

Present public works regulations provide minimum rates for two classes of labor—skilled and unskilled in the northern, central and southern zones—but require payment of prevailing union wages if the latter are higher.

New Class of Workers.

The new works schedule would set up an intermediate class of semi-skilled workers, with pay approximately midway between the skilled and unskilled.

If the president approves the 30 per cent reduction, officials said payments will range from 29 cents to 35 cents an hour for common labor, from 50 to 60 cents for semi-skilled and from 70 to 85 cents for skilled. These were described as falling 30 per cent below PWA averages based on prevailing rates.

At present, the PWA minimum ranges from 40 cents for unskilled and $1 for skilled in the southern zone to 45 cents and a $1.10 in the central and 50 cents and $1.20 in the northern zones.

Most of the 750,000 white-collar people now on relief were said to fall in the skilled and semi-skilled classes. These were to receive research or administrative work.

Difficulties.

Some difficulties in carrying out the wage schedule was foreseen by officials from the fact that present scales were to be continued on PWA projects already under contract. The McCarran amendment which would have required that prevailing wages be paid under the $4,000,000,000 program was defeated in the senate after administration leaders contended it would destroy work plans. A compromise was adopted instructing the president to increase payments if the prevailing wage was being broken down, and to pay prevailing wages on federal construction.

What wage would be paid if factories supplying materials and equipment should be required to fill jobs from relief rolls also was said to be undecided. The proposal was offered by officials who contended that the work program otherwise would not substantially benefit mining and similar areas.

NEW COMMITTEE HITS RELATIONS INSTITUTE

Community Group Is Composed of Local Club Leaders and Legionnaires.

A community Americanism committee, composed of officers and leaders of Atlanta clubs and civic organizations, was organized at a meeting held Tuesday night at Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion, and members immediately directed criticism at the American Friends' Service committee and the Southern Institute of International Relations which will meet in Atlanta June 10 to 19, at St. Luke's Episcopal church, it was announced yesterday by Commander Kenneth R. Murrell, of Atlanta Post No. 1.

A form letter similar to the one recently sent by the Legion post to the "Sixty Southern Citizens" named as sponsors of the institute meeting, will be sent out by the Americanism committee, Commander Murrell announced.

Members of the new organization include Solicitor-General John Boykin, Clifford Hendrix, state president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; A. L. Henson, state pension commissioner; Charles G. Bruce, exalted ruler of Atlanta Lodge No. 78, B. P. O. E.; C. W. O'Rear, of East Point Lodge of the American Legion; Major C. J. Matthews, United States army; William Bernhardt, state commander of the United Spanish War Veterans; A. B. Maddison, of Atlanta Elks; Dr. R. D. McDowell, president of the Men of Justice, and Franklin S. Chalmers, commandant of the Old Guard.

Mr. Bernhardt was named permanent chairman of the organization and the purpose of the organization was set forth as combatting subversive and communistic propaganda and defense of the government of the United States from propagandists whose purpose is to weaken or overthrow the present form of government. The organization ratified the stand taken by Atlanta Post No. 1 of the Legion in opposing the institute speakers and officials.

Claude Nelson, chairman of the institute, will address the Atlanta Post No. 1 Friday at the post's luncheon meeting at the Henry Grady hotel, Commander Murrell announced.

AHEPA WILL CONVENE DISTRICT MEET TODAY

The opening session of the fourth annual convention of the fourteenth district Order of Ahepa will get under way this morning at the Piedmont hotel following registration of delegates from all sections of Georgia and South Carolina and with visitors from Florida, New York and Pennsylvania present.

The session will be opened by District Governor W. G. Logothetis and A. D. Rumanes, president of the Atlanta chapter, the parent chapter of the organization, will preside. The Rev. Panos Constantinides will deliver the invocation and Mrs. Angelo Karberis will sing the Star-Spangled Banner and the Greek national anthem.

The address of welcome will be made by Mayor Key and the speakers will include Wiley Moore, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Tom Chotas, chaplain of the Atlanta chapter, and Governor Logothetis.

A business session will be held during the afternoon and an informal banquet will be given tonight at the Piedmont hotel. A feature of tomorrow morning's session will be the election of district lodge officers.

The Ahepa ball will be held tomorrow night, at which time Miss Helen Pefines will be crowned queen of Ahepa, succeeding Miss Antigone Papageorge.

Special services were conducted at 6 o'clock last night at the Greek Orthodox church and initiation of candidates followed at Ahepa hall.

'Flip-Flop' by Cox Charged by Talmadge

Chiding Congressman E. E. Cox, of Camilla, for remarks in his radio speech defending the national administration Tuesday night, Governor Talmadge yesterday charged in a statement that Congressman Cox had done a "flip-flop."

At the same time the governor issued a brief statement answering one by President Roosevelt in Washington.

In connection with Congressman Cox's speech, he said:

"Congressman Cox made a very bitter attack on the attitude of the administration four weeks ago. In that speech he objected to the bureaus and the brain trust.

"Listening to his speech last night, I could not help thinking of his former speech.

"The only reasonable excuse arrived at was that they have promised Coxy some patronage and he has done a flip-flop on this account.

"But we'll have to excuse Coxy. He has lost the common touch. We must not be too hard on Coxy. He is just a shell of a man. He has been hitting the white lights too long and too hard."

Concerning the president's statement that certain people were "lying" about the farm program, the governor said:

"When the president made that statement, the squeal of little pigs, the bleating of bloody little lambs and the bellowing of dying cattle were torturing his soul."

Four Shot to Death By Insular Communists

MANILA, May 15.—(AP)—Three city officials and another person were shot to death today in what authorities called an outbreak of communistic terrorism in Laguna province, scene of the bloodiest fighting in last week's revolt.

News of the slayings reached here as the counting continued of yesterday's balloting in which the Filipinos voted overwhelmingly to accept a commonwealth form of government for 10 years pending complete independence.

Latest totals were 1,157,962 in favor of the commonwealth system and 39,920 against.

CREATE AN ESTATE, POWELL ADVISES IN RADIO ADDRESS

The creation of an estate to provide capital income when labor income is interrupted or ceases as a move to economic security for the average family was advocated last night by Walter Powell, general agent of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company in a radio address delivered over WGST at 8:45 o'clock as one of a series of four talks in observance of national life insurance week.

"There are eight types of property most commonly purchased" Mr. Powell declared. "These are stocks, bonds, real estate, mortgages, saving accounts, building and loan shares, investment trusts and life insurance.

The investment should, Mr. Powell said, insure a minimum monthly income of at least $100 for an average sized family. He stressed the fact that investment in insurance provided the monthly dividend to the insured family without fail, and cited investment in lands as a comparison. Often, he said, a family would be termed land poor. Property in the forms of securities and land should not be bought, he said, just to get property.

Alfred C. Newell, general agent of the Columbian National Life Insurance Company, will speak over WGST at 7:55 o'clock tonight continuing the series. Mr. Newell has been in the life insurance business more than 30 years and is one of the oldest general agents in point of service in the city.

BOOTHS TO OPEN TODAY IN RED CROSS APPEAL

Today for the first time during the Red Cross Roll Call, conveniently located booths will be open and Atlanta clubwomen will be on duty to make it easy to join the Red Cross.

Under the leadership of Mrs. George Ripley, the women of Atlanta have organized into 14 groups, each handling membership efforts in a different part of the city.

It is believed by roll call leaders that the campaign will be successful and the final effort in providing centrally located booths will bring in those membership which would have been missed, had it not been for this system.

Dr. Paulk is considered one of the foremost revivalists of the south and as a result of his sermons a number of Atlantans have signified their intentions of joining the church, Rev. Tidwell declared.

FLORIDAN DETAINED BY CANTON OFFICERS

CANTON, Ga., May 15.—(AP)—Detention on a charge of disorderly conduct of a youth identified by Policeman Hoke Foster as Wallace Randell, son of R. W. Randell, of Fort Myers, Fla., was announced here tonight.

R. W. Randell is scheduled to go on trial at the nearby city of Ellijay on May 22 on a charge of murder, growing out of the death of his wife in an automobile crash.

Policemen Foster said "the young man has been wearing a false face around here, so I arrested him today to see what it is all about."

The boy is about 19 years old.

Foster said the youth had not offered to make bond, and was in the county jail tonight.

Character—NOT CAPITAL, IS THE BASIS OF A MORRIS PLAN LOAN!

THE MORRIS PLAN

WHEN YOU secure a loan at the Morris Plan Bank you do not have to be wealthy. It is unnecessary to put up stocks, bonds, or other collateral.

Loans are made on character and ability to repay over a period of one year. The security required is your signature plus the signatures of two friends or relatives who sign your note as co-makers.

EXAMPLES OF MORRIS PLAN BANK LOANS

Amount of Loan	Total Cost (1 Year)	Cash to Borrower	12 Monthly Deposits
$120.00	$ 9.60	$110.40	$10.00
300.00	24.00	276.00	25.00
600.00	48.00	552.00	50.00

Similar schedules apply to loans for any amount up to $1,000. A lower rate is charged on loans of over $1,000.

One of our loan officials will gladly discuss this with you. Inquire Today!
